DALTON'S Story of Loan Is False, Says EASTMAN

GIRL TAKES DARE; IS HURT

Irene Pattie's Ride on Police Horse Costs Her Severe Injuries

Thrown From Animal and Taken Into Dallam House to Await Physicians

Irene Pattie, a young girl residing at 184 Twentieth street, last night took a dare to ride a horse found tied outside the Piedmont baths, where she had been spending the evening with Florence Josephs and Joseph Sticky, of 78 Vernon street. The horse belonged to Patrolman O. A. Cozad of the Oakland mounted police, and had been left tied outside the baths by the policeman while he delivered a message in the plac.

The girl had never ridden before, and Dandy, the police horse, was surprised at the manner in which she held the reins. After starting to trot he was pulled up twice and then bolted. The girl was thrown from her mount at Adams street, near the residence of Mrs. Frederick D. Allan, 430 Adams street, where several guests were present. She had been found by Mr. Neville and Mr. Parcells lying in the roadway unconscious and was carried into the house. Dr. H. N. Ewer was called in and administered temporary services, after which the girl was taken to the Receiving Hospital, where she now lies in a serious condition with a fractured skull.

Dared by her two companions to ride the spirited police horse, the girl had bravely mounted the animal, though she had never ridden before. Her companions were shocked to see the horse dash away with her, and followed, running along the street. They soon lost sight of the girl and did not hear of her accident until some time later.

POLICE INVESTIGATION.

The daring exploit of the girl caused a lengthy police investigation last night, in which Captain Therwald Brown had Patrolman Cozad on the carpet to explain how the girl came into possession of his horse. The mounted policeman was as much surprised at the affair as had been his horse earlier in the evening when the girl climbed into the saddle. Cozad had gone seeking his horse after emerging from the baths, and had not found the animal until informed by Captain Brown that the mount was tied to a post at the end of Adams street. The explanation of the affair given by Patrolman Cozad was satisfactory to Captain Brown and to Chief of Police Adelbert Wilson.

According to John Martin, who resides at 530 Williams street, stepfather of Miss Irene Pattie, the girl had gone with Miss Florence Josephs of 484 Twentieth street to the Piedmont baths. There the two girls met Joseph Stickey, a young man companion. On emerging from the baths about 9 o'clock, the trio found the policeman's horse tied to a hitching post.

DARES HER TO RIDE.

"I'll dare you to ride the horse," said Stickey to Florence Josephs. The girl took the dare and mounted the horse. She had ridden before and cantered easily up and down the street. When she dismounted Stickey made a similar dare to her companion.

"I have never been on a horse," she answered.

"Take a chance," he said, and her girl companion also urged her. Finally she mounted, and striking the horse a sharp blow with her hand, galloped away.

Colonial Mansion Is Destroyed by Firebug

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., July 13.—After eight attempts in a few months firebugs succeeded in destroying last night a historical colonial mansion in this city. The house was unoccupied, but was guarded by a private watchman. Despite his presence some one saturated the place with kerosene and set it on fire.

The mansion adjoins "Robins' Nest," a home for crippled children. The inmates were roused by the flames, only a few feet from their windows, but good order was maintained.

Behan Denies Anything Was Said in Reference to a Loan

The taking of testimony in the case of County Assessor Henry P. Dalton on the charge of accepting a bribe from the Spring Valley Water Company came to a close at noon today. The last witness was Vice-President S. P. Eastman of the Spring Valley Water Co., who was recalled for the purpose of denying the statement made yesterday by the defendant to the effect that when he (Dalton) received the $5000, as alleged, from Eastman he gave the water company's representative a promissory note for the amount given to Dalton.

Denies Receiving Note

Eastman denied that Dalton had given him a note for the sum in question or for any other sum of money. He also denied that he at any time had discussed the question of loaning Dalton any money or that Dalton had ever suggested the idea of borrowing money from him. In cross-examination Eastman reiterated his statements on the subject to Fairall and in reply to question by the attorney for the defendant made an answer which again revived the testimony of the witness when in the earlier part of the trial the latter detailed the negotiations between Dalton and the Spring Valley Water Company's representative for the alleged bribe for the reduction of the assessment of that company's property in this county.

"Did not Dalton say?" inquired Fairall, "that he would pay you back the money which you had offered to secure for him?"

"Not in that way," replied Eastman. "He said that in the event of not being able to bring about the reduction of the assessment ac-

WITNESS SAYS KEITH IS VICTIM OF CONSPIRACY

Declares Plot Exists to Oust the Principal of Blind Asylum

BERKELEY, July 13.—A sensation was created at this afternoon's session of the investigation at the California Institute for the Deaf and the Blind by Stanley Henderson, a graduate with the class of 1904, who declared that a conspiracy existed for the overthrow of Principal Keith. He stated that he had come voluntarily as a witness to see that Keith got a square deal and to denounce the conspirators. Relative to the qualifications of Principal Keith, he stated t hat he had been sent to the principal on numerous times for instruction. He also declared that Martin Clark, another student, had been taught by Principal Keith. Instructor Francis O'Donnell, recalled to the stand, told of having asked Principal Wilkinson to resign his position.

Case Against See Is Nearing an End

The Fate of "Absolute Life" Cult Leader Will Probably Be in Hands of Jury Today.

CHICAGO, July 13.—Closing arguments of counsel in the trial of Evelyn Arthur See, founder of the "Absolute Life' cult, were delivered today, and announcement was made that the case would probably be given to the jury in the afternoon. Bill Provides Local Option for Baseball

Upper House of New York Legislature Passes Measure Regulating Game.

ALBANY, N. Y., July 13.—The upper house of the New York State Legislature has passed a bill providing for local option on the question of Sunday baseball.

A similar measure is pending in the lower house and its backers are confident that it will pass. According to the bill a petition signed by 5 per cent of the voters of a city, town or village calls for a vote on the proposition and a majority of the votes cast decides the question. If the electors favor Sunday games the place and time of playing them are left to the discretion of the local authorities.

Captain Declares Neapolitan Carabineers Did Not Manufacture Evidence.

VITERBO, Italy, July 13.—During the continuation of his examination today Capt. Fabroni of the Neapolitan Carbineers expressed indignation over the accusations that the carbineers had manufactured evidence against the Camorra. He asked the court to give him one whole day to refute the specific charges one by one.

The witness declared the ring the murdered Cuoccolo had worn and the one exhibited in court and alleged to have been recovered from the Camorrists, appeared to be the same.

Autoists Flee, Leaving Victim Dead in Street

ALAMEDA, July 13. — The body of an unidentified man who had evidently been struck down and instantly killed, presumably by an automobile, was found on Fernside boulevard near High street this afternoon about 2:30 o'clock by Harry Bredford, a driver for W. P. Fuller & Company.

The body was taken to the morgue. The man was about 24 years of age. He wore a bleu coat, striped brown trousers, white negligee shirt and buttoned shoes.

The occupants of the automobile which struck the man evidently rushed on without stopping to ascertain his injuries.

Hundreds Stand Neck-Deep in Swamps as Conflagration Rages

TORONTO, July 13.—Vast billows of fire, miles in length, continued today to roll through the camps, woods and brush of the Porcupine mining district of this province and the regions to the north.

Unverified reports continue to swell the number of fatalities.

Some estimates are as high as 500 dead. The financial losses represent a huge sum.

Only with the return of relief expeditions and the re-establishment of railroad telegraph service will the full extent of the disaster be accurately known.

REFUGEE'S GRAPHIC TALE.

DETROIT, July 13.—Eugene E. Thompson, Oscoda business man and fire chief, who last night brought a party of refugees to Detroit from the burned towns of Au Sable and Oscoda, furnished the first connected story which has come out of the fire-swept district.

"The first serious fire on the outskirts of the town was discovered Sunday and a crew fought it until it was under control," he said. "Monday nothing was done, and Tuesday, aided by high winds, it broke out again with great fury.

"The first alarm in Oscoda came in at 3 o'clock from Mrs. Archer's house. President Cowley and myself procured pails from the Loud company's office to fight the flames that had spread to the Catholic cemetery. The next alarm came in from the Au Sable township slab piles. About the time the hose was working well we got an alarm from Oscoda. The first building to go was the Oscoda and Au Sabel Canning factory, and in a few minutes the fires began breaking out north, east, south and west all at once.

CAPTAIN A HERO.

"Our equipment of three hose carts and thirty-six volunteers fought for an hour and a half with a good water supply. Then the flames reached the pumping station and it went out of commission.

"A few inhabitants, among them myself and my father and mother, sought safety on the steamer Niko, Captain Meyers, which was lying at my own dock. It is impossible to say enough in praise of Captain Meyers. He acted the hero, remaining at the dock and taking on refugees until it was a mass of flames and he was obliged to cut his cables. When the boat finally drifted into the open it

DALTON'S STORY OF LOAN FALSE DECLARE EASTMAN AND BEHAN

Testimony of County Assessor Flatly Contradicted by Officials of the Spring Valley Company

cording to the deal by reason of some person discovering the reduction and protesting against it, that the money, which he would receive in accordance with the demand he had made, would be returned to me."

This answer was considered the severest that had been made against the defendant during the progress of the trial.

The lack of public interest in the trial of Dalton, which has caused comment during its progress, was strikingly noticeable this morning, because, for a long time after the commencement of proceedings, there were a number of vacant seats in the small courtroom in which the case is being heard.

DALTON'S TESTIMONY.

This was due probably to the fact that the defendant himself had testified as to his side of the case yesterday, denying that he had accepted a bribe from the Spring Valley Water Company, but admitting that he had accepted a loan in the sum of $5000 from that corporation.

Of course, the interest felt in the case was centered in the personality of the defendant. That waned when Dalton told his story and when the District Attorney announced that he would not cross-examine the defendent, there was little left to assure the public that the events today would be enlivened by any incident of an exciting or sensational character.

MRS. DALTON ABSENT.

The session this morning was nevertheless peculiar because it was marked by the absence not alone of Mrs. Kennedy, the mother-in-law of the defendant, but also by Mrs. Dalton, who, since the opening of the trial, has occupied a seat beside her spouse.

It was also signalized by a number of intermissions, during which the jury was confined in the small juryroom opening off the courtroom.

These intermissions were ordered by the court to enable him to read decisions regarding the admissibility of testimony in rebuttal by Secretary Behan and Vice-President Eastman of the Spring Valley Water Company.

Behan and Eastman were placed on the stand to disprove statements made yesterday by Dalton, that he had been given a $5000 loan by Eastman.

Both of the witnesses named entered denials to the statement made under oath by the assessor with respect to the offer of a loan and the tender of a loan on the part of any officers of the Spring Valley Water Company.

FLAT CONTRADICTION.

The statements of the representatives of the company and the defendant are diametrically opposed to one another.

Shortly before the noon adjournment the court rendered a decision on a question raised by Fairall for the defense as to the admissibility of a statement alleged to have been made by Attorney A. E. Shaw, formerly in the employ of the Spring Valley Water Company, to the effect that the value of the riparian rights of that concern in Alameda county was only a little over $500,000, whereas other persons later had reduced the alleged valuation to something over $200,000.

Fairall wanted to show by this that the company was maliciously attempting to misrepresent the valuation of the rights in question and that it was also constantly aiming to deceive the assessor and reduce the assessment.

Fairall hoped in this manner to show that the company had devised a conspiracy to injure Dalton because, the latter had refused to reduce its assessment and that the passing of the money to Dalton was the result of the conspiracy.

The opinion of the judge in the premises was to the effect that the paper containing the valuation of the riparian rights of the company was not material and the objection of the prosecution to its admission would be sustained.

It was then stipulated, between counsel, that the court might deliver oral instructions to the jury and that the same could be taken down by the court stenographer.

BEHAN ON STAND.

The first witness called was Secretary Behan of the Spring Valley Water Company, who was expected to rebut testimony given yesterday by Dalton, the defendant, especially with respect to the witness' offering financial assistance to Dalton through the intervention of a friend of his (Behan's) as also of Dalton's stating that $5000 would aid him materially.

He was asked by Hynes whether on the 17th of March of this year or on any other date, he had said to the defendant, H. P. Dalton:

"'Well, Mr. Dalton, can I assist you financially?'"

Fairall objected on the ground that it was not proper rebuttal.

The court gave the jury a recess for five minutes.

Assistant District Attorney Hynes then referred the court to a decision in the 134th California reports on the subject.

The court ordered the report produced and, during the absence of the jury carefully read the opinion referred to.

Fairall said that the case on trial was a different one from that referred to in the reports, claiming that the question was inadmissible.

"Of course," said Hynes, with some asperity in his tone, evidently convinced that Fairall knew what statements of Dalton was to be attacked by rebuttal, "you did not know the fact if you knew anything at all about the case, and did not bring it out in cross-examination and did not have it testified to until yesterday when this defendant told the weird story about a promissory note being given by him for the money. Of course we are entitled to show this in rebuttal."

The court continued to read from decisions calling in succession for the Forty-second, the Eighty-fourth, the One Hundred and Thirty-ninth, the One Hundred and Forty-third and the One Hundred and Eleventh California Reports.

The judge then said, as he recollected, the witness did not say, at any time, that he had given all the conversations that had taken place between himself and Dalton. That being so, the defendant having made a statement about a loan, he felt that it was allowable in rebuttal for the witness to tell what had been said on the subject.

NO DOUBT, SAYS FAIRALL.

The court asked counsel if there was any question in their mind that Behan had said that he had told of all the conversations he had had with the defendant.

Fairall said tat tere was no question in his mind that Behan said that he had told of all the conversations because he (Fairall) recalled that he asked Behan several times, "Is that all the conversation that took place?" and "is that all that was said?"

The jury was then recalled, and to satisfy himself as to whether or not Behan had stated either in his direct or cross-examination that he had told of all the conversations between himself and Dalton, the court asked for and read the lengthy transcript of the story told by Behan, who was the first witness for the prosecution.

After the reading Judge Brown stated that he had not been able to find any statement of Behan to the effect that the latter had stated all the conversations that had taken place between him and Dalton.

He then asked Behan if the latter had said in his examination that he had told all that was said in the case.

Fairall objected, but the objection was overruled.

DENIAL BY BEHAN.

Behan replied that he had not said that he had told of all that had been said in the talks between himself and the defendant.

Hynes then propounded several questions to which Behan replied, denying that he had ever said to Dalton that he (the witness) was sorry because of the dirty campaign that had been made against him; that he would like to help the defendant; that he had asked Dalton if he (Behan) could be of any assistance financially, and finally that Dalton had said to him that if he (the defendant) "could raise $5000 it would tide him over."

The jury was given another intermission, lasting an hour and fifteen minutes, and Judge Brown called counsel for both sides into conference with him in his chambers.

After the reconvening of the court Behan denied to Hynes that at any time he had told Dalton that President Bourn would give him (the defendant) $5000.

He also denied that he had said that Eastman was to take the place of Bourn in the matter of loaning Dalton $5000, and that Eastman would take care of the defendant in the matter of offering him the loan.

DENIES SPEAKING OF "LOAN."

Behan declared the word "loan" had never been used in any of the conversations between himself and Dalton.

All these answers were excepted to by the attorney for the defendant.

Vice-President Eastman was the next witness. He was examined along the same lines, and especially with regard to whether or not Dalton had ever given him a note for $5000 loan or for any other sum.

He denied that he ever had a conversation with Dalton about a loan.

"Did you," asked Hynes, "on May 18, in Barnum's restaurant or any other place or under any circumstance ever present to Henry P. Dalton, assessor of Alameda county, a promissory note for $5000?"

"I did not," was the reply.

"Did Henry P. Dalton, assessor for Alameda county, in Barnum's restaurant in this city, on the 18th day of May of this year, or at any other place or under other circumstances, sign in your presence or otherwise and deliver to you a promissory note in the sum of $5000, or any other sum?"

"He did not," replied Eastman.

FAIRALL CROSS-EXAMINED.

The witness was then cross-examined by Fairall.

"Wasn't there something said about 'borrowing' money?" asked Fairall.

"Not in that way," replied Eastman. "I said that I might have to borrow the money with which to meet the demand that Dalton had made on me. I told him I would have to use my own personal means."

"Didn't he say that he would pay the money back?" continued Fairall. "Didn't he say that he would give it back?"

Eastman was silent for a moment and then replied:

"He did say that if he were unable to reduce the assessment of the riparian rights of the Spring Valley Water Company, because someone had discovered and protested against the reduced assessment: 'I will pay you back.'"

Recess until 1:30 o'clock.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

This afternoon the jury in the case was not called into court until ten minutes after 2 o'clock. Mrs. Kennedy, the mother-in-law of the defendant, who was absent this morning, resumed her accustomed place, and beside her sat her sister, rMs. O'Keefe. Mrs. Dalton, who was missed from the court in the morning, took her seat beside the defendant.

Counsel for each side submitted to the court rough drafts of instructions to the jury, which were considered by the court.

There was no stipulation between counsel as to the time to be allowed by each side in addressing the jury. The district attorney said he felt that there was a possibility of the case being given to the jury tomorrow night. It was decided that Assistant District Attorney Hynes would open the speaking for the prosecution, that Attorney Fairall for the defense would follow tomorrow morning and that District Attorney Donahue would close.

HYNES' ARGUMENT.

Attorney Hynes, in his opening, stated that the law had been violated and that the district attorney had aided in the procurement of evidence in the case as he would have acted even if it was his own brother who was in the position of the defendant.

He then referred to the theories of defense which had been hinted at and stated that the prosecution had been unable during the progress of the case to determine upon which peg the defense proposed to hang its hat. Referring to two of these, Hynes said:

"It was not till Cotton, the assistant cashier of the Bank of California, brought from his pocket the flat containing the number of the bank notes which had been received by Dalton, that the defense admitted that that was the same money that had been supplied by the bank which had been carefully checked off and identified.

"They had hoped that the prosecution might have failed in some way or other to connect this money with the money given by Eastman to Dalton under the conditions related by the witness.

"Driven to the corner, with no hope of escape, they had to recourse to the fabrication, the terrible story, the horrible tale told yesterday afternoon, when the wife of the defendant was not present to her the story that the money had been borrowed by the defendant."

was on fire, fore and aft. The vessel's fire apparatus put out the flames.

"After he had pulled away into the open Captaian Meyers rounded to for an hour and a half, until danger from flying sparks forced him to steam into the lake. By remaining he was able to pick up a fish boat containing several persons. He went 150 miles out of his course to take us to Port Huron, and he and his crew gave us everything they possessed, their beds and their food. There were in all about 265 persons aboard, thirty of whom were nursing children.

HEMMED BY FLAMES.

"When we left the dock between 200 and 300 people were on it, cut off from shore and with the tramway overhead afire. There was no escape for them unless they jumped into the water. I saw Peter Duval struggle down the tramway with his aged father on his back, but the flames forced him back and I cannot tell whether he was saved. I saw a woman with two children in arms rush out on the dock. One of the children fell into the water and a young man jumped in after it and rescued it.

"When the fire started the wind was blowing about fifty miles an hour from the southwest. Then it shifted to the westward and the flames completely swept the towns. Two hours afterward it shifted to the northeast and swept the blaze back over the ground it already had traveled, licking up the whole of Oscoda and Au Sabel City and township for a radius of three miles."

REFUGEES REACH MONTO.

TORONTO, Ont., July 13.—It is stated by one of the owners of the best-known of the Porcupine mines that the financial losses are grossly overestimated. A train from North Bay arrived here today bringing twenty-two refugees from Porcupine, mainly Toronto people. W. R. Rigg of Kansas City, one of the party, said:

"Many people were saved at the Hollinger property. That place was like an oasis in the desert. A large area had been cleared by the owners and they had water pumps which were saved. I am sure there were about 400 refugees from all directions there besides the Hollinger employes."

All the party agreed that the estimate that 300 lives had been lost was not exaggerated and that at least 200 had perished in Porcupine Lake.

At South Porcupine 600 sought refuge in the lake. Of these 200, many of them women with children in arms, lost their lives, according to a private message received here from W. A. Carlton of Haileybury, a prospector. Boats and canoes in which they had put off from the shores were upset by squalls.

West Dome representatives in Toronto have received telegrams giving the total death rate at that place at 25.

DEATH LIST INCREASING.

DETROIT, July 13.—The forest fire situated throughout northern Michigan appears to be generally improved today, with the wind dropping below ten miles an hour in most sections. The village of Legrand, however, in Cheboyan county, is reported surrounded by flames, with communication cut off. Hillman, in Alpena county, is also said to be threatened.

It seems inevitable that the death list will continue to increase as returns are received from isolated districts.

At Au Sable and Oscoda a patrol of the Lake Huron beach has been organized to search for the bodies of the victims who have been drowned when driven into the lake by the flames.

Women and children stood in the lake in some instances three and four hours, submerging themselves when the heat became too intense for endurance.

Reports received today from the regions between Alpena and Cheboygan indicate that the town of Millersburg was almost entirely destroyed and half of Tower is gone.

TRAPPED BY FIRE.

TORONTO, July 13.—More details of death and suffering with those also of numerous miraculous escapes were learned today as refugees reached points of safety from the fire-swept sections. Many have died in isolation.

Miners huddled in shafts have perished. Fires have overwhelmed whole families and only the charred ruins of their homes remain behind.

Men, women and children and domestic and wild animals, standing together for hours in swamps, while the flames raged over the countryside, have, in some cases, sunk at last to death, partly suffocated and then drowned. Others have weathered the fiery storm, standing in streams and putting out into the lakes in boats and canoes.

200 DEAD AT PORCUPINE.

TORONTO, Ont., July 13.—Superintendent Black of the Temiskaning and Northern Ontario Railroad at North Bay, states that the fires in the Porcupine district are now under control.

A. D. Miles, constructing engineer for the Great Dominion mine, states that the local loss of life is 200.

VILLAGERS SAVE TOWN.

WIRELESS ORDERS HELD FARIA IN LEASH

Captain Declares He Would Have Saved Passengers On Own Accord.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 13.—"If you had been aboard the Santa Rosa, without wireless orders, what would you have done?" was asked Captain J. O. Faria by United States Inspector John Bulger.

"I would have got my passengers off before I attempted to save my ship," replied Captain Faria today, at the investigation of the wreck of the United States inspectors, when he frankly admitted that but for orders from this city his first action would have been to save his passengers when the ship was beached.

Captain Faria's admission was but one of the sensations deduced at today's session of the investigation into the Santa Rosa wreck.

It was also announced by the United States district attorney that the United States government is arranging to bring twelve of the Santa Rosa's passengers here to the hearing, from Los Angeles, at the government's expense.

These persons, it is stated, will endeavor to throw light upon the real responsibility in connection with the wreck.

It will be endeavored to bring out, by their testimony, whose carelessness or incompetency caused the vessel to be beached in the first place.

OPERATOR TESTIFIES.

Barney Frankel, wireless operator aboard the Santa Rosa when it was beached, was the principal witness at this morning's session.

Asked about the messages he received and sent, he declared his first was the famous "S. O. S." call for help.

The first message he received from the San Francisco office of the Pacific Coast Steamship Company, Frankel declared, read:

"Transfer the passengers to the first vessel which comes to rescue, or allow them to remain aboard at their own option."

This message, Frankel declares, was given to Captain Faria.

"Did you receive such a message from the wireless room?" Inspector Bulger asked, turning to Captain Faria, sitting near by.

The captain declared he was positive no such message had been delivered to him.

WHAT'S THE PRICE.

The very first wireless message sent from the San Francisco office, Captain Faria asserted, was the one ordering him to inquire "the price per head or lump sum" which the captain of the rescuing vessel would demand for taking off the Santa Rosa's passengers.

This message was delivered to Captain Faria at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon, declared Operator Frankel, long after the first one had been received.

Operator Frankel, however, was forced to admit that his recollection of the messages was purely verbal, as all his wireless records were lost.

The tug Sea River was the first vessel to answer the call for help sent from the Santa Rosa, according to Operator Frankel.

"The officer in command of the Sea Rover," said Frankel today, "said he would have to tow a barge he had with him to a safe anchor before he could assist in pulling off the Santa Rosa.

"This was at 7 o'clock in the morning, off Point Arguello.

"If the tug had helped the Santa Rosa then, the ship could have been pulled off the beach by 9 o'clock, when high tide was reached," asserted Frankel.

"Instead the tug steamed away with the barge in tow and din't return until late in the afternoon."

The tug Sea Rover is the property of the Standard Oil Company.

"Didn't the captain of the tug offer to take off the Santa Rosa's passengers free of charge?" asked Inspector Bulger.

"That is a lie," stoutly asserted Frankel.

The tug, so it came out, landed its barge at Port Harford before returning to the assistance of the Santa Rosa.

Later, so he declared, he caught a wireless message from the San Francisco office of the Standard Oil Company ordering the tug to go to the assistance of the Santa Rosa.

Chief Engineer J. M. Miller was also on the stand today. He told of his own efforts to save the passengers by assisting to rig up the jacobs ladder.

THROUGH SERVICE TO HAYWARD IS PLANNED

Quicker Schedule for Oakland and Richmond Run Being Arranged.

Announcement was made to the city council this morning by William R. Alberger, vice president of the Oakland Traction Company, that the company will tomorrow install through service cars to Hayward, San Leandro and Elmhurst on the Twelfth street line during the rush hours of the day—morning and evening. Vice President Alberger also gave notice of the intention of the company to install a quicker service between Oakland and Richmond as soon as the line could be double tracked.

The announcement was made that the city council might be apprised of the intention of the company and give the project its approval. The new service was given consideration, but was not formally approved by the council. The question as to whether the company is within its legal rights in the matter was referred to City Attorney Ben F. Woolner.

The new service has been installed as the result of numerous petitions from the residents of the outlying communities for such a change. It will be conducted in such a manner that it will in no way interfere with the local service. The plan is to put on the through cars during the rush hours of the day.

TO USE DOUBLE CARS.

It is probable that the company will use double cars coupled together during the rush hours of the day for this service, and this matter was also laid before the council for consideration. It was held by Mayor Mott, Commissioner F. C. Turner and others of the council, that such as service would undoubtedly be for the benefit of the city, and should be encouraged, unless it should be found to conflict in any way with the provisions and terms of the franchise held by the company. Speaking to the council, Vice President Alberger said:

"For some time we have been petitioned to provide a better service to Hayward. For a time we found this impossible, but we recently ordered sixty new modern cars for this service. Twenty of these have arrived, and others are arriving at the rate of ten a week. We feel that we can now take care of the outlying districts.

"It is our intention to begin tomorrow running special cars at the rush hours of the morning from Hayward into Oakland. These will stop at Hayward, San Leandro and Elmhurst, but will not stop for local passengers this side of those points. At night, beginning at about 5:10 and continuing while the heavy traffic continues at close intervals, we will run special cars in the opposite direction, which will be through cars until they get to Elmhurst, San Leandro and Hayward.

"EASTMAN LENT ME $5000," SAYS DALTON

DENIES HE WAS BRIBED

Behan Said to Have Negotiated Loan

County Assessor Henry P. Dalton, accused of accepting a $5000 bribe from the Spring Valley Water Company, declared yesterday that he received the money as a loan. His testimony in full is as follows:

Mr. Wyman. Where do you reside, Mr. Dalton?

A. 326 Belview avenue, Oakland.

Q. What official position, if any, do you hold in this county?

A. Assessor.

Q. How long have you been such?

A. Seventeen years, this January.

Q. You were such in 1909?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. In 1910?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Up to and including this time, in 1911?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know A. E. Shaw, at one time attorney for the Spring Valley Water Company?

A. I do.

Q. State whether or not in the year 1909 you had a conversation with Mr. Shaw with reference to the assessment upon the property of the Spring Valley Water Company.

(Objection; objection overruled; exception.)

A. I did.

Q. When and where?

(Objection; objection overruled.)

A. In the assessor's office in this building, along about the middle or the latter part of June and again in July.

Q. State, if you remember, what that conversation was.

(Objection; objection overruled.)

A. Mr. Shaw called on me as assessor of Alameda county—of this county—he representing the Spring Valley Water Company, and argued with me as to the value——

A. (Continuing.) He wanted that I should reduce the assessment on the riparian rights of the Spring Valley property; he spoke about the riparian rights above Niles, as being a double assessment, and consequently an illegal assessment; I had assessed them at one million five hundred thousand dollars, and he wanted that struck off entirely; he contended that they owned practically all the land, and that the land was assessed upon its value, in accordance with the surrounding lands, and consequently the assessment on the riparian rights—on that property—was a double assessment; I told him that I did not regard it that way; that I believed in the justice of the assessment until the courts decided otherwise, and that as long as I was assessor I should assess it; he talked about riparian rights below Niles, which I had assessed at one million five hundred thousand dollars; he wanted that reduced sixty per cent about—about five hundred and thirty thousand dollars; he represented to me the cost to the Spring Valley Water Company of those lands—those rights; I told him that I could not see any reason why I should reduce the assessment; that I believed that the riparian rights of the Spring Valley Water Company in this county were far more valuable than the physical property; they were taking the water from this town over to San Francisco, and were depopulating that section from which the water was taken; they were destroying the value of the land on account of the way the water was being taken away; that but for that taking the water away from the lands on this side of the bay the land would be much more productive, and there would be much larger population than there was at that time, by reason of what they were doing—he argued with me for some time——

INSISTED, SAYS DALTON.

A. (Continuing.) He talked with me for some time, and asked and insisted that I reduce those assessments in accordance with his ideas of the value of the property; I refused to do it, and I told him that his recourse was the Board of Equalization; if he went before the Board of Equalization I would fight like hell, like the devil.

Q. That was the expression you used at that time?

A. Yes; I would fight like hell.

Q. Did you have any further conversation with him at this time?

(Objection; objection overruled.)

A. I did. After he filed his application with the Board of Equalization he came into the assessor's office, and took the matter up with me again; I told him my position was the same as that I had mentioned before; if he insisted upon going before the Board of Equalization he would have to fight there; that I would do everything in my power to stop him; then, after talking for some little time, he said: "Mr. Dalton, if you are going to take that position I will withdraw the application before the Board of Equalization for a reduction of the assessment, so far as the riparian rights are concerned," and he did not appear before the board to fight out the riparian rights.

Q. Was that all the conversation you had with Mr. Shaw during the year 1909?

A. As near as I can recollect, it is.

KNOWS BEHAN AND LAWRENCE.

Q. Do you know Mr. Behan and Mr. Lawrence of the Spring Valley Water Company?

A. I do.

Q. Those are the gentlemen who testified here for the prosecution?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. State whether or not you had any conversation with Mr. Lawrence of the Spring Valley Water Company during the year 1910, with reference to the assessment on the properties of the Spring Valley Water Company?

A. I did.

Q. When and whore?

A. In the assessor's office, in this building, during the months of—the latter part of April and May and June. In the latter part of April Mr. Lawrence came to the office and argued the matter of the assessment on the Spring Valley Water Company's properties—he insisted——

A. (Continuing). He represented to me that the Spring Valley Water Company's riparian rights were assessed at a figure altogether out of proportion to the value of the property. He stated to me that the property had cost the Spring Valley Water Company below Niles about $286,000, and wanted that I should take $286,000 as a basis for the assessment on that portion of the riparian rights below Niles; I was assessing the property below Niles at one million five hundred thousand dollars; he told me that, but I saw no justice in his arguments; I saw no reason to change the assessment; as a matter of fact, I believed that the assessment should be increased, rather than decreased; I went over with him practically the same arguments I had used with Mr. Shaw the previous year. Mr. Lawrence, after talking this matter over for some time, said to me: "Mr. Dalton, Mr. Behan will be over in a few weeks and you can take this matter up with him," and I said: "Mr. Lawrence, I am willing to take the matter up with him or any representative of the Spring Valley Water Company at any time that will suit their convenience."

CALL AT OFFICE.

Q. Subsequently during that year did you see Mr. Lawrence?

A. I did.

Q. When and where?

A. Mr. Lawrence and Mr. Behan called at the assessor's office and took up the matter of the assessment on the property of the Spring Valley Water Company — by the matter, the discussion on the riparian rights ,particularly, that is what they were complaining of; they did not complain about the other assessment; there were some places in the other assessment they complained of, for instance, they complained about the assessment on the improvements not being on the property at that time, that I was assessing; there were some improvements that had been assessed, such as houses, etc. on the property, barns, after they had been torn down and had been removed from the property, that they were still being carried, and I told them anything of that kind I would be very glad to talk over and fix up; that when we came to riparian rights we were so far apart on that that it was no use to talk.

Q. Was that about the substance of your conversation?

A. Yes.

Q. Later on in that year, did you have any further conversation with Mr. Lawrence or Mr. Behan, or both of them?

A. I did.

Q. When and where?

A. In the Assessor's office. Mr. Behan came to the office, with a gentleman from the Spring Valley Water Company's office, whose name I don't recall; I was introduced to him at the time; I know he was with the corporation, something to do with the company, but I would not state as to what his official position was, because as I say, I don't recall his name or position in the company. They came in and talked over the assessment on the property of the Spring Valley Water Company; and at that time there was an engagement made, whereby I was to take a trip in an automobile with them to view the property.

MEETING POSTPONED.

Q. Was that engagement subsequently kept?

A. It was later on. The time set for the first engagement was postponed two or three times. I think I was unable to go and then they were unable to go, so that later on we got together and made the trip.

Q. Who was with you on that trip?

A. Mr. Behan, Mr. Robinson, Mr. Lawrence and myself.

Q. When you made that trip, where did you go?

A. We went to Pleasanton, view the wells and the property at Pleasanton, the tower there, the water tower. I think they were at work on the water tower. Then we went along over to Sunol, or just outside of Sunol, where they have the water tower there now, that was under construction at that time. We got out of the machine and had lunch in a cabin or building there; then after lunch we viewed the water tower that was in the course of construction, after which we looked along the concrete conduit, then along the gravel bed; they have a place there for the water before it passes off. After viewing that property we returned to the machine and went down through Sunol into this place this side of Sunol, where they catch up the water for the pipe lines, and viewed that and returned over to Niles by way of the Mission San Jose road.

IN JESTING MOOD.

Q. At any time during this trip was any conversation held between you and Mr. Behan and Mr. Lawrence?

A. There was. Mr. Behan and Mr. Lawrence, Mr. Robinson and myself were in conversation a great portion of the time. At that talk Mr. Behan mentioned that the corporation considered the assessment was unjust, and illegal, the assessment that had been put upon their riparian rights. I joshed with them during nearly the whole trip. I joshed and said that I thought that their riparian rights were too low, when they had depopulated that section of the country—that they were driving families out of that section, a school district, by taking the water away from that section of the country and impoverishing the production of the land; that the land was not as valuable as if the water had been used for agricultural purposes, and showed them that I thought that the assessment ought to be increased on the riparian rights instead of decreased. We talked that over for some time and I expressed myself that way, that the assessment should be increased rather than decreased, because of the depopulated school district, and the impoverishment to the land on account of taking the water away from the county.

Q. I will ask you whether there were any figures stated, as to the riparian rights. Did they mention their opinion of the amount?

A. It was their idea, both Mr. Behan and Mr. Lawrence, that the riparian rights below Niles cost the company $266,000 and they thought I should take that as a basis for the assessment, at sixty per cent of the cost price to them.

Q. Have you given us about the substance of that conversation?

A. After we arrived at Niles, just before we got into the town of Niles, we went up to the Spring Valley property there, they call the screen house, a machine through which the water runs. We went up and watced the water flow through the pipes. There is a square—a rectangle, rather—where the water goes into the pipes. We watched the water flow through the pipes for some time and talked about the assessment on the property—the property they had there. I told them that, after viewing the property, it looked to me far more valuable property than I considered it before. I said I saw no reason why they should ask for a reduction of the assessment on the property, but rather, an increase; that they were not entitled to a reduction, I considered, and that if they were not satisfied with my assessment, they might appeal to the Board of Equalization.

Q. Is that about all of that conversation?

A. Yes, that is about all at that time.

Q. During that year did you have any further conversation with Mr. Behan and Mr. Lawrence?

A. I did.

PLAN SECOND TRIP.

Q. When and where?

A. After we returned to Oakland, Mr. Lawrence was driving the machine and he took me home, at 326 Beleview avenue. Mrs. Dalton came out to the machine and I introduced her to Mr. Lawrence and Mr. Behan. She said that she thought it was rather selfish to make the trip without taking her along. Mr. Lawrence spoke up and said "We would be glad to have you along. We can take another trip and we will arrange to take you on the next one." She said "Very well, I will be very glad to go." They left me at my home, Mr. Robinson and Mr. Lawrence and Mr. Behan.

Q. Subsequently, did you make another trip.

A. We did; we made an engagement at that time to make a trip the following week, as I remember it. Something came up that interfered with our making the trip at that time. It was postponed again as I recall it, another week. The second trip was taken, as I recall it, within two weeks of the first trip.

Q. You subsequently made that trip?

A. We did; Mr. Lawrence and Mr. Behan came to the Court House and got us.

Q. By us you mean?

A. Mr. Robinson, Mrs. Dalton and myself; Mr. Behan and Mrs. Behan, Mr. Lawrence with the man driving the machine, and he was in the party and Mrs. Behan was in the party.

Q. Where did you go that trip?

A. We went from here to Dumbarton Point, where the Spring Valley Water Company's pipe line crosses, just before it goes into the bay, and we viewed the pipe line at that point, and after remaining there about half an hour or so we went on the other side, into San Mateo county, through San Jose.

ARGUE FOR REDUCTION.

Q. On that trip was there any conversation held between yourself and Mr. Behan and Mr. Lawrence?

A. There was. Mr. Behan and Mr. Lawrence were arguing for a reduction of their riparian rights assessment; they said they felt I would give them a good fair assessment; that their assessment was unreasonable and they did not believe I was an unreasonable man; they felt I would give them the reduction; I said, gentlemen, I have made up my mind, as I told you on the previous trip; I won't reduce the assessment; if you are not satisfied with my assessment your recourse is with the Board of Equalization.

Q. Is that about the substance of that conversation at that time?

A. That was about what took place; it was talked over a great many times on the trip; we were out all day on this trip as we were on the previous trip. We left here about 8 or 9 o'clock in the morning and we did not get back until 6 or 7 that evening.

Q. Subsequently you—

A. (Intg.) When we got down to the pumping station, on the other side, in San Mateo county, we got out of the machine and viewed the works there; that, of course, was outside of my jurisdiction, but they were anxious to show me the plant there, at their property, that they have there. Just before getting into the machine Mr. Lawrence and Mr. Behan took us over to the lakes in San Mateo. On that trip the man driving the machine was very, so very reckless with us, that Mrs. Dalton became very nervous and she insisted in going on to San Francisco, not going to the balance of the property, that was agreed in by all of them. As we left for home Mr. Lawrence got out of the machine. We left there and then went on to San Francisco, where they took us, Mr. Robinson, Mrs. Dalton, Mr. Behan and Mrs. Behan and myself. We went down to Market street, where Mrs. Behan and Mr. Behan left us and sent their machine over on the other side, and the driver took us:

Q. Subsequently, in the year 1910, did you have any further conversation with Mr. Behan and Mr. Lawrence with reference to this assessment?

A. I did. At that time Mr. Behan left us—before Mr. Lawrence left it was understood, or at least they state it, that they would be over to see us the following week. The following week, it was within ten days, any way, Mr. Behan and Mr. Lawrence came into the Assessor's office and we took up the matter, and I said it was no use to talk it over any further with me; I had made up my mind, and if you are not satisfied your recourse is with the Board of Equalization. That was in about the middle of June, as I recall it.

Q. Mr. Dalton, at that time was there anything said about the cost of the riparian rights?

A. Yes, sir. I am quite sure every time we had the cost, when riparian rights were brought up, that was their strongest argument, the cost was $286,000. I was assessing their other property at sixty per cent of the cost price, and they felt and insisted that I should assess the riparian rights at sixty per cent of the cost of those rights to them, below Niles. They insisted all the time on making the assessment on the riparian rights above Niles at cost to them. They held that they did not have anything there subject to assessment except the property, and they wanted the property assessed, and the riparian right assessment taken off. They said that the water courses went with the land and they held that the assessment was an illegal one.

MEET IN OFFICE.

Q. If you recall, state whether or not at any of these meetings at your office, during the year 1910, any figuring was done?

A. At the last meeting in the middle of June there was some figuring done by Mr. Behan.

Q. That was in your office?

A. In my office, in the Assessor's office.

Q. What, if any, kind of figuring was done?

A. Mr. Behan—I don't know what he figured—while we were talking he had a piece of paper and made some figures on that paper. What those figures were I don't know; I could not state as to what the figures were. I know he figured.

Q. Was that all of the conversation that occurred in 1910, at that time?

A. Before they left me on the last meeting, they said to me: Mr. Dalton, we realize we took up this assessment rather late with you; next year we want to take it up earlier and see if we can't show you and prove to you that you are wrong in assessing the riparian rights. I said: Gentlemen, call and take up the matter at any time. They said at this time that they would be there early and wanted to have the matter talked over early in the season?.

Q. At any time during any meeting during the year 1910, did you, or did you not, state to Mr. Behan or Mr. Lawrence that you would reduce the assessment on the riparian rights?

A. I certainly did not; I told them all the time, instead of a reduction there should have been an increase on the riparian rights.

Q. Now, you have related all the time the meetings and discussions with reference to the riparian rights with Mr. Behan and Mr. Lawrence in 1910?

A. As far as I can recollect at this time, I have.

Q. Now, coming down to this year, state whether or not you saw Mr. Behan or Mr. Lawrence with reference to riparian rights?

MAP PREPARED.

A. Before I answer that question I would like to state that the Spring Valley Water Company prepared a map of their properties and filed it in the Assessor's office. The date upon that map is March 1, 1910. That map is on file in the Assessor's office at this time. That was brought there and filed by the representatives of the Spring Valley Water Company.

Q. Now, you may answer the other question. (Question read.)

A. Along about the first of March, of this year, Mr. Lawrence came to the assessor's office and took up the matter of the assessment of the Spring Valley Water Company's property; he told me at that time that their position was practically the same as it was the preceding year; he felt I was assessing their riparian rights too high; that the riparian rights below Niles cost the company $286,000, and he thought I ought to make the assessment sixty per cent of $286,000; I laughed at him and told him it was ridiculous; I could not see any reason to make a change or reduction in the riparian rights; I said that that will practically reduce the assessment a million and a half on the riparian rights below Niles; I also said, "Mr. Lawrence, your rights should have been raised a million and a half instead of reduced a million and a half." He said he would be able to do something this year on the riparian rights; I realized that we were late in taking up the matter last year; I said "Mr. Lawrence, my position this year is the same, it has not been changed." I felt that the riparian rights were assessed at a very small figure; that is practically all the conversation I had with Mr. Lawrence this day. Then he said I will be over to see you again; I am going to stay with you and see if I can't fix it up.

Q. State whether or not you did see him subsequently to that time?

A. I have no recollection of seeing Mr. Lawrence until I saw him on the witness stand.

REPRESENTED COMPANY.

Q. State whether or not at that time you said to Mr. Lawrence, are you the tax agent for the Spring Valley Water Company?

A. I did not say anything of the kind, because he was the tax agent, on the previous year; they had been there and talked this over, and I knew he represented the Spring Valley Water Company. Mr. Behan was. There was no reason why I should ask him if he was the tax agent.

Q. Will you state whether or not you said to Mr. Lawrence, What will it mean to you if I reduce this assessment?

A. I did not say anything of the kind.

Q. There was not any conversation of that character between you and Mr. Lawrence at that meeting?

A. Absolutely no.

Q. Subsequently to the visit of Mr. Lawrence in 1911, did you see any other person representing the Spring Valley Water Company, with reference to the assessment?

A. I did, along about the middle of March Mr. Behan came over and took up the matter of the assessment of the Spring Valley Water property. He had a portfolio with him, and he had three of four letters from assessors in the southern part of the state. That came along a little later. When I arrived at the assessor's office, as I recollect it, he was in conversation with Mr. Robinson, after I arrived, we shook hands and passed the time of day, as is usually done. Mr. Robinson and Mr. Behan were discussing the effect of the constitutional amendment No. one, which had been adopted by the people of the state at the preceding election in November, which separates the state from the county tax.

Q. Will you state what was said in that discussion?

A. We had gone into it quite thoroughly. That the amendment had been passed, and it separated state taxation from county taxes on corporations, took them out of the county assessment. We talked of the effect of this. It took the assessment and separated it, excepted in the case of bonded indebtedness incurred before the amendment went into effect, and the special tax for the Panama-San Francisco exposition tax. During the discussions it was said as we all knew, that the water companies were, in fact, the only corporations assessed by the county assessors. As I recall, before we got through with that discussion, Mr. Robinson left the room; that left Mr. Behan and myself in the room together; and then he brought up the question, that is the taxes upon the rights of the Spring Valley Water Company. He went on and told me that I was the only assessor in the state that assessed the riparian rights. He took two or three or four letters out of his portfolio and read them to me, they were from assessors in different portions of the state.

RIPARIAN RIGHTS.

Q. What were the letters with reference to?

A. With reference to assessment on riparian rights.

Q. Do you remember their contents?

A. One of them said he did not assess riparian rights, but he put the assessment on for the land that carried the water with it, and that was sufficient to cover the riparian rights.

Q. Go ahead with the conversation.

A. We talked on further and he was insisting that I was altogether out of reason; he wanted that I should reduce the assessment; I told him I did not see any reason why I should; I felt that the riparian rights of the Spring Valley Water Company was the most valuable property that they had here; that the course of other assessors would not influence me, it did not influence me; that they had been assessed and I would certainly continue to assess the riparian rights; we talked on along about the assessment for some little time, and finally we drifted from the assessment, and he said, "Mr. Dalton, I have watched your last political fight with considerable interest." He said, "I was awfully sorry to see the dirty fight they were making against you; I watched the papers very carefully." He made the remark at that conversation, that it was very fortunate for me if had saved some checks, because it would have been a little difficult for me to explain the transaction with a man named Blackburn; I told him that I considered myself very fortunate for having those checks to explain this; the checks explained themselves; there was some further conversation. We carried on a general conversation along that line for some few minutes. After we had talked for some little time on that we drifted back to the assessment on the Spring Valley Water Company again. As I remember it, it was practically in line, along the lines I have told you; I said to him I could see no reason why a reduction should be made in the assessment on the riparian rights; he then said to me, after we had closed the talk on the assessment on the Spring Valley property, he said to me, Mr. Dalton, your campaign must have been rather expensive one; we felt that we would like to have helped you out on your campaign expenses; I said I don't know how you could have done that, something to that effect, I can't just exactly remember—recollect the words I used; I said there is no way to do that, I have always made my fight alone, I never have had any help, I had to depend upon my own resources, and he said it must have been expensive, and I said to him politics are not as expensive as mining, or a mining campaign, and he said, are you interested in mining, and I said yes, laughingly, I have two or three holes in the ground. I have sunk considerable money in mining; I said, mining is a rather fascinating business, or industry, I said something to this effect—it is gambling, and sometimes a man gets to his financial end, or the end of it, or on the rocks, before he realizes it; and he said, "Mr. Dalton, can I assist you financially?" and I said, I don't know how you can," I said. He said, "I have a friend who I think would be glad to assist you," and I said, "Does that mean the Spring Valley Water Company?" and he said, "No—not by any means." We talked along. I can't recall the exact language used, and finally said to me, "How much money would you like to have?" and I said, "If I had five thousand dollars it would tide me over in pretty good shape," and he said, "I think I can arrange it for you." I said, "Does that mean Spring Valley?" I said, "That means Spring Valley will give me five thousand dollars if I would reduce the assessment?" and he said "No—we are talking as friends." Before that he asked about Mrs. Dalton; how Mrs. Dalton had been getting along, and I asked how Mrs. Behan was, as we closed up our talk on assessments, and he said he was satisfied that Mr. Bourn would loan me the five thousand dollars.

"BOURN IS GENEROUS."

I said "Mr. Behan, that means Spring Valley," and he said "No, Mr. Bourn is a generous sort of a man, and I am satisfied that I can help you out."

That was about the conversation that took place at that time. I had an engagement with Mrs. Dalton for 12 o'clock on the 14th inst., between Clay and Jefferson streets, and it was then getting to be about 12 o'clock, and I said to Mr. Behan, "I have got to meet Mrs. Dalton at 12," or "I have an engagement to meet her at 12 o'clock. Will you walk up the street with me?" and he said "yes," and we walked up Broadway to Twelfth street, then west on Twelfth street to Clay, where I left Mr. Behan, and a few minutes afterwards I met Mrs. Dalton.

Q. Subsequently, did you have another conversation with him?

A. At that time Mr. Behan, just as he left me, he said, "Mr. Dalton, I will see you in a week or ten days," something to that effect. I won't say positively what he said, "I will see you in a few days." You asked me about a conversation?

Q. I did, yes?

A. I did. During that first conversation with Mr. Behan I told him I was going to the hospital to have an operatio non one of my fingers, after an automobile accident that I had in the mountains a year and a half previously to that, that I had had one of my fingers torn off, the tip torn open, and in sewing it up they had cut the tendons that operated the end of by finger. I had consulted two or three physicians and surgeons and they told me they could cut the finger and pull the tendons of the finger back in place, and I told Mr. Behan I was going to the hospital to have the operation, and that I did not know just how long I would be in the hospital, and that perhaps it would be better for him to call me up before he came over, that is about the conversation that took place at that time.

HEARD AGAIN.

Q. Did you subsequently hear from Mr. Behan?

A. I did.

Q. When and where?

A. In the latter part of March, Mr. Robinson called me up at my home. I was laid up, and he said Mr. Behan called up and wanted to make an appointment, and I telephoned to Mr. Behan and told him I would see him the next day. He came over the next day and I met him in the assessor's office. This was in the latter part of March. He said to me—I think we passed the time of day—talked matters over, that he was pleased to see me, or something to that effect; that he had been able to assist me or serve me, or something to that effect, along those lines.

Q. Did you have any further conversation there at that time?

A. We talked there at that time, on the assessment upon the Spring Valley Water Company again. I said to him again, "Behan, does this mean, if I accept this, you expect me to make a reduction on the assessment?" and he said "No, Dalton, this is a personal matter and I am glad to do it for you."

Q. Any further conversation there at all?

A. As far as I remember, just the social—along social lines. We talked of the second meeting I had with him in the latter part of March or the first of April.

Q. At that time was there any arrangements made for you to meet Mr. Behan again, or hear from him. Just what arrangement was made if any?

A. Mr. Behan told me—that is he would let me know—he would make arrangements for me within a few days.

Q. Did you subsequently hear from Mr. Behan?

A. Not until I heard from him on the telephone.

ENGAGEMENT MADE.

Q. State what the conversation was?

A. Just simply to make arrangements, engagement, nothing said further over the telephone, except to make an engagement.

Q. You made an engagement, did you?

A. Yes, where I was to meet him and where he was to meet me.

Q. Subsequently did you meet him or hear from him?

A. Along in the latter part of April, or the first of May, Mr. Behan came to the Assessor's office. I met him and talked with him. He said, "Mr. Dalton, I am sorry to disappoint you in Mr. Bourn. Mr. Bourn has gone to Europe. He has turned this matter over to Mr. Eastman," and I said, "Who is Mr. Eastman," and he said that Mr. Eastman was the vice-president and manager of the Spring Valley Water Company, and I said "This is Spring Valley again; this is Spring Valley," or something to that effect, and he said "Mr. Eastman will take care of this matter for Mr. Bourn." He said Mr. Eastman would call on me and assist me, and he went on to fix an arrangement for me to meet Mr. Eastman, made an engagement for me to meet Mr. Eastman. He suggested that I go to San Francisco to meet him and I said, "I would be very glad to," and he suggested we go to lunch, and have lunch, and I said yes, I have no objection, but that I would like Mr. Eastman to be coming over here, preferably to that of my going to San Francisco, and he said, "Mr. Eastman is a busy man and he can't very well come over to your office." He made an engagement for me to meet Mr. Eastman the next day at Jack's restaurant in San Francisco.

Q. On Sacramento street?

A. On Sacramento street.

Q. Subsequently did you meet Mr. Eastman?

A. I did meet Mr. Eastman the next day.

MEETING IN RESTAURANT.

Q. Where?

A. At Jack's restaurant, in San Francisco, on Sacramento street, at half past 12, or a few minutes after half past 12.

Q. Relate the circumstances of your meeting with Mr. Eastman?

A. I met Mr. Behan on Sacramento street near Jack's restaurant. We went into Jack's restaurant, in the main dining room, and Mr. Behan inquired for Mr. Eastman and there he was informed that he was upstairs. We went upstairs and Mr. Behan introduced me to Mr. Eastman.

Q. Did Mr. Behan remain?

A. He did not.

Q. Was there any reason given why he did not remain?

A. He said he had some matters to attend to, and that he would return to his office.

Q. At your meeting with Mr. Eastman did you have any conversation?

A. I did. Mr. Eastman, when I went into the room, was seated at a table. I sat down opposite and he gave the order for lunch. We talked about general occurrences of the day; we talked about the primary election that had just taken place in Oakland a few days previous. I think we talked about J. Stitt Wilson having been elected mayor of Berkeley. He told me he thought Mr. Wilson's success depended upon the posters he had gotten out, by Mr. Wilson, that he has posted up in San Francisco, or distributed in San Francisco, that stated that Mr. Wilson did not have a chance; that the other gentleman would be elected without a doubt. He was satisfied that that had kept a great many of the Mayor's friends from going home to vote; they were confident that he would be elected and that that had given him the election. We talked about the primary election to take place this fall in San Francisco under the new charter provisions, and then shortly after that he said:

"Mr. Dalton, Mr. Behan has told me you would like to borrow $5000," and he said, "I can accommodate you all right," and I said, "I would be very thankful to you if you can do that," and he said, "There is no reason I know of why I can't do it," and we talked about some other things there for awhile and then he

We talked about some other things there for awhile and then he said: 'What about the assessment in Alameda county?' He said, 'I don't know much about that; there seems to be some disturbance,' and I told him the disturbance seems to be on the riparian rights, and he said: 'I would like to look into that; I would like to know more about it,' and we talked about riparian rights for awhile. Then we dropped that and talked about personal things. Before leaving we agreed to meet in Oakland on the following week and he was to loan me $5000."—Extract from testimony given by Assessor H. P. Dalton.

CONTRADICTS TESTIMONY

Said He Gave His Note for Bills

Witnesses for the State Contradict Testimony

After County Assessor Dalton had told his story of the acceptance of a loan from the representatives of the Spring Valley Water Company yesterday afternoon there were three witnesses placed on the stand for the purpose of rebutting the testimony of three witnesses for the defense, who swore that it was impossible for them to hear what was said in conversation between several persons in room No. 6 in Jack's rotisserie in San Francisco while they (the witnesses) were intently listening in room No. 5, adjoining. Those who were talking in room No. 6 while the witnesses for the defense were in room No. 5 were Attorney Gehring of counsel for Dalton, and Dalton. Dalton, in this conversation with his attorney, it was said, took the same seat at the table in room No. 6 that he occupied on the day on which it is alleged he had an understanding with Vice-President Eastman of the Spring Valley Water Company, regarding the passing between them of the sum of $5000 as a part payment of the sum of $25,000 as a consideration for the reduction of the assessment of the riparian rights of the company on property owned by the concern in this county.

The testimony of the witnesses for the defendant a few days ago, in respect to what took place in room No. 6, was intended to show that neither Detective Helms nor Miss Harms, who were in room No. 5 when Dalton and Eastman were in room No. 6, could have overheard the Dalton-Eastman conversation, and that it was impossible for Helms to raise the door which stood between the two rooms and pay attention to what was being said by either Dalton or Eastman.

CONTRADICT TESTIMONY.

The testimony of the witnesses for the defendant was rebutted yesterday on the part of the prosecution by Deputy County Surveyor Jasper, Captain Walter J. Petersen, who is the head of the detective force of the Oakland police department, and Detective Hodgkins, one of the most experienced members of that organization. All of these testified that they had visited the restaurant rooms in question and had at different times assumed the positions which had been occupied by Eastman and Dalton in room No. 6 and by Detective Helms in room No. 5, and that they had been able to hear everything that was said in the room where the conversation between Dalton and Eastman is alleged to have taken place. They also testified to using the electric lights in room No. 5 and that when those lights were burning it was impossible for the effect to be observed in room No. 6 until the curtains in that room were lowered, thus shutting out the light of day from that apartment.

EASILY RAISED DOOR.

They also testified that without difficulty each of them had raised the door between rooms 5 and 6. This was directly in opposition to the testimony of the witnesses for the defendant, who swore that it was impossible for the door to be raised save by the efforts of two men.

The first of the witnesses for the prosecution was O. W. Jasper of the office of the county surveyor of this county. It was this witness who made the original survey of the upper floor of Jacks' rotisserie in San Francisco which was introduced into the trial by the prosecution. He was examined by Attorney Hynes and the testimony was as follows:

Q. I will ask you to state whether or not this morning you visited Jack's restaurant at 615 Sacramento street in the City and County of San Francisco?

A. I did.

Q. Who accompanied you?

A. Detective Hodgkins, Detective Petersen and Mr. Smith, deputy district attorney.

Q. As to the general appearance of rooms 5 and 6, that is, the fact of their having a folding door between them, having a curtain, a double curtain each side, the fact of there having been, I think you said, a certain transom in room No. 5, electric fixtures, two windows at the rear, as to the square table in the corner of the room and a round serving table in the corner of room 5, as to the distance of the portieres or curtains from the floor, as to the number of chairs in the place, as to those conditions, was it the same this morning you found it at the time of your previous visit?

A. The conditions were the same.

Q. Now, Mr. Jasper, on the previous occasion when you were there, I will ask you to state whether or not you raised that curtain?

A. I did.

Mr. Hynes. I think, if the court please, the witness testified to this; I will ask permission to ask him again. How high did you raise it?

A. That is, the day that I took these measurements?

Q. The original measurements? Yes.

A. The curtain had been unbolted by some one else, some other of the party. The curtain was approximately two or three inches above the floor. I simply put my hand down and took hold of the handle and raised the curtain, raised it above my head, gave it a little shove and it went right up to the ceiling, that is, to its casement.

Q. Did anybody assist you in that?

A. They did not.

Q. How did it raise at that time, easy or hard?

A. Raised comparatively easy.

Q. And did you raise it this morning?

A. I did.

Q. How did it raise this morning, easy or hard?

A. The curtain raised comparatively easy.

Q. Did you raise it alone this morning?

A. I did.

Q. With reference to the bolt, did you make any examination of that this morning as to withdrawing it?

A. I did.

Q. How did you withdraw it, if you did? How were they withdrawn.

A. The bolts on the southerly side of the sliding partition were in fairly good order and could be easily withdrawn, which was done this morning by Captain Petersen. The bolt in the northwest corner of the room on the south side of the partition, it seemed, had been broken; there was no catch or place to grab hold of it very securely on the end. Both Captain Petersen and myself at different times opened that bolt this morning by simply grabbing it between the two fingers, pulled a little bit hard on it and opened it up. The two bolts on the other side I opened myself without any assistance. They opened readily. I then raised—

PRESSURE USED.

Q. Now, just a moment. State whether it was necessary for anyone to step on any part of the door in order that you could withdraw these bolts or any of them this morning?

A. Yes. I stepped on it myself, that is, I put my foot on the projection of the sliding door and pressed down and pulled the bolt in that manner. I also, on another bolt on the other side, I put one hand on the sliding door and used a pressure slightly so that the bolt could slip up.

Q. That was where the bolt was broken?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you have any difficulty in getting the bolts out then?

A. I did not.

Q. You did it alone?

A. Yes.

Q. Then what next was done?

A. I was in room number 5 when I raised the curtain this morning. There are two handles to the curtain in room 5. I simply took hold of the two handles and raised the curtain up, and then went into room 6, where there is one handle and raised the curtain from the floor close up, to the height of 4 or 5 feet above the floor.

Q. Did you have any difficulty?

A. I did not.

Q. Did it alone?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Used how many hands in room number 6?

A. In room number 6 used one hand.

Q. I will ask you to state whether or not you made any experiments there this morning with reference to hearing people in room number 6 talking, from room number 5?

A. Yes, there were experiments made.

Q. What was one in that regard?

A. Captain Petersen and myself went into room number 5 while Mr. Smith and Mr. Hodgkins remained in room number 6.

SEATED AT TABLE.

Q. Do you know where they were sitting in the room, in what way?

A. Mr. Hodgkins, when we left the room was standing on the south side of the table, that is the long table in room number 6. Mr. Smith was on the north side of the table. When we got into the other room, number 5, that is Captain Petersen and myself, Mr. Smith and Mr. Hodgkins had seated themselves at the table.

JASPER RECALLED.

At this point Jasper was excused temporarily in order to let Captain Petersen testify as he wished to return to duty. Petersen said he went to Jack's, where experiments were conducted in rooms 5 and 6. He declared that the sliding door between the two rooms was easily raised by one person and that a conversation within moderate tone of voice in one room could be distinctly heard in the other.

He testified that while Hodgkins and Smith were talking in room 6, he and Jasper lay on the floor in room 5, as Detective Helms testified he had done. the conversation in the other room could be easily distinguished.

Jasper, when recalled, testified along the same lines as Petersen, saying:

I placed myself in a flat position, my stomach upon the floor adjacent to the sliding panel between rooms 5 and 6, my feet toward the easterly wall of the building, my head at about the center of the sliding panel. Captain Petersen was stretched, was stooping, his knees on the floor and his elbows on the floor, in a position so he could write, his feet toward the table, the round table in the southwest corner of room 5. We listened to the conversation as carried on between Mr. Hodgkins and Mr. Smith.

Q. I will ask you to state whether or not you could hear what was said?

A. We could; I could.

Q. Could you hear all of it?

A. I heard practically every remark that was made, with the exception of the time that either Captain Petersen or myself moved in such a way as to make a noise and disconnect the sentences.

Q. Did you do anything besides lie on the floor?

A. Yes. I sat down, Captain Petersen on the south side and myself on the north side of the long table in room 5, and listened to the conversation that was being carried on in the other room.

Q. I will ask you to state whether or not from that position you could hear what was said, distinguish the words, catch the sentences?

A. We could not distinguish everything that was said.

Q. You could not?

A. I could not distinguish everything that was said, but I could catch the drift of the sentences, distinguish whole sentences, practically get the jist of the conversation, that was being carried on between Mr. Smith and Mr. Hodgkins.

Q. Then what next was done?

A. We stood up in the meantime, between assuming the position on the floor and going to that table, we stood up in the center of the room and heard the conversation that was being carried on by Mr. Smith and Mr. Hodgkins.

Q. Could you hear what was said standing in the center of the room?

A. We did.

CONVERSATION OVERHEARD.

Q. Could you understand all of it standing up in the center of the room?

A. I understood all of the conversation that was carried on between them at that particular time.

Q. What next was done?

A. Next Captain Petersen and myself went into room number 6. I sat on the south side of the long table in that room and Captain Petersen on the south side. We carried on a conversation which was listened to and answered. We carried on a conversation between ourselves and Mr. Hodgkins and Mr. Smith listened in the other room, and spoke to us at various times concerning the details of our conversation.

Judge Fairall did not question the witness.

'I GAVE PROMISSORY NOTE FOR $5000,' STATES DALTON

Assessor Says That Money He Received From Spring Valley Official Was Advanced as a Personal Loan

said, "What about the assessment in Alameda county?" He said, "I don't know very much about that; it seems to be some disturbance," and I told him the disturbance seems to be the riparian rights and he said, "I would like to look into that; I would like to know more about it," and we talked about riparian rights for a while.

Then we dropped that and talked about personal things that had no connection whatever with riparian rights or the assessment on the Spring Valley property. Before leaving he agreed to meet—we agreed to meet—in Oakland on the following week and he was to loan me $5000.

Q. Was there anything said at that time about where he was to meet you?

A. Yes; he said he would meet me in Barnum's restaurant, in the court yard. We can step in one of the small rooms in the back court yard.

PRACTICALLY ALL.

Q. Is that all the conversation that took place at this first meeting between you and Mr. Eastman?

A. That is practically all."

DENIES CRAWLING UNDER FENCE.

Q. Did you or did you not, at the second meeting, go through a vacant lot?

A. I did not.

Q. Did you or did you not crawl under a fence?

A. I did not. (Objection.)

Q. I will ask you if you crawled under or over any fences at this first meeting?

A. I did no

Q. Did you go through any vacant lot?

A. I did not.

Q. Subsequently did you meet Mr. Eastman in Oakland?

A. I did.

Q. When and where?

A. On the 18th day of May, about 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Q. Where?

A. In a room in Barnum's restaurant.

Q. Just relate the circumstances of the meeting?

A. I went to Barnum's restaurant and asked a waiter, one of the waiters, if a gentlemen was there waiting for me, and he said yes, there was, and I followed him into the room that Mr. Eastman was in, where he was seated.

Q. Did you meet Mr. Eastman there?

A. I went into the room and the waiter asked me if I would have something to eat or drink, and I said no, and the waiter went out and I shook hands with Mr. Eastman, before the waiter asked those questions, and I sat down at the table. Then the waiter asked if I would have something to eat or drink, and then he went out. Mr. Eastman said: "I am here prepared to let you have that money," he said, and "have you written to the District Attorney?" and I said "No," and I said to Mr. Eastman, this is not such a matter as I would care to submit to the District Attorney to get his opinion upon; if you will write me a letter just setting forth the legal reasons why the assessment is illegal, I will be glad to submit it to the district attorney in a letter by myself to him, call attention to why the assessment is illegal in the letter, and he agreed to write such a letter as that. He then took $5000 out of his pocket and laid it on the table, and took a note out of his pocket and laid it on the table and handed it to me. I read the note, counted the money, and after counting the money I signed the note for $5000 and gave it to Mr. Eastman.

Q. Now, referring to the letter to the District Attorney, was there anything about figures said there?

A. Yes, sir. I said, "Mr. Eastman, you want to leave out about figures, because the District Attorney does not pass upon figures, that comes under my jurisdiction, the figures!" I said, "The figures are for me, the assessor; just simply state in your letter the legal objections to the assessment and I will be very glad to take the matter up with the District Attorney."

Q. Did anything happen subsequently to that meeting?

A. Mr. Eastman left the restaurant and I followed him out. I started down Broadway towards my office and Mr. Helms came up and said, "You are under arrest," and then Chief Hodgkins came up and District Attorney Donahue and Donahue said, "Mr. Hodgkins, search him," then Chief Hodgkins searched me and took some papers out of my hip pocket on this side and some papers out of my coat pocket here, and the bundle of $5000 out of this pocket.

Q. Was there any conversation occurred between you, Mr. Dalton and Mr. Donahue?

A. There was. Mr. Donahue said: "Henry, what does this mean?" and I said, "What does what mean?" and he said, "This money." He had in his hands the money and I said: "That is my money," and he said, "Where did you get it?" and I said it was none of his business, and he said: "Did Mr. Eastman give it to you?" and I said he did not.

Q. Was there any further conversation there?

A. He asked me if Mr. Eastman was with me in the restaurant and I told him that it was none of his business. Finally he told me he was going to bring me down here and they brought me down to the District Attorney's office, and there he plied me with some further questions.

A. He asked me some further questions. The District Attorney, Mr. Donahue, said: "Henry, where did you get this money; whose money is this?" and I said: "This is my money," and he said: "Did Mr. Eastman give it to you?" and I said he did not give it to me, and he said—I can't recall these exact questions. I was very angry at the time, I realized a plot had been put up upon me, and that I had been surrounded by my enemies—

(Motion to strike out overruled.)

Q. Go right ahead and relate everything that took place there at that time.

A. Hynes came in and the bills were there in his hand—he picked them up off of the table, and he was standing as I remember at the end of Mr. Donahue's desk, and he said: "Henry, where did you get this money?" and I said: "It is none of your business." I think I expressed it stronger than that.

Q. Just state what was said.

A. I think I said: "It is none of your damn business," and he said: "Henry, did you sell a piece of real estate, or has your bank given you this money?" and I said: "None of your damn business," and he said, "Did you get this money from a bank?" and I said it was none of his damn business. "I will not state where I got the money; it is none of your damn business;" and Mr. Donahue came back a little later, it might have been before that, I am not positive as to the time; I was very angry, and he said: "Henry, if you don't tell me where you got the money, you will go to jail," and I said: "It is none of your damn business where I got the money." Then I asked to telephone to my attorney, and I was given that permission, and I telephoned to Fitzgerald and Abbott and Mr. Fitzgerald was not in. I don't think I reached Mr. Abbott. I left word for Mr. Abbott to come down to the District Attorney.

When the defense finished questioning Dalton, Assistant District Attorney Hynes said, "No cross-examination."

SUNOL MAN STRANGELY VANISHES

Mystery Attaches to Disappearance of Well-to-Do Farmer

SUNOL, July 13. — With the finding near a lonely roadhouse in Niles canyon of bloody clothing that had been worn by Walter Day, 33 years old, who has been missing from his home and place of employment in this place for nearly three weeks, an air of mystery has been added to the young man's disappearance, and the people living in this vicinity are beginning to whisper of strange things in connection with the affair to the extent that it has been called to the attention of Sheriff Frank Barnet through Deputy Sheriff Lee Graves.

Day, who is a son of William Day, a wealthy landowner and warehouseman, is one of the best known young men in this part of the county, being popular, handsome, and having a reputation as a hard worker. He has charge of work on the Calaveras dam of the Spring Valley Water company and is also in charge of the pumping station located about two miles from Sunol.

About three weeks ago, it is said, the elder Day turned over to his sons, Walter and Fred, the management of his interests, including a livery stable and large warehouse. A few days later Walter hitched a horse to a light buggy and stated that he was going to drive to Py's Point, a well known roadhouse in the canyon kept by Mrs. Py, widow of a pigeon farmer. It is understood that he had in his pockets more than $100 in gold and silver.

Next day the family was taken with surprise when the horse that Walter had driven, came running up to the stable. The animal dragged fragments of the rig and showed evidence of having made a long run. Day did not show up and it was not until several days ago when his torn shirt, covered with blood, was found near the Py house, that serious alarm was felt in the community. Mrs. Py stated upon inquiry that Day had had a quarrel with a Portuguese. The family declared that they knew where the son was located, but refused to make any further statement.

WILEY DUE TO LOSE HEAD

Recommendation Is Made That Pure Food Expert "Be Permitted to Resign"

WASHINGTON, July 13. — Dr. Hervey Wiley, pure food expert, chief of the bureau of chemistry of the department of agriculture and one of the most widely known officials in the government service, has been condemned by the committee on personnel of the department of agriculture with a recommendation to President Taft that he be "permitted to resign." Attorney-General Wickersham, in an opinion on the case submitted to the President, recommends approval of the committee's action.

It is charged against Dr. Wiley that he permitted an arrangement to be made with Dr. H. H. Rusby, a recognized pharmacognosist of Columbia University, N. Y., for compensation in excess of that allowed by law. It is claimed that the arrangement was to give Dr. Rusby a place at $1600 a year as an employe of the bureau of chemistry, an agreement being made with him that he should be called upon to perform only such services as the salary would compensate for at the rate of $20 a day for laboratory investigations and $50 per day for attendance in court.

Attorney-General Wickersham held that the law permitted the payment of only $9 a day, this sum later being increased to $11 a day.

OTHER RECOMMENDATIONS.

Along with the suggestion that Dr. Wiley, because of these alleged irregularities in the employment of Dr. Rusby, be permitted an opportunity to resign, the committee on personnel and the attorney-general have recommended the dismissal of Dr. Rusby and the reduction of Dr. L. F. Kebler, chief of the division of drugs in the department of agriculture. The committee further recommends that Dr. W. Bigelow, assistant chief of the bureau of chemistry, also be given an opportunity to resign.

President Taft has not indicated what action he will take. The matter has just become public, although investigation began last March. President Taft, it was learned later today, has forwarded all the papers in the case to Dr. Wiley and will take no action until he receives a personal statement from him.

GOVERNOR SPRINGS SURPRISE AT ASYLUM INVESTIGATION

Johnson Calls Witnesses, Who Denied They Ever Received Private Instructions From Principal Keith

BERKELEY, July 13. — Governor Johnson sprung what he termed a surprise at this morning's session of the investigation into affairs at the California Institution for the Deaf and the Blind by attempting a ruse intended to offset the testimony of Principal Douglas Keith that he had given special instruction outside of the class room to backward students.

Just before adjournment at 12:30 o'clock the governor called upon all the graduates to stand up and had them asked by the interpreter if any had ever been taught in this manner by Keith. According to the answers none had ever gone to him for that purpose.

Attorney Warren Olney, Jr., Keith's counsel, demanded information as to whether the dozen graduates who happened to be in the investigation were in the institution during the seven years Keith claims to have given such instruction. It was not shown just when the former pupils attended.

REASON FOR SURPRISE.

In explaining to the attorneys on both sides his sudden participation in the proceedings, Governor Johnson said:

"I wished to obtain by means of this surprise a statement from the graduates without giving them previous notification."

The case of the complainants against the management of the institution was completed at this morning's session and the examination of witnesses by counsel for the defense was begun.

Prior to this varying theories as to the best method of moral and ethical instruction in the institution were interpolated by opposing attorneys during testimony bearing on this subject.

Whether moral precepts should be impressed gradually and without conscious training toward ethical heights or whether they should be instilled by means of formal religious meetings, was a question which introduced controversial remarks by the lawyers.

Attorney Olney, in questioning a witness, mentioned that the principal and directors had not of late followed a plan of deliberate religious instruction in the school, contrary to the spirit of the state constitution, with the declaration, "Now we are going to have moral training."

GRADUAL TRAINING.

"The principal and directors carefully considered the matter of instruction of this kind," said Attorney Olney, "and decided that it should be gone about in a gradual manner."

It was also a mooted question as to the better form of teaching the deaf and dumb.

During the examination of Francis O'Donnell, who has been an instructor in the institution for twenty-three years, he was questioned as to the sign language, as well as the oral method, the latter being employed by Principal Keith.

O'Donnell stated his belief that the sign system, as opposed to finger spelling and the lip movement methods, enabled a principal to inspire the students with his intimate thoughts and feelings and that better results could be accomplished than by means of other systems.

LOSS TO PUPILS.

He declared that the chapel meetings had been abolished at great loss to the pupils since Keith assumed the principalship. Dr. Warring Wilkinson, former head of the school, had led these exercises, said the witness.

O'Donnell was of the opinion that the instruction of this nature should be confined to ethical rather than intensely religious or sectarian teachings. Meetings for training of this kind, as well as individual instruction in small classes, he believed necessary.

O'Donnell was questioned as to his experience as a teacher. Later he told of Principal Keith's assumption of the principalship, and of his changing the method of communication among the deaf to the oral system. After making the change, said the witness, Keith had asked him about the result. O'Donnell said he told the principal that the children liked the system, but declared his own belief that it was an experiment which would have to be tried out.

LOSS OF TIME.

O'Donnell explained in detail a charge which he has made that a loss of eight hours and forty minutes a week in class room work has resulted from the application of Keith's schedule of courses. It was necessary to curtail some of the studies, according to O'Donnell, causing complaint among pupils that there was not time to complete their lessons in the class rooms.

O'Donnell was examined by Attorney Olney as to whether there had not been a greater amount of teaching in the lower classes as a result of the change and whether the work in the higher branches in being reduced was not more than made up by the manual training given. The witness said he did not know as to this.

O'Donnell declared that deterioration in discipline had begun during the last years of Principal Wilkinson's administration, owing to the latter's age.

Miss Mary Eastman, a teacher in the blind department, testified that on fire drills had been given in her section of the institution.

DENIES ILLEGALITY.

During the latter part of his testimony yesterday afternoon, Principal Douglas Keith denied that his appointment was illegal, declaring that he had taught both the blind and the deaf at the institution under the direction of Principal Warring Wilkinson.

Keith stated that regular religious exercises were being held on Sundays, referring to the charge that moral instruction had been abolished. The daily chapel exercises, he said, had been canceled, however, the time being devoted to physical culture.

In accordance with the trend in other institutions, Keith testified, the oral method of communication among the deaf was being emphasized here. He submitted statistics showing that 56 per cent of children in such institutions were wholly instructed by the oral or lip movement method, adding that 74 per cent of the pupils in deaf institutes where both the sign and oral languages were used received instruction in the oral method.

Keith reported that parents demanded of him that the oral method be used; that all institutions are tending toward that system and that in 15 years it will be the most general in use among the deaf.

RECOMMENDS CHANGE.

Recommendations for a complete change in the conduct of the institution were read yesterday afternoon by Francis O'Donnell, a teacher in the deaf department, who explained that he had prepared them at the request of Attorney Charles Wesley Reed, representing the graduate complainants in the investigation.

O'Donnell was an applicant for the position of principal when Keith was appointed in 1909. O'Donnell recommended that the governor be an ex-officio member of the board of directors, and that qualified graduates of the school be included among the directors; that a house committee of graduates be appointed as a part of the board of directors to make regular inspections of the work of the school; that deaf and blind pupils be segregated entirely in work of instruction; that additions be made to the system of entertainment and physical education of the inmates of the institution; that the gymnasium be enlarged, and that more systematic training be given the pupils; that regular dramatic and lecture entertainments be provided at the school; that an additional teacher be appointed in the blind department; that a provision be passed against corporal punishment of the inmates; that the deaf be given instruction in lip reading; that the instruction in manual training of the deaf and blind be enlarged to include—for the deaf, bookkeeping, typewriting, linotype operating, clay modeling, bookkeeping, glazing, plumbing, shoe mending, electric wiring and similar trades; and for the blind, basket work, mat work, typewriting, bookkeeping by the use of raised figures, brush making, chair seating, piano tuning and the like.

The recommendations were received by Governor Johnson as part of the proceedings of the formal investigation into the affairs of the institute.

APPOINTMENTS ARE HELD UP BY ANDERSON

Commissioner Points Out How City Charter Was Being Violated.

Introduction of a resolution appointing a number of men to positions which have not been created met with objection from Commissioner Harry Anderson at today's meeting of the city commissioners. The men were to be employed as inspectors on certain water front work over which Commissioner Anderson has specific charge. Anderson declared that he had not been consulted concerning their employment, and that the charter provided specifically that appointments cannot be made until positions had been created by ordinance.

As a result of the objection raised by Commissioner Anderson the matter was laid over and the resolution referred to City Attorney Ben F. Woolner to investigate as to whether it is essential to draft and pass an ordinance creating the positions.

Attorney Woolner declared that he believed that these positions might be considered to have been created automatically by the bond propositions under which this water front work is being done, but that should this not be the case an ordinance would be drawn creating the necessary positions.

APPOINTED BY MOTT.

The appointments which were to have been made this morning were to continue in employment certain inspectors and other workers on the water front, these men having been appointed by Mayor Mott many months ago when they were needed. No provision has yet been made to continue them in office.

Commissioner Anderson said this morning when the resolution by which it was intended to continue these men in employment:

"No positions have been created to be filled by these men and the charter demands that such positions must be created before appointments can be made.

"This work is in my department, yet I was not consulted as to these proposed appointments of men for whom I must be responsible. I do not think that is fair, or just, or in the spirit of the charter."

AGREED WITH ANDERSON.

Mayor Mott agreed that there should have been a consultation. The men to have been appointed were as follows:

Hydrographer on dredging, O. Fuetsch, $5 per day; fieldman on dredging, J. Wood, $3 per day; inspectors, $5 per day, R. M. Clement, A. D. Cross, F. D. Wells and G. C. Stevens on Key Route basin, quay wall, Main Lake and Thirty-sixth street sewer and Livingston street pier.

A resolution was passed appointing the following assistants in the department of streets for the work under the direction of Superintendent Perry Brown in his capacity of ex-officio city engineer: T. E. Risley, assistant engineer, $175 per month; W. C. Willard, draughtsman, $125 per month; George Prefontaine, tracer and blueprinter, $60 per month.

LA FOLLETTE RAPS THE POLICIES OF PRESIDENT

Reviews Administration's Acts In Anti-Reciprocity Speech.

WASHINGTON, July 13.—Senator La Follette, in a speech against reciprocity, reviewed today, act by act, the administration of President Taft, and in unsparing terms declared that the contest involved was the fight between the plain people and confederated privilege.

"Considered as a measure of reciprocity," slad La Follette of the Canadian agreement, "it violates every tariff principle of reciprocity heretofore expressed in the platform declarations of the Republican party and recommended by former Republican Presidents. Considered as a tariff bill, it violates every tariff principle nad platform promise upon which William H. Taft was elected President.

"Throughout the first pages of his first general message, he found no space to say a word for the great measures that had made the name of his predecessor revered and loved everywhere in the United States. Is it to be wondered at that the Republican voters in 1910 felt that he had several scores to settle? A President whom he had elected, believing him to be the custodian of the Roosevelt policies, had dismissed the Roosevelt cabinet and appointed in their places men, in the main, of known hostility to those policies.

"In all the record of this administration no more glaring example is presented of the complete surrender to special interests and the complete reversal of Roosevelt's progressive policies than that shown in dealing with the amendments to the interstate commerce act.

"The congressional investigation of the Alaska coal scandal confirmed the public opinion which had early reached the stage of conviction that Ballinger was using his official power to aid the Morgan-Guggenheim interests in wrongfully acquiring control of the Alaskan coal fields. The subsequent history of the Alaskan coal lands scandal simply confirms the bad faith and betrayal of public interest which the earlier testimony so clearly established."

How to "Shed" A Bad Complexion

It's foolish to attempt to cover up or hide a sallow complexion, when you can so easily remove the sallowness, or the complexion itself. Rouge and the like on a brownish skin, only emphasize the defect. The better way is to apply pure mercolized wax—the same as you would cold cream—putting it on at night, removing it in the morning with warm water and soap, following with a dash of cold water. The effect of a few applications is simply marvelous. The half-dead cuticle is absorbed by the wax—painlessly, gradually, in tiny imperceptible particles—revealing the beautiful velvety white new skin beneath.

No woman need have a sallow, blotchy, pimply or freckled complexion if she'll just go to the druggist's, get some good mercolized wax

APPEALS HEARD BY EQUALIZERS

Concur in the Protest of Vogt That Property Be Stricken Off.

Sitting this forenoon as the board of equalization, the county supervisors considered applications for reduction of assessments on the rolls recently turned over to the board of supervisors by County Assessor Henry P. Dalton.

During the three days that the books have been open to the inspection of the public, fourteen applications for reduction were made, the most important one being that of W. Vogt, who petitioned that property listed against him and valued at $11,500 be stricken from the rolls, on the ground that it had been deeded to the city of Oakland. Vogt informed the equalizers that the property had been used by the city as a park since November, 1910, and that the last payment in the purchase of it had been made by the city June 6 of the current year. The board concurred in the protest.

Following is a list of other applications for reduction that have been filed with the equalizers:

O. Olsen, reduction on realty from $2500 to $1500; pending.

John Berquest, reduction on realty from $800 to $700; on personal property from $200 to $100, and on improvements from $1500 to $200. Pending.

PLAN TO EXTEND JEFFERSON STREET OPPOSED BY MANY

Mass Meeting Called to Adopt Resolutions of Protest to Carrying Out of Project Along Present Lines

Through the initiative of P. Ehrlich of 960 Tenth street, property owners in the district recently set aside by the commissioners for assessment to cover the expense of cutting Jefferson street through from its present northern limit to San Pablo avenue, have organized to object to the carrying out of the scheme under the present plan. Petitions for signatures by property owners in the territory affected were drawn up yesterday and have been signed by many. A mass meeting will be called for next Monday evening at Forester's hall, Thirteenth and Clay streets, and resolutions adopted vigorously objecting to the action of the commissioners.

It is declared by many of the property owners that the levy on their property amounts to confiscation and that the district which it is proposed should bear the expense of the cutting through of Jefferson street is altogether too small, and that the burden on the small property owners is an unfair one. Among those besides Ehrlich, who have taken an active part in organizing the property owners are S. W. Bachman, Henry Abrahamson, J. W. Mowel and J. J. Hanifin.

WILL WAIT ON COUNCIL.

A committee will be appointed at the mass meeting Monday night to wait upon the city authorities to present the objections of the property owners. Following is the petition being circulated:

We, the undersigned, taxpayers and owners of real property between the district included by the three commissioners appointed in pursuance of ordinance No. 3102, and entitled, "An ordinance ordering the opening of Jefferson street in the city of Oakland to a uniform width of 80.5 feet from the northern line of Seventeenth street, northerly to the western line of San Pablo avenue," most respectfully protest against the confirmation of the report of said commissioners in the matter, and as grounds for objection, allege:

First—That the assessed district included in said matter is disproportionate to the lands affected and benefited by said work.

Second—That the damages awarded for the land n ecessary to be taken for the said work is excessive and unwarranted.

Third—That the assessments levied against the land affected are discriminating, disproportionate and unequal.

Fourth—That the amount of assessment in many instances is practically a confiscation of the property affected by reason of the enormous assessment.

Wherefore, your petitioners respectfully pray that your honorable body shall fix a time for the hearing of objections, and pray that the said objections shall be sustained.

And your petitioners will ever pray.

The commissioners are fixing the assessment for the opening of Jefferson street completed their labors after over a year of investigation and hearing testimony as to reality values June 30 of this year. They estimated the tax to be levied against property in the assessment district necessary to pay for the street opening, exclusive of the cost of the street work, to be $334,368.50.

The money to be gained by this tax will be used for the opening of the street and the expense of making and paving the street will be assessed later upon the property owners abutting on the opening. The report of the street commissioners has been filed with the city clerk and a big fight will be made to knock it out on account of unjust assessments.

$334,368 ASSESSMENT.

The assessment levied against the property owners for the Jefferson street opening is $334,368.50. This is made up of $327,550 damages awarded to property owners whose land and improvements will be taken or damaged to open the street, and $6818.50 for the expenses of the commission in estimating the individual assessments and damages, the employment of expert counsel and realty experts.

The opening of Jefferson street is from Seventeenth street to San Pablo avenue. The assessment district which will pay the tax levy extends 150 feet east and west of Jefferson street from First street to San Pablo, thence northerly 150 feet each side of San Pablo to Thirty-sixth street.

Among the owners whose property will be taken to cut the street through to San Pablo, and to whom damages are awarded in the sum total of $327,550, are the Farnham estate, Dell Woodward, Lelia K. Blethen, J. J. Lamping, Elizabeth Atkinson, Thomas and Mary Jones, Theodore Gier, A. A. Moore and Carrie and Frank Potter.

THOSE IN CHARGE.

The commissioners who had charge of the street opening and assessments were M. A. Thomas, chairman, Guy C. Calden and W. O. Wedgewood. They were appointed March 21, 1910. Among the property owners heavily assessed are the following:

Horace M. Stone, Rosa A. Stone, Stella C. Chappell, Ida E. Matthews, D. and S. Hooriet, Elizabeth Atkinson, J. J. Lamping, Susan H. Bothsow, Noemie Delmas, Charles Jacobs, E. A. Young, D. Johnson, Christina A. Morgan, A. A. Moore, Elmer C. Farnham, W. R. Alton, A. J. Snyder, William Cliff, Mary Marsily, Arcade Realty Company, Abrahamson Brothers, Robert J. Schafer, San Luis Land and Improvement Company, B. Johnson, E. McGary, Alma E. McDonald, George C. Pardee, Francis K. Goerke, Blanche L. and Florence M. Boardman, Fred J. Edwards, Nigolo Rizzo, Virginia F. Bleuel, W. W. Garthwaite, F. R. Musser, John F. Towle, Marie Fontaine, John P. Schmitz, J. M. Shannon and Henry Mohr.

AUTO VICTIM IS PUZZLING DOCTORS

George A. Smith in a State of Coma Eight Days as Result of Crash.

SACRAMENTO, July 13.—Six of the leading physicians of this city have held a consultation over the remarkable case presented by George A. Smith, a former San Francisco newspaper man, who has been in a state of coma for eight days as the result of an automobile accident in which he was thrown on his head.

The case has been a baffling one to the physicians for the reason that while no fracture of the skull has been discovered, the patient remains utterly unconscious. The physicians explain the absence of fracture from the fact that Smith was asleep in the automobile at the time he was thrown out, and, therefore, his muscles were in a state of relaxation.

Dr. George W. Dufficy, who has had charge of Smith at the Sisters' Hospital, states that there is no sign of pressure on the brain, but nevertheless Smith fails to recognize the members of his family or friends.

AWAIT RECOGNITION.

Mrs. Smith and her 6-year-old daughter have anxiously waited by the side of the patient during the greater part of the time, hoping for some faint recognition from him.

Four days ago the doctors trephined his skull, finding a quantity of serum which they removed, but no fracture of the skull was discovered. They have also tried electricity, but without avail.

The only evidence of life in the patient is a slight, occasional movement of the hands, and a perceptible sensitiveness of the pupils of his eyes to light.

The doctors are giving Smith oxygen at frequent intervals. He is fed through the nose. His daily food consists of 48 ounces of milk, six eggs and a little whisky.

WEIGHTS AND MEASURES LAW NOT OPERATIVE

SACRAMENTO, July 13. — That the new weights and measures law is inoperative because no appropriation was made to secure a standard set of weights and measures for the State is the assertion of Secretary of State Jordan in a letter he has written to District Attorney H. Utley wrote to Jordan for a certified copy of the standard set and Jordan has decided that he has none and has called the attention of the Governor to the matter.

A Healthful Old Age for Women

The turn of life is the most critical period in a woman's existence. Owing to modern methods of living not one woman in a thousand approaches this perfectly natural change without experiencing a train of very distressing symptoms.

Those dreadful hot flashes and the faint feeling that follows, sometimes with chills, extreme nervousness and despondency are symptoms of this condition.

Those hot flashes are just so many calls from nature for help. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was prepared to meet the needs of woman's system at this trying period of her life.

If this period is safely passed through the prospect will be good for a long period of sound health and comparative immunity from disease.

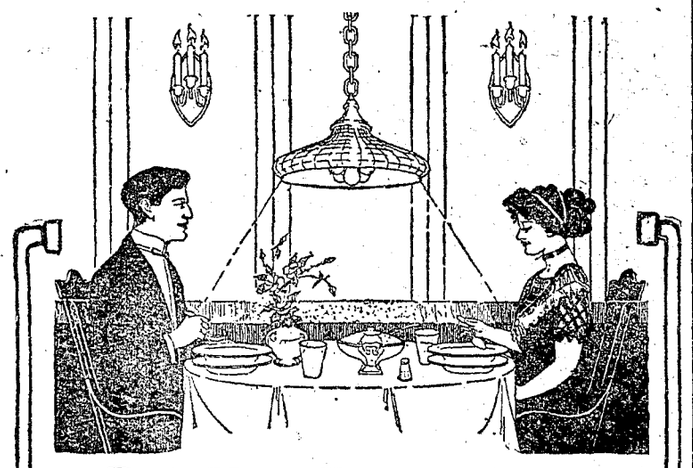

Here is Proof that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound may be relied upon at this period:

Alton Station, Ky.—"I want other suffering women to know what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. For months I suffered from female troubles in consequence of my age, and thought I could not live. I wrote you and after taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I feel like a new woman. I thank you so much for the good it has done me."—Mrs. Emma Bailey, R. R. No. 1, Alton Station, Ky.

Kewaskum, Wis.—"Your medicine was a blessing to me in my sickness at Change of Life. I cannot describe what I suffered for five long years from headache, backache, dizziness, no sleep, palpitation of heart and irregularities which are common at that period and sometimes continue for weeks at a time.

"I have been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in dry form. I am 54 years old and can do all my work."—Mrs. Carl Dahlke, Kewaskum, Wis.

If you want special advice write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

Did You Ever Think About It?

The Oakland Gas, Light and Heat Company represents an investment of $10,000,000 and years of development. It is a big, modern power plant in every sense of the word and its function is to furnish you with reliable and economical gas and electric service.

Simple Home Remedy For Wrinkled Faces

(From Popular Toilettes.)

Thousands of women are spending fortunes in their frantic efforts to remove the signs of premature age from their faces. When in this state of mind a woman will spend almost any amount of money on worthless wrinkle removers, of which there are many.

If these women only knew it, the most effective remedy imaginable is a simple, harmless face wash which can be made up at home in less than a minute. They have only to get an ounce of powdered saxolite and half a pint of witch hazel at the drug store and mix the two. Apply this daily as a refreshing lotion. The effect is almost magical. Even after the first treatment a marked improvement is noticed and the face has a smug, firm feeling that is most pleasing.

DUTY REDUCTION IS SOLON'S PLAN

La Follette Proposes to Save Consumer Millions Annually.

WASHINGTON, July 13. — Senator La Follette's long promised wool and cotton tariff revision amendment to the Canadian reciprocity bill proposes duty reduction which he calculated would save the consumer $169,000,000 annually on cottons and $172,000,000 on woolens. In a statement accompanying the amendment, La Follette says that against this enormous saving to the consumers, which assumes that the price to the consumer would be reduced to the same extent as the reduction of duty, the loss of revenue to the government under the two schedules would approximate three million dollars.

"The change for the woolen schedule as a whole," said La Follette, "would represent a reduction from an average ad valorem of 61.64 per cent under the present law to 38.24 per cent, or a reduction of 23½ ad valorem and over 38 per cent below the present rate. The ad valorem rate on cotton goods, including artificial silk, is to be reduced under the proposed amendment from 55.59 per cent under the present act, to 29.45 per cent, representing a reduction of over 26 per cent ad valorem and over 47 per cent below the present rate."

La Follette declared that the duties proposed were still greater than necessary to protect American manufacturers from European competition. However, as this is a temporary measure he preferred, he said, to be on the safe side and make sure "that no legitimate American industry can possibly be injured by any of the proposed changes."

EFFORTS OF WOMAN TO TAKE LIFE FAILS

In a fit of despondency Leona Rodgers, 24 years old, residing at 453 Sixth street, attempted to commit suicide this morning about 5:30 o'clock by taking sixteen tablets of bichloride of mercury. The police were called and got her to the Receiving hospital in time for Dr. Clark to save her life.

NEW YORK SEAMEN AGAIN ON STRIKE

Thousand Firemen, Stewards and Oilers Called Out Today.

NEW YORK, July 13.—About 100 firemen, stewards, and oilers on the Ward line steamers were called out again today following the rejection of the terms offered by the company to its striking employes. Assistant Manager Macy said, however, that negotiations were still in progress.

The marine firemens' union ended last night a truce declared five days ago repecting the advance in pay offered as a compromise, and held out for the original demands—recognition of the union and $30 a month and 75 cents a day "grub money" for the freight and firemen.

MEXICANS TO PAY AMERICAN CLAIMS

State Department Will Protect Those Injured During Revolution.

WASHINGTON, July 13.—Americans who have legitimate claims against Mexico for injuries sustained during the revolution will be protected by the State Department. It is said at the department that in any case known to an American consul where an American was killed or wounded or suffered property loss the embassy in the City of Mexico has made formal complaint to the foreign office.

On the whole these losses will be much less than was supposed while the fighting was in progress. The greatest pecuniary sufferers will prove to be American industrial concerns whose business was interrupted and planters whose crops were not gathered owing to the desertion or drafting of their laborers.

For relatives of Americans actually killed by brigands or by shots fired across the international line by the combatants substantial damages will be collected, but these cases are not many in the aggregate. The Mexican government has assured the American embassy that it soon will proceed to the adjustment of these claims.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 13.—At a meeting of the board of directors of the Anglo and London and Paris National Bank yesterday it was announced that Sigmund Greenebaum had relinquished the presidency of that institution in favor of Herbert Fleishhacker, who has been vice-president and manager. Fleishhacker, before becoming a banker, was an electric light and power magnate, and, being only 38 years old, is the youngest president of a big banking corporation in the United States. He is a native son.

Greenebaum, who has been for years at the head of the London, Paris and American Bank, has assumed the chairmanship of the board of directors.

TOPNOTCHERS OF VARIETY STAGED AT BELL THEATER

GRETCHEN SPENCER, singing comedian, at the Bell Theater.

Gretchen Spencer, who is winning friends at the Bell this week, is a dashing little lady with a very fetching personality and a singing voice that has lifted her to the top notch in vaudeville. Also she is gifted with the knack of picking a song hit before it really happens and she is giving us a bit of the very newest things. Miss Spencer is new to the vaudeville game, this being her first trip, but she is well known and very well liked in musical comedy circles, her popularity having been fixed by her role of "The Drummer Boy" in the "Kankee Girl" at the Herald Square Theater. It's a real treat to hear her in her famous "Cuckoo" song. Don't miss it.

Bissett and Scott, the "Hello George Boys," are as well known in Europe as they are here at home by reason of their marvelous dancing. In both the buck and clogs they are marvels and their chair dance is one of the most difficult tap effects any dancer ever attempted and got away with.

Joe Welch continues to create a near riot with his inimitable character study of the Hebrew. At every performance Mr. Welch leaves an applauding audience who are insistent on repeated encores. His every word is a laugh. There is nothing overdrawn in his clever work, for the type of Jew he presents is not a caricature but a study that affords amusement to every class or condition of society.

The most notable roller skating act that has been produced down to date is the act offered by Sprague and McNeese, a wonderful agile young man and an exceptionally pretty girl who succeeds in doing gracefully on rollers a whole lot of things that unskilled folk can't do on their two feet. The act is picturesquely set and their wardrobing is unusual. From end to end the offering shows no end of class and a constantly changing stage picture is the result.

FLYING STEEL CUTS OUT EYE

Junk Dealer Is Victim; Teamster Also Loses His Sight.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 13. — Joseph Willinger, a junk dealer, of 987 Folsom street, had the sight of one of his eyes destroyed in a peculiar manner this morning. For several days Willinger has been hauling a quantity of scrap from the Risdon Iron Works and today made his final trip.

As he was loading the last piece a chip of steel flew off, struck him in the eye, and cut away the orb. The steel was the size of ten ten cent piece and acted almost as a knife in shaving the eye from its position.

Callezia and his partner, F. Percenti, were letting down the cases from a pile with the aid of hooks when one of them slipped, the pointed steel catching Callezia in the eye and tearing it from its socket. He was taken to the Central Emergency hospital but the injury was an irreparable one and the sight completely destroyed.

Complaint Sworn Against Jas. Brown for "Shoving the Queer."

The complainant against the accused is Edward Aigeltinger. He is alleged to have victimized the boys for several days past. Yesterday a number of the boys found counterfeit coins in their pockets and determined to catch the person responsible for "shoving the queer."

When Brown appeared at an early hour they appealed to the patrolmen and had him arrested. A number of coins were found on his person, and he will be turned over to the federal authorities for further investigaton.

BASEBALL BRANDED BRAIN DEVELOPER

Dr. C. S. Little Will Teach the Feeble-minded to Play the Game.

NEW YORK, July 13.—Dr. C. S. Little, a Dartmouth football star of 1891, who is superintendent of "Letchworth Village," a state institution for 2000 feeble-minded persons, will endeavor to build up the wits of the boys in that colony by organizing a number of baseball teams. He s in New York today to get baseball outfits for his charges and a suit of armor for the umpire.

"Do you think that a team of feeble-minded boys can bemade to understand the intricacies of the game?" asked an incredulous member of the board of directors, when he was asked for an appropriation for this purpose.

"Oh, I don't intend to develop any Hal Chases or Ty Cobbs," said Dr. Little, "but I think we might turn out a good grade of umpires if all I see in the papers is true. I believe that baseball is so inbred in the American people that even the weak-minded love the sport. We hope to have football, too, of the safe and sane variety and contests with other institutions of the same sort."

NEWLY-WEDS ARRESTED FOR AUTO SPEEDING

SAN JOSE, July 13.—Because the speed laws do not make provision for exceeding the limit wnen a wedding party is making its escape from pestiferous friends with old shoes, rice and such implements of torment, Louis Rassmussen, a Selma merchant, was haled into court for speeding at Santa Clara late yesterday. Rassmussen had just married Miss Lillian E. Phipps, a school teacher, of 878 South Seventh street, San Jose, and the pair, in an automobile, were trying to elude their friends when Motorcycle Deputy Sheriff Emile Agraz took up the chase. He won. The pursuing party was headed by J. Hunt.

When the story had been told, Justice Thompson was unwilling to inflict the punishment of a fine on a bridal party, and dismissed the cases. The wedding had been performed ten minutes ahead of the arrests, and after the ceremony the contracting parties jumped into an auto and started to "beat it" for Santa Clara, where they honed to get a train and "fool" their friends, whom they believed would go to the local depot to see them off.

Photograph Reveals Some Wonderful Things About Oakland Home Builder

The camera has accomplished some wonderful things, but the possibilities of this almost human mechanical devise is limited.

When proper subjects are provided the average person can produce some remarkable results, but the subject matter must be the best.

The great competitive photographic plan outlined by THE TRIBUNE some days ago, wherein the builders and owners of handsome bungalows were to be rewarded for their slight work in sending in the best photo obtainable of these clever little beauty spots, has filled the office with inquiries, and photos are being forwarded.

This competition will be published in a few days and the outside world will marvel at the attractiveness of Greater Oakland. The weather is ideal for photos, and Sundays have been turned into photographic house parties. What lady would not be proud of having the photo of her cozy little home sent abroad in THE TRIBUNE?

Thousands of eyes will be centered upon those photos run during the grand competition. Watch closely for important developments along these lines.

FARM LAND NEAR OAKLAND THE ONE BEST BUY TODAY

VILLA SITES IN GREAT DEMAND

Suburban Home Sites Set to Fruit Practically Self-Supporting.

Santa Clara Orchardists Are Picking Fortunes From the Trees.

Country residence property in the vicinity of Oakland, agricultural lands in the Sacramento Valley, and farm, orchard and vineyard acreage in Alameda, Contra Costa and Santa Clara counties, are the best offerings today on the suburban real estate market, either as a speculative or as a permanent investment. The causes which have brought about this very gratifying financial effect are many and diversified. Not as many nor as diversified as are the multifarious sorts of crops raised upon the lands in question, but still pretty tolerably many and diversified. Sufficiently so, at least, to bring suburban and country lands in the localities before mentioned into constantly increasing demand, and to make them the choicest of buys.

Suburban real estate in the vicinity of Oakland has doubled in value within a few years, and is still strongly on the upward trend. As the business sections of the city become more and more populous and encroach upon area hitherto given over to residence sites, the outlying sections come more and more into demand for home purposes, and as a result of that demand property values are appreciating. Also as a direct outcome of the move suburbanward, large tracts of land which for many years were given over to agricultural or grazing purposes are now populous with houses. To the east of the city's towers of trade thousands of houses now dot an area that was naught but bramble and boulder less than five years ago.

OUT HAYWARD WAY.

Yet further to the east, extending to San Leandro and beyond to Hayward, large areas of orchard land have been divided into villa sites of from one-quarter of an acre to ten acres. The demand for this acreage is insistent and is on the increase. Out Berkeley, Piedmont and Claremont way the hills are dotted with hundreds of beautiful villas and country homes, many of them representing an outlay of many thousands of dollars. The Piedmont-Berkeley-Claremont area is given over almost in its entirety to residence sites of comparatively circumscribed area, while out Hayward way the reverse is the rule. In fact, the San Leandro-Hayward section is a country home instead of a suburban home area.

Nearly all of the tracts which have been opened for residence out there are set to deciduous fruit trees of various sorts, with the cherry, apricot and pear predominating. Often the acreage purchased by the seeker after country life is practically self-supporting when passing into his possession, and by the exercise of common business sense can be made absolutely self-supporting. Land set to pears, for instance, will net this season approximately $1000 per acre. In the Sacramento Valley the current year it will net approximately $2000 per acre. The figures quoted were secured from a person connected with the agricultural department of the University of California, who has just returned to Berkeley from a trip of inspection over the agricultural lands in this vicinity and in the northern part of the State.

A WORD ABOUT TOMATOES.

Land in the vicinity of Hayward, San Leandro and other suburban sections contiguous to Oakland gives a better yield of tomatoes than does that located elsewhere in California. This season tomatoes have a value of from $7.50 to $10 per ton, according to grade, the yield being about 25 tons to the acre. On an average of $8 per ton the tomato crop out Hayward way will yield the owner approximately $200 per acre.

The apricot crop the current year will approximate 200 pounds to the tree. On a basis of 78 trees to the acre, the yield per acre will be 15,600, or seven and one-fifth tons. Growers are holding "cots" at $70 per ton this season, with the buyers for the canneries offering $55 for the green fruit on the trees. At this time it appears probable that the growers will receive an average of $60 per ton for the fruit. Figured on that basis, an acre of apricots will have a value the current season of $468.

QUICK TRANSPORTATION.

Both the Southern and the Western Pacific Railway Companies have agreed to give Hayward a 30-minute express service to Oakland within a short time, thereby adding to the desirability of land in that section for country residence purposes. The route of each road lies through a country of picturesque natural attractions which form a fitting background for the charm of blossoming trees and flowering plant. The Southern Pacific Company is prepared to operate a belt line motor service from Oakland to Newark via Hayward, Niles and Alvarado just as soon as the necessary equipment arrives. It is expected the service will be a fact accomplished not later than August 1. At or about that time the Western Pacific Company will add two more trains to its Oakland-Hayward local run.

Over in Contra Costa county the Oakland and Antioch Railway Company is pushing its line toward this city with all possible dispatch. Late fall will witness the driving of the last spike at the Oakland terminus and the operation of a regular and frequent service to the interior towns of the county in question. The Oakland and Antioch road opens to suburban settlement a most desirable country contiguous to Oakland, besides affording quick transportation to market for the products of Contra Costa county farms, orchards and vineyards. It has been announced that certain lands within twenty minutes' ride of Oakland will be subdivided into acre home sites which will be offered for sale at $200 each. Ultimately it is the purpose of the United Properties Company, the $200,000,000 Oakland concern behind the Oakland and Antioch, to connect its tracks with those of the Vallejo Northern, another of its units, and through medium of both to make a large and fertile section of the rich Sacramento Valley directly tributary to this city.

SANTA CLARA COUNTY.

Another unit of the United Properties company—the San Francisco, Oakland and San José railway, locally known as the Key Route—will open to settlement by suburbanites a large and fertile fruit and farm area in Santa Clara county. Fruit growers in that locality are holding apricots at from $60 to $65 per ton, green, and the dried fruit at 17 cents per pound. The Campbell growers are under agreement not to sell their "cots" for less than $80 per ton, green.

Santa Clara county prunes have advanced one-quarter cent per pound the current week owing to the report from abroad that there will be only half a crop of that fruit in France, Austria, Servia and Bosnia, and that all European quotations have been withdrawn. Four and one-half cents per pound is being offered for Santa Clara county prunes, and is finding but few takers. Five and even six cents per pound for the fruit is being freely predicted. At this time it appears probable the growers will realize at least 4¾ cents per pound for their crop. Santa Clara clingstone peaches are in demand at from $40 to $50 per ton, with no sales. Freestones are quoted by the buyers at from $35 to $40 per ton, with no takers.

COLONIST RATES.

In pursuance with its long established colonizing policy, the Southern Pacific Company will establish cheap rates to this State from Eastern points on September 15, the same being operative up to and including October 15. During the last ten years an average of 60,000 homeseekers have been attracted to California by similar rates established by the company, and it is estimated by the traffic officials of the road that the aggregate colonist travel this year will exceed that of previous years. The direct result of the migration from the Middle West and the East to this State will be an increased demand for agricultural lands, as, for the most part, the colonist is a lover of and a tiller of the soil. Alameda, Contra Costa and Santa Clara counties will secure a generous quota of these homeseekers, and so will the Sacramento Valley. Appreciating that fact, local real estate men are opening to settlement attractive farm areas within the sections mentioned with an almost certain guarantee that the demand therefor will be equal to the supply.

The rates that become effective on the S. P. lines on September 15 are the same as those that were in operation last spring. They carry a sweeping reduction on the prevailing rates and provide stopover privileges, thereby affording the prospective colonist ample opportunity and time to compare soil and climatic conditions in various portions of the State with a view to making an intelligent selection of his new home. From Missouri river points to California the reduction in rate is from $40 to $25, and from Chicago is from $49.75 to $33. Already the officials of the S. P. company are preparing to handle the great volume of traffic called forth by the cheap fare, and to that end routings are being made thus early from the Middle West points, subject, of course, to the time and schedule arrangements heretofore quoted.

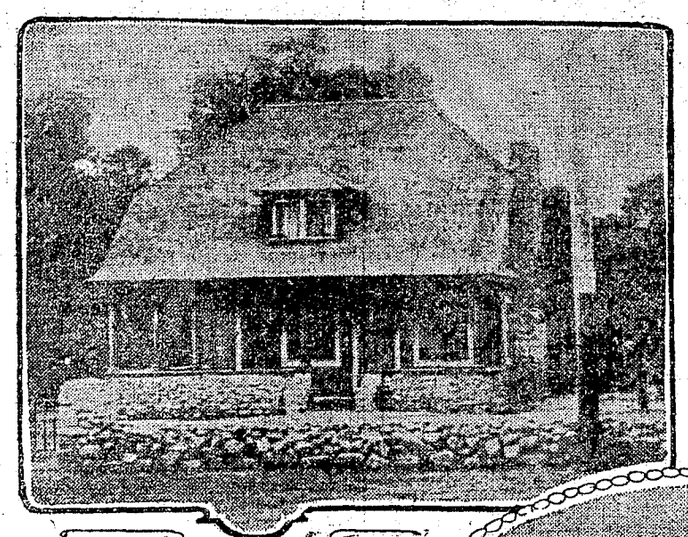

BUSINESS IS GOOD.

Mr. Newell, of Newell-Murdoch Company, formerly Newell-Hendricks, Inc., reports a most satisfactory week of sales in Thousand Oaks and vicinity.

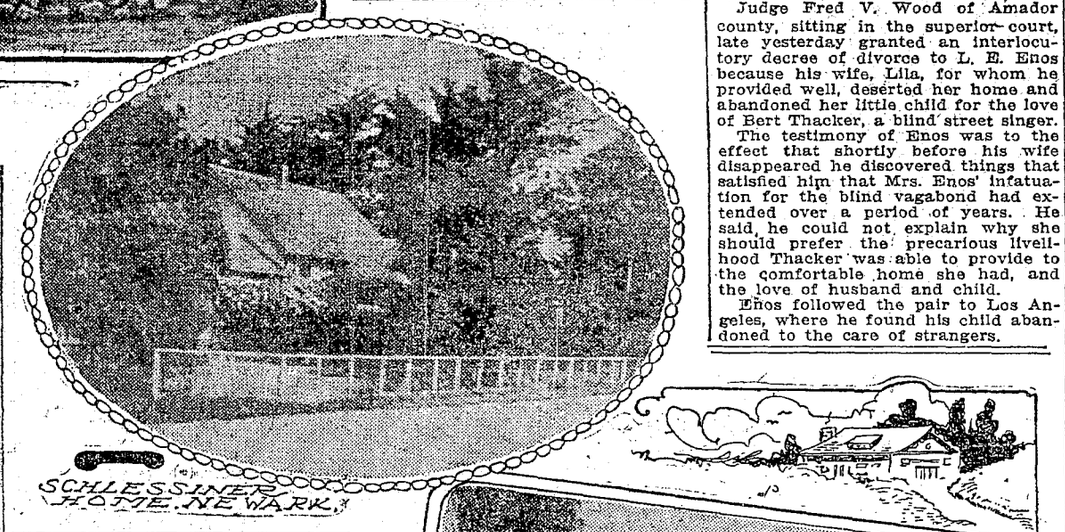

Among the new houses planned for this most unique and attractive tract, is one which Mr. Murdoch will build on Yosemite avenue. Mr. J. Hudson Thomas, the well-known Berkeley architect, is preparing the sketches for this residence, which will be an example of the architecture used in English country homes.

Sales for the week, though not as numerous as of the corresponding week of last month, were largely made to out of town purchasers, and serves to indicate that the commencement of the influx of new money and new citizens, occasioned by the prospects of the Panama Pacific Exposition, is at hand.

How to Cure Corns

Home Treatment for Foot Troubles Brings Instant Relief.

The continued irritating effects of sore feet sometimes involves the whole nervous system, developing nervous disorders. A trouble of this kind should never be neglected. One of the most effective treatments known to science is the following: "Dissolve two tablespoonfuls of Calocide compound in a basin of hot water; soak the feet in this for full fifteen minutes, gently massaging the sore parts. (Less time will not give the desired results.) Repeat this each night until the cure is permanent." The effect will be a revelation. The pain goes instantly and the feet feel so good you could sing with joy. Corns and callouses can be peeled right off. Bunions are reduced to normal and inflammation drawn out. Sweaty and smelly feet, swollen and tender feet need but a few treatments. Calocide was formerly confined to professional use, but can now be bought by the general public. Any druggist has it in stock or will quickly get it from his wholesale house. A twenty-five cent package is said to be sufficient to cure the worst feet.

BANKERS' NEPHEW IN LAW'S TOILS

J. B. Monette Seeks the Withdrawal of Embezzlement Charge.

LOS ANGELES, July 13.—In the custody of Deputy Sheriff W. J. Phisby of Sacramento, J. B. Monette, nephew of a prominent banker and mining man of Los Angeles, is scurrying about the city today endeavoring to obtain the withdrawal of a warrant charging him with the embezzlement of $150.

Monette was arrested last night. The charge was preferred by an insurance company of Sacramento. He was at a fashionable downtown hotel, but in explanation of the charge declared that he could not satisfy the claim against him because he was "dead broke."

Instead of being taken to jail Monette spent the night in charge of Deputy Phisby and today he made vigorous efforts to bring friends into communication with the authorities of Sacramento to have the matter settled out of court. Unless the warrant is withdrawn before evening Monette will be taken north tonight.

INVOKE INDIAN GODS FOR RAIN

Creek Tribe Resort to Ancient Customs in Oklahoma for Relief.

WETUMKA, Okla., July 13.—Creek Indians in this vicinity are resorting to ancient tribal customs in an attempt to obtain rain. One of their customs, which has been widely followed in the last week is to stake mud turtles on the edge of a stream just far enough away from the water so they cannot reach it. It is the Indian's belief that the turtles, despairing of their attempts to reach the water, invoke the aid of the "Great Spirit" to send rain so that the stream will be raised and brought near them.

Since the turtles were first staked out several rains have fallen. The Indians believe their prayers are being answered and they are fastening up more turtles to pray for a still greater rainfall.

TAFT TO RIDE ON NOTED TURNPIKE

President Will Motor to Manassas On the Road Used by Soldiers.

WASHINGTON, July 13. — When President Taft goes to Manassas, Va., July 21 to speak at the joint reunion of the Blue and Gray armies on the battlefield of Bull Run, he will travel over the same old turnpike that thousands of Union soldiers used fifty years ago.

The President will not make use of his private car on this trip, but will motor down from the Capitol with Secretary Hilles and Major Butt. Much of the ride will be over the road used by General McDowell's soldiers when the tide of battle turned against them and they fled toward Washington.

WIFE LEFT HIM FOR STREET SINGER, CHARGE

Judge Fred V. Wood of Amador county, sitting in the superior court, late yesterday granted an interlocutory decree of divorce to L. E. Enos because his wife, Lila, for whom he provided well, deserted her home and abandoned her little child for the love of Bert Thacker, a blind street singer.

The testimony of Enos was to the effect that shortly before his wife disappeared he discovered things that satisfied him that Mrs. Enos' infatuation for the blind vagabond had extended over a period of years. He said, he could not explain why she should prefer the precarious livelihood Thacker was able to provide to the comfortable home she had, and the love of husband and child.

Enos followed the pair to Los Angeles, where he found his child abandoned to the care of strangers.

GOVERNOR DENEEN TAKES STAND IN LORIMER CASE

Interest Heightened by Appearance of Illinois Executive Before Senate Investigation

WASHINGTON, July 13.—Interest in the Lorimer election investigation was resumed today in the special Senate committee by the testimony of Governor Deneen of Illinois. Several days ago it was first announced that he would be on the stand today, and his arrival in the city a few hours before the session began renewed interest in what he would have to say.

This is the first time the governor has appeared before any of the investigations of the election and his story was regarded as certain to have a weighty effect on the conflicting tales told by other witnesses about the part he played in the election.

WAS "LIAR STILL."

Governor Deneen told of his nomination for governor in 1904. Governor Yates had testified that Governor Deneen failed to carry out his promise to support Yates for senator and Yates declared Deneen was a "liar still."

"I don't think the senatorship was mentioned at that time," declared Governor Deneen today.

Governor Deneen said that he afterward supported Yates for senator and that their relations had always been pleasant. He denied that Yates ever had given him to understand that he had lied in connection with the support of Yates. Yates testified that in conversation with Deneen he had given Deneen to understand that he had not acted fairly toward him.

DISCUSSES OPPOSITION.

Governor Deneen discussed his opposition to the election of Edward Shurtieff as speaker of the Illinois legislature which elected Senator Lorimer in 1909.

Deneen said he favored the re-election of Senator Hopkins after the primaries. In furthering this election he said he urged the holding of a Republican caucus at Springfield so that Republicans from Foss' district might vote for Foss in the caucus and subsequently follow the vote of the majority of the caucus.

The local educators and many others from all parts of the country eulogized the late Mrs. Richards, who was the founder of the Association of Collegiate Alumnæ, a special lecturer at the University of California summer school two years ago, a professor of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, an author, investigator and organizer of civic and military and educational reforms.

JOHN DELANCY TO BE FREE

Young Attorney to Be Granted Parole by the Prison Board.

SACRAMENTO, July 13. — Governor Johnson has recommended to the board of prison directors that John S. Delancey, a young Oakland attorney now confined in San Quentin prison on a six-year sentenced for embezzlement be paroled. The board will grant the parole at once.

Delancey is serving a sentence for the embezzlement of $10,700 from the estate of the late George Hite Cook. Delancey was attorney for George Gray, once public administrator of Alameda county and in charge of the George Hite Cook estate.

District Attorney Donahue, when interviewed on the subject, said

"Application was made last January to Governor Johnson for executive clemency for Delancey and the Governor was much impressed with the plea. At that time I strongly opposed the granting of parole, because I believed the application to be then premature, but I promised the Governor that I would later let him hear from me. The application has again been renewed and as his time for parole will soon be up and also inasmuch as Delancey has demonstrated that he realizes that he did wrong and wants an opportunity to make good, I have withdrawn my opposition.

"On parole he will have to report every month and will have an opportunity to again make a man of himself under the eye of the law."

Many law officers feel that Delancey has been severely punished and all want to give him a chance to make good in the world.

DR. FRISBIE IS VICTIM OF AUTO

Physician Near Death as the Result of Serious Blood Poisoning.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 13.—Dr. E. G. Frisbie, who last February ran over Miss Bessie Hogan with his automobile and took her to the Ten Eyck apartment house at Larkin and California streets, leaving her in the doorway, has again figured in an accident, this time being himself the victim of blood poisoning caused from a wound received while cranking his machine several days ago. He is lying in the St. Thomas hospital severely ill, with little hope held out by his attending physicians, Drs. S. B. Carpenter, C. A. Dozier and Miller Stevens, for his recovery.

The wound was made on his face when he was thrown against the radiator of the auto. He dressed the bruise and last week went to the Yosemite. There he was taken with a severe attack of blood poisoning in the wound which rapidly developed.

Dr. Frisbie, who at the time he injured Miss Hogan, was accompanied by his nurse, Miss Julia Badding, gave himself up to the police, and after paying the costs of the accident and for Miss Hogan's medical attendance, the case against him was dismissed.

ACCUSES HUSBAND OF DESERTING FAMILY

Florence Hughes finally became weary of the negligent manner in which her husband, Robert E., provided for her and applied to the police to compel him to do his duty. He got wind of the trouble that was brewing for him, according to testimony upon which Mrs. Hughes has been granted an interlocutory decree of divorce in the superior court, and disappeared. This constituted willful desertion, according to the decree.

ESCAPED WITH HIS LIFE.

"Twenty-one years ago I faced an awful death," writes H. B. Martin, Port Harrelson, S. C. "Doctors said I had consumption and the dreadful cough I had looked like it, sure enough. I tried everything I could hear of for my cough, and was under the treatment of the best doctor in Georgetown, S. C., for a year, but could get no relief. A friend advised me to try Dr. King's New Discovery. I did so, and was completely cured. I feel that I owe my life to this great throat and lung cure." It's positively guaranteed for coughs, colds and all bronchial affections. 50c and $1. Trial bottle free at Osgood Bros.

SAN FRANCISCANS INDORSE MUNYON

Local People Flock to Give Support to Health Expert's Theories.

Deputy Sheriff Connolly Says Munyon's Methods Gave Him Relief.

Additional emphatic statements in favor of Prof. James M. Munyon's new treatment for rheumatism and other ailments were made yesterday by followers here of the noted eastern health expert. Among those who came forward yesterday to announce allegiance to Munyon's "New Health" theories was Frank Connolly, who is a deputy sheriff, stationed at the county jail. Mr. Connolly is widely known in San Francisco and lives at 920 Ocean avenue. He said.

"I have suffered from rheumatism for something like 13 years, and have never found anything in all that time that has benefited me so much as this new Munyon uric acid treatment. I have taken the remedy only two weeks, and yet all of the pains in my ankle, from which I suffered most, have gone, and my skin, which seemed to have a texture like sand paper, feels healthy and right again. I am still taking the treatment, but I must say that I already feel myself a well man. This Munyon treatment certainly acts quickly. I am glad to recommend it to all of my friends."

Among others who give statements in favor of Munyon at his headquarters in the Owl drug store, in the Phelan building, was Mrs. W. Collins, who lives at 227 Turk street. She said:

"I had been suffering with nervous breakdown—with pain in the back of my neck from rheumatism. I was also much constipated. I took Munyon's treatment and now I sleep and eat perfectly. I have been using Munyon's medicines for twelve years and would think of having no other medicines in the house. Munyon cured my niece of malaria in one treatment."

Another who called was Mrs. H. Vogt, who lives at 814 Devisadero street. She said:

"I am taking Prof. Munyon's uric acid course of treatment for a case of general nervous debility and rheumatism. I have only taken the medicine a short time, but my rheumatism has almost disappeared and I am sleeping and eating better than I have for months. My system was all run down, and I was feeling miserable until I began taking Prof. Munyon's remedies. I am glad to say that I can recommend his treatment to any sick person."

Free advice to all sick and ailing persons is given by Munyon's staff of expert physicians at his headquarters in the Owl drug store in the Phelan building. Hours from 10 in the morning to 6 at night and until 10 o'clock Saturday.

Evils of the Accrediting System.

There may be good reason for the attack on the entrance examinations required at Harvard, but the faults of the Harvard system are by no means arguments in favor of the accrediting system. Moreover, it must be remembered that Harvard has grown to be the greatest institution of learning on this continent under the system so severely condemned by J. Stanley Brown and others in the National Educational Association. Doubtless the methods could be improved, but a system that has yielded such splendid results cannot be wholly bad. While conservatism is entitled to no honor for its own sake, it often stands for what has stood the test of time and experience and won the approval of the wise and judicious.

While entrance examinations may be too severe and too technical, they are a barrier to fraud and incompetence. The accrediting system fosters both, and distorts the purpose of free popular education. Admission only on individual examination puts scholarship and capacity to a test which is evaded under the accrediting system, and establishes a standard to which all must measure up to, provided the examinations are fairly and honestly conducted.

Under the accrediting system the public high schools are brought under the jurisdiction of the State Universities. Their curricula must meet the requirements of the university faculties, who proceed on the assumption that the chief mission of the high schools is to provide a preparatory course for the university. Hence the high schools get their text-books and instructors from the universities and the courses of study in them are arranged on the assumption that each graduate will take a university course.

In consequence the high schools have become in effect merely preparatory schools, when in fact they are intended to provide the finishing course in popular education. Only a small proportion of the pupils who pass through the grammar schools enter the high schools; a still smaller proportion graduate from the high schools, and only a small percentage of the high school graduates enter colleges and universities. Thus the accrediting system wrenches the high school from its initial purpose and makes it an auxiliary to the university; it is made a mere recruiting ground for the campus, and has virtually ceased to be a finishing school for the mass of common school attendants.

For another thing, the accrediting system puts under ban in the high school, graduates of the normal schools, for the university influence demands that the high schools be officered by university graduates. The normal schools were established and are maintained to train teachers. They have no other reason for existence. Students who take the normal course do so with the intention of making teaching their profession; the course they take at the normal school is supposed to fit them for the teaching profession. Yet the universities are trying to usurp the prerogatives of the normal schools and subvert the reasons for their existence. Ever since he assumed the presidency of the University of California Benjamin Ide Wheeler has been girding at the normal schools and bringing the high schools more and more under the control of the university faculty. According to his idea only university graduates should be permitted to teach in the high schools. This idea is in logical accord with the assumption that the chief mission of the high schools is to train students for a university course.

In this effort to enlarge the influence and aggrandize the university an injury is being inflicted on the public school system and the usefulness of the normal schools impaired. This effort is prompted by the false theory that a university course is the natural and logical conclusion of a common school education. It is not, in fact, and never can be in the nature of things; but a vast superstructure has been built up on the assumption that it is.

There are other objections to the accrediting system, but the injury being inflicted on the public school system—the academic tyranny it has created—is sufficient to condemn it. Entrance examinations may inflict some hardships on individuals, but they will do away with the malign domination over the high schools that is becoming an increasing menace to the independence of the common school system.

Bailey's attempt to load the reciprocity agreement with the tariff bills passed by the Democratic House has fared no better than the effort of Cummins to weight it down with amendments that would insure its defeat. Now La Follette is to take his turn at the throttling game. All the shifts known to parliamentary practice are being resorted to by Bailey and the Republican insurgents to prevent reciprocity with Canada being accomplished. If Bailey had been allowed his way all the tariff legislation proposed by the Democrats would have gone to pot with the reciprocity agreement. But the scheme to kill the reciprocity bill by amending it is now so well understood that it is bound to fail. The country is looking on with interested and by no means indulgent eyes, and the Senators who are now playing a game of trickery to defeat the will of the people will hereafter be called to account.

At last the insurgent Senators who voted against the Payne-Aldrich tariff law are in complete accord with the American Economist, the Protective Tariff League and Uncle Joe Cannon. They have become the staunchest of standpatters, although they were but yesterday clamoring for lower tariff duties. The protective tariff that La Follette, Cummins and Bristow so vigorously assailed in the debate on the Payne-Aldrich bill has become the idol of those gentlemen. It is the quickest and most complete reversal of opinion on record. How sincere it is may be judged by the warm praises the American Economist, the subsidized organ of the metal trusts, is bestowing on the insurgent leaders.

—CHICAGO RECORD HERALD.

COMMON SENSE TRIUMPHS

At last has common sense triumphed in the celebration of the anniversary of the Nation's birthday. Is there anyone who is not gratified over the result? We opine not.

Accepting the local experience as a criterion of the success of the entire movement for a safe and sane Fourth of July, there is but one conclusion possible; and that is that in this year of grace 1911 we have first learned how to do honor to the work of the fathers in a manner that becomes rational human beings. Is there any man who will not say that the day was passed in this city with infinitely more pleasure to the greater number of people than formerly?

The people, young and old, enjoyed themselves in the playgrounds and parks and in the suburban countryside, after the manner of men, women and children who sought enjoyment, and not the nerve-wracking, ear-splitting blare and detonation, the headachy smell of powder smoke, and the constant menace of fire and bodily injury. As to this city, so of others. Reports from abroad—incomplete as they are at the present time—all attest that the local experience was the experience of every city in the country where the safe and sane celebration of the Fourth was in vogue.

Consider the tabulation made by the Chicago Tribune—which paper has been careful for a number of years to gather statistics that have a bearing on the fatalities chargeable to the celebration of the Fourth of July under the barbaric practices about to be totally abandoned—and the story which those figures tell is sufficient vindication of the new rationalism. Thirteen death against twenty-eight reported on the night of the Fourth last year, and 294 injured as against 1785, according to the first returns of the last Fourth—just think of the difference in the harvest of misery! That there were thirteen killed and 294 injured this year simply signifies fatalities in unwise communities, or because of the existence of foolish people who believe that there can be no fun except there be noise and danger.

By the new method of celebration we gain in every way—in comfort, peace of mind and avoidance of property loss, death and suffering.—Portland Telegram.

WASN'T A QUITTER

The "comedy humaine," which marches through the newspapers from day to day, is never trite nor trivial; and occasionally one finds the character so disposed that a thrill of the most genuine quality is the result, or a sense of humor of the tenderest kind is evoked.

In Chicago, recently, an officer of the law appeared with a lawbreaker in his custody. The officer was taking the man back to the town where he had broken a law; and the offender was making no protest.

But during the stay in Chicago, where a change of trains had to be effected, the officer became thirsty, and went with his prisoner into a grog shop.

Either the correspondents have left some of the details out of the story, or the officer must have been in an abnormally enfeebled condition; at any rate, the drink served to the officer had "an awful effect" upon him, and he became quite helpless.

Here was the opportunity for the prisoner to escape. He was not handcuffed, and the bystanders in the grogshop did not know that he was a prisoner. He might have slipped quietly away, and nothing would have been said.

But this particular prisoner was of a different stripe—if one may employ a metaphor which seems happily dismal—and he did not run away. "I couldn't leave him sick and helpless," explained the prisoner, afterward; and so he attended the officer until he was on his feet again, and then both men proceeded to their unhappy destination.

This prisoner plainly had a sense of honor and a sense of comradeship—and possibly a sense of humor; and his conduct suggests again an old question as to whether our prisons do not, in a great majority of cases, engulf the men who are really best equipped for a larger life, while they show closed and indifferent doors to the thousands of men who have neither honor, nor humor, nor comradeship, and who thrive in a thousand realms of villainy, where the voice of the warden is never heard.

  Is sailing back.
It noted two new kinds of fish
  And shot a yak.
It mapped the icebergs and the cakes
  It came across.
And rectified some old mistakes
  Regarding moss.
And now with seven tons of notes
  And lots of fame,

20 YEARS AGO IN OAKLAND

B. D. Boswell has discovered a new ledge of blue trap rock on his ranch in North Berkeley, which promises to be very valuable, and it will probably be used in macadamizing the lower end of Fulton street by the town trustees.

Several rattlesnakes have been caught in the hills back of Blair park of late. Sunday afternoon some boys from San Francisco killed one five feet long, having ten rattles and a button.

At the last meeting of the school board in Livermore the following teachers were elected: E. H. Walker, Mrs. Gregory, Miss C. Boone, Miss Anway, Miss M. McKee, Miss B. Bailey, Miss K. Davis, Miss E. Smith, Miss R. Lellerbach.

Henry Gotla, a young hunter of the First ward, started out Saturday night in quest of game in the foothills of East Oakland. He returned next day with twenty-one rabbits as the result of his hunt. Henry says that he fired but twenty-five shots and missed but four. Henry is some marksman.

A very early morning marriage took place in West Oakland Sunday when Miss Minnie Reilinger of Magnolia street, near Eighth, and Alfred A. Lazarus were joined in marriage. The ceremony was performed by Justice Charles Snook at 6:30 o'clock at the residence of the bride, after which the young couple deserted for Humboldt county by steamer.

The Pacific Planing Mill on Second street between Grove and Castro, the property of A. Kendall, was destroyed by a fierce fire shortly before 4 o'clock this morning, entailing a loss of more than $15,000. The blaze is believed to have had its origin in the engine house.

In a raid conducted by Deputy Collector Lambert this morning a large quantity of opium was seized in the local Chinatown and confiscated.

Under an agreement reached between the promoters of the Hayward electric railroad and President M. J. Keller of the Board of Trade, subscriptions will be commenced immediately. The agreement provides that the line shall run through to Broadway.

Among the Oaklanders who have left on their summer vacations are the following: Miss Millie J. Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Watson, Miss Gertrude Allen, Miss Blanche Middleton, Miss Clara Miller, George Chase, Mrs. McClure and Miss Maggie McClure, Assemblyman J. G. McCall, Judge Ellsworth, Dr. and Mrs. Brendorf, Mrs. Batt Biddle, James A. Abbay, Arthur W. Spear, Harry Masterson, Mrs. O. D. Squire, Mrs. F. M. Crawford, H. P. Squire, George L. Goodman, Miss Gertrude Allen, Miss Effie Costigan, Misses Blanch and Mabel Middleton.

THE HOBBY CLUB

The Hobby Club is the latest freak organization developed in New York City. It comprises collectors of antiques, bibliophiles, artists, writers and scientists of the Eastern metropolis.

Its purpose is to organize men who have one great ambition in life aside from making money. It will bring together the citizen who collects modern postage stamps and the man who gathers Egyptian relics of the ancient dynasties.

It plans great feasts, at which the owner of the Guttenberg Bible worth a king's ransom and the seeker after Indian arrowheads of queer design may sit together and hold converse, each on his especial obsession.

It's a pleasant idea—and one that has much to commend it. The life of many a man has been brightened, in its sunset years, by a hobby.

The "crank" is a nuisance at any stage of the game. He is a creature of a single fixed idea, who eternally endeavors to convert the world to his particular way of thinking.

The man with a hobby, on the other hand, usually is a citizen of many broad interests. He makes his hobby a source of amusement and recreation rather than the chief tenet in a code of ethics as rigid as the laws of the Medes and Persians.

The Hobby Club should fill a long-felt want. It will bring together many eminent men, possessing a store of information of great benefit to each other.

It will give breadth to the views of the members and will furnish a source of amusement for many a man who has retired from active business life, only to fill a big void in his life that the years make it increasingly difficult to fill.—Seattle Times.

America Scores Again

Weymann's victory in the race for the International Aviation trophy and Atwood's Boston-New York flight have redeemed the American aviation record this year. Recent comparisons of the progress of aviation in Europe and in this country have not been pleasant for Americans. Europe has had great interurban races which have developed superb feats of speed, endurance, skill and daring. They have marked progress in practical aviation—in the art of constructiong machines for long-distance travel. Aeroplanes are manufactured and sold across the water.

Here aviation has been confined mainly to field exhibitions. Of late our most skilful birdmen have been doing circus stunts for gate-money. We have not yet perfected an aeroplane engine which can compare with foreign makes. American machines are not on the market. Probably the blight of monopoly which one company is trying to fasten on aeroplane manufacture is the principal check on American inventive genius.

But Weymann wins the international cup a second time for America in three races. He maintained the remarkable speed of seventy-seven miles an hour. Atwood breaks our records by flying from Boston to New London, 135 miles, with a passenger. He flies alone from New London to Governor's Island, 133 miles, and makes a spectacular circle over New York City. These men show what Americans can do when they try.—New York World.

Bachelor Musings

A girl has such an imagination she can expect to have curly hair any minute.

The reason a man can get so mad with his shirt buttons is he has a wife.

When a man tells with pride how he resigned from a good job, it's a sign he was put or kicked out.

It's harder to do right than wrong, but it wouldn't make any difference to most people if it wasn't.

IDEALS IN NEW YORK

New York has received severe criticism from contributors to the discussion of the question in a letter published by the World, "Why should a young man seek to leave New York to avoid temptation?" A mother who has suffered sees innumerable temptations to drink in New York. Another contributor complains that ideals are stifled here. Still another refers to the Great White Way as typical of New York and as offering allurements which lead young men astray.

New York has suffered from the reputation of the Great White Way, the material Great White Way, with its garish lights, gilded resorts and frivolous denizens. The fool with money, the brazen adventuress who wants his money, the vain young woman who mistakes the shams for the realities of life, the wild asses' colts of both sexes who live for pleasure and excitement, have brought it much into the news. It is typical of New York with outsiders who judge the city by sensational newspaper heads and with the unthinking who cannot distinguish between a feature and a type.

New York has other great white ways, shining with far more radiance than the way of glare and gilt. It has an intellectual great white way; it has a spiritual great white way—great white ways of ethics, of science, of art, of literature—and their allurements are far stronger to men of sound ideals than all the shams and the fleeting pleasures of the way with only electric lights.

Ideals come from within, not from without. They are formed by the man himself in the light that glows within and can be modified by association only with his consent. Whether a young man in New York has sound or false ideals depends upon himself and upon those influences which have shaped his thoughts. If he has sound ideals, what finer field can he seek to develop and apply them?

Is character his ideal? Where can he find better models than in the strong men who have come by a process of sifting to the metropolis and have helped to create its intellectual, spiritual, artistic and scientific resources and achievement?

Is his ideal intellectual development? Where can he find better assistance than in the universities, schools, organizations of New York, and that greatest of universities—the Public Library and its forty branches, open to all people? The new building itself is an education and inspiration.

Is his ideal business success? Where can he find wider scope for character and capacity, or a place where the methods and standards of business affect more people?

Is his ideal public service? Where can he find a better field for beneficial activity than in serving the five million people of Greater New York?

Let us reverse the question. Why should a young man leave New York to seek the development of the best ideals?

THAT GRAVEYARD WEDDING.

Let us hope that the Sherman couple, who married in a cemetery, will never be separated until one or the other is carried back there to rest for all time. Too many who are married in the courthouse soon return there to have the knot untied.—Waxahachie Sex Enterprise.

DEL MARTIN

813 Twelfth Street

I was born with a strange and remarkable power—power not meant to gratify the idle curious, but to direct, advise and help men and women who are in trouble and suspense concerning the everyday affairs of life.

READINGS $1.00
REDUCED FEE FOR THIS WEEK ONLY

I give just as careful and complete a revelation of your business, love and domestic affairs for $1.00 as I do for my regular fee of $3.00 and $5.00. I am taking the reduced fee plan to introduce myself and my work more extensively to the people of this city, where I have established my permanent home.

MY WORK SPEAKS FOR ITSELF.

While I have the indorsements of hundreds of the most noted men and women of America, I deem them of little value, since I stand alone upon the merits of my work. Any person who can believe their own eyes and ears cannot help but know that my work is of the highest order of genuine clairvoyance.

MASTER OF STRANGE POWERS.

The Del Martin Psychic Treatment without Apparatus or Drugs builds vigorous brains, superb, energetic bodies, developing great nervous force, strong muscles, vigorous heart, creating a perfect circulation, permanently eradicating constipation, indigestion, dyspepsia, nervousness, nervous prostration, rheumatism, overcoming general debility, lack of ambition, lack of vitality by revitalizing, regenerating, rebuilding and restoring the body, brain and nerves to their highest power.

WHAT I DO FOR YOU

I call your name, tell your age, your occupation, tell what condition your business is in and how to promote it, tell you all about your wife, husband, sweetheart or lover, and how to win the love of anyone you desire. I tell you of any move, journey, speculation, position or change of any kind which may be before you and how to act to obtain the best results. I tell you exactly what your acquaintances think of you, who to trust and who to shun. I tell you whom and when you will marry, if at all, and give their name, age, occupation and disposition. In short, I tell you everything you called to find out, and that, too, without asking you a question or you speaking a word.

Reunites the separated. Teaches you how to fascinate and control anyone you desire. Causes happy and speedy marriages. Develops mediumship to its fullest degree in those who have any latent power whatever. If I do not succeed as above stated, I ask no fee for my work and time whatsoever.

Parlors arranged so you meet no strangers and suited to the most exclusive patronage. Permanently located in his own home. Maid in waiting.

'IN AND OUT' WINS JOYOUS WELCOME FROM OAKLANDERS

The town is talking about the remarkable bit of character acting which Homer B. Mason is doing at the Oakland Orpheum this week. As a gentleman "souse" Mason is unquestionably delightful and anyone who fancies that it is impossible to make an intoxicated clubman likeable and amusing and completely without offense, should drop in and have a look at the trick that Mr. Mason performs.

A good many people will recall Mason as the chief feature of the big "Stubborn Cinderella" company that played here two years ago. He is a college chap who brought to the stage the snap and vim and cleverness that are sometimes found in the ranks of college comedians. With that for a start Mason tacked on seven or eight years of experience in the biggest musical comedy productions of the East. Now vaudeville gets the fruit of all his training and native skill and the result is a mighty clever bit of entertainment.

Marguerite Keeler, beautiful and talented, is a splendid foil for Mason, and there appears, besides these two gifted artists, a company of excellence and all of them have a chance to shine in the clever play "In and Out."

Rousby's Scenic Review, a wonderfully realistic series of views that show "London by Day and Night," constitutes a spectacle that is highly diverting.

General Ed Lavine, "The man who has soldiered all his life," gives a juggling performance that is most pleasing.

Melville Ellis, immaculate in dress and an expert at the piano, supplies class in an act which is pleasing to all who love music well rendered.

Lively fun comes when Lydell and Butterworth have the stage. They are blackface comedians of high degree with pleasing songs, dances and comedy chatter.

Raymond and Caverly, German comedy stars, will close their engagement next Saturday night, as will also the Bellclair Bros. with their wonderful "Hercules" act, and Albert Hole, the English boy soprano.

Baby's Voice

Every woman's heart responds to the charm and sweetness of a baby's voice, because nature intended her for motherhood. But even the loving nature of a mother shrinks from the ordeal because such a time is regarded as a period of suffering and danger. Women who use Mother's Friend are saved much discomfort and suffering, and their systems, being thoroughly prepared by this great remedy, are in a healthy condition to meet the time with the least possible suffering and danger. Mother's Friend is recommended only for the relief and comfort of expectant mothers; it is in no sense a remedy for various ills, but its many years of success, and the thousands of endorsements received from women who have used it are a guarantee of the benefit to be derived from its use. This remedy does not accomplish wonders but simply assists nature to perfect its work. Mother's Friend allays nausea, prevents caking of the breasts, and in every way contributes to strong, healthy motherhood. Mother's Friend is sold at drug stores. LAWSON HELD PRISONER IN NORTH BY BIG BEAR

SEATTLE, July 13.—Thomas W. Lawson, the Boston financier, who has been passing his vacation "somewhere" in the west, has been discovered. He was located by a bear—an ordinary black bear at that, and not of the oil or copper variety either.

Lawson has been living on the ranch of an old friend, Thomas Sharp, in Oregon, near Prineville. The trout fishing has been good and Lawson was wont to hike about 12 miles up certain streams daily.

Last Saturday he went away after telling Mrs. Sharp of the trout he would bring home for Sunday's dinner. When darkness was an hour away and Lawson was late to dinner, Sharp started after him. After a walk of three miles he heard a faint "Hello!" and recognized Lawson's voice.

In a few minutes he reached the banks of Waiwawai creek and saw a laughable picture—one that would be worth good money to a Sunday editor. Out on the end of a log suspended over the water sat Lawson astride. His face was red, his hat minus, one shoe gone, the other in his right hand as though ready to be thrown.

On the bank sat a bear—a big, black fellow—slowly devouring the trout that Lawson had thrown to him, evidently to induce him to leave.

Lawson said he had been a prisoner for five hours.

ENGRAVERS HOLD UP $30,000,000 IN BONDS

SACRAMENTO, July 13.—Eastern engravers who are working on several important bond issues of the State are tying up $30,000,000 worth of bonds through delays, says State Treasurer Roberts.

On the first of the month the $18,000,000 good roads bonds, the $9,000,000 San Francisco harbor improvement bonds, the $1,000,000 India basin bonds and the $1,500,000 San Diego harbor improvement bonds should have been ready for sale at the hands of the State treasurer, but have not been received yet.

All the bonds must receive the signature of Governor Johnson and the State treasurer, which will take some days to complete.

NEW YORK LOAN SHARKS LEVY 400 PER CENT

NEW YORK, July 13. — A report made to Mayor Gaynor by Raymond Fossdick, his commissioner of accounts, who has been investigating the business relations of city employes with loan agents, shows that interest rates have been charged running from 60 to 400 per cent a year, and urges that the bill now pending at Albany be passed. This bill provides for the creation of a commission to study the entire question and formulate remedial legislation.

PAIRS OFF 6000 IN TWENTY YEARS

Justice Parker Discovers Few Things About Marriage and Kissing.

STOCKTON, July 13.—Justice A. C. Parker of Stockton, who has married 3000 couples in his twenty years of official life, has compiled data showing that a man invariably marries a woman younger than himself, that two-thirds of the women marry before they are 25, two-thirds of the men before 35, and that more women marry at 18 years than any other age.

The vast majority of marriages are between 18 and 21 years. Thirty-three per cent of these married had been married before, 17 per cent were divorced persons and 16½ per cent widowed. The data shows that lovers seldom perform the osculatory act alike. Some prefer the red rosy lips, others the pink of the blushing cheek and some of the kisses are short and snappy, while many are long and drawn out.

SOCIETY GIRL KEEPS HER WEDDING SECRET

SAN FRANCISCO, July 13.—Miss Pauline Dorothy Schultz, a pretty society girl, and John Clecak Jr., son of a wealthy retired capitalist, have been married since June 24, the young couple keeping their wedding a secret, fearing parental objection. When taxed with the fact Clecak and his bride denied their marrage, but later Clecak notfied his friends that the secret was out, that "there was no use trying to keep it any longer."

Gems Auctioned

LONDON, July 13.—The jewels of the late Lily Price, Duchess of Marlborough, brought $165,700 at auction at Christie's yesterday within fifteen minutes after they were put up. Among the pieces were a necklace of forty-six pearls for $80,500, a pearl brilliant necklace for $35,000, and a pearl brilliant tiara for $37,500.

SOME THINGS WOMEN ARE DOING

NEW YORK.—Although foreign born, some of the glorious courage and matchless self-abnegation of the founders of this country flowed through the veins of Greta Steher, a beautiful young nurse in the home of Henry P. McKenney, millionaire merchant of New York and Suffern. The girl commemorated Independence day by an act that rendered her a heroine—and cost her life.

Miss Steher was faithful in death as in life to little Fredrica Lage, eight eight months old, granddaughter of the merchant. With the baby's cradle a mass of flames, the nurse, clad only in her nightrobe, fought the blaze.

She and her infant charge were so terribly burned that medical science, spurred on by the beseeching prayer of a frantic household, was unable to save them. Miss Steher died at 3 o'clock in the Suffern hospital, and little Fredrica breathed her last an hour later in the mansion on the hill.

EASTON, Pa.—There was a surprise here when it became known that Mrs. Ruth Doster had become the bride of her stepson, Edward Depew Doster. The couple came to Easton, secured a marriage license and were married by Alderman Bruner.

Mrs. Doster was divorced from her husband, General W. E. Doster, on June 11, 1911, and her new husband secured a divorce from his wife at Galveston on October 25, 1910. Mrs. Doster's husband is several years her senior, even though he was her stepson. She is about 27 years old and a musician. General Doster is a prominent attorney and one of the wealthiest residents of Bethlehem.

Prefers Dancing to Coin

COLUMBIA, Conn. — The selectmen have voted to return to Mrs. Mary B. Yeomans a trust fund of $1500 given by her toward the maintenance of Yeomans Hall, which is the town building. This action was taken following the receipt of a letter from Mrs. Yeomans in which she called attention to the fact that the gift was accepted on the conditions that there should be no dancing or similar amusements in the hall, and that the conditions had been frequently violated by the holding of dances and receptions.

The building was originally the gift of Mrs. Yeomans to the town.

ETHEL BARRYMORE TO LEAVE COAST HASTILY

Actress Cancels Engagements in West

Mary Garden Heavily Fined for Running Down Cyclist

SAN FRANCISCO, July 13.—Ethel Barrymore has canceled her coast engagements and is going back to New York. "Nothing at all to say," is the only explanation she vouchsafes, but gossip explains that it is either to begin her battle for a divorce from Russell G. Colt in person or to perfect a reconciliation.

Miss Barrymore left today for Stockton. From there she will go to Sacramento, where she will play her last coast engagement July 15, and immediately return to New York. She was booked to appear in Portland, Spokane, Seattle and other Northwestern cities.

Friends of Miss Barrymore insisted that her real trouble is only a slight misunderstanding with her husband, which has been magnified until both the principals in the case are at sea over it. That is one big reason for the theory that all will be well in the Barrymore-Colt family as soon as she can get back to New York.

New Delay Bobs Up

NEW YORK, July 13.—There was still further delay in the service of divorce papers by the attorneys for Ethel Barrymore on her husband, Russell Griswold Colt, yesterday, to allow for a final conference between Colt and friends of the actress. It is generally conceded that if a reconciliation is not effected today, papers will be served at once. Miss Barrymore delayed action to investigate certain rumors, at the solicitation, it is said, of John Drew, her uncle; Jack Barrymore, her favorite brother, and of other relatives and friends, among whom her young husband is very popular. Added to the difficulties is the fact that Miss Barrymore is a devout Catholic, and always has been opposed to divorce.

Mary Garden Fined

PARIS, July 13.—The suits of Robin, the cyclist, for damages from Mary Garden, the singer, and the Duke de Talleyrand Perigord, husband of Anna Gould, for injuries in an accident on June 19, were decided yesterday. Robin testified that, while dodging a milk cart, he was hit by Miss Garden's automobile, and on the rebound from her machine was knocked down by the Duke de Talleyrand's car. The duke was discharged. Curtis, chauffeur for Miss Garden, was fined $20, and the singer $140.

Anna Leaves Paris

NEW YORK, July 13.—A cablegram was received from Anna Held stating that because of her desire to witness the performance of her husband's latest musical production, "The Follies of 1911," before the piece terminates its New York engagement, she is hastening to America. Miss Held had arranged to leave Paris late in September for this country, to begin rehearsals in a new musical comedy, in which she is to star under the direction of Siegfeld.

RICH WOMAN WINS SUIT

LONDON.—A suit in which Mrs. Louise Winterfeldt of New York was the defendant ended in a verdict in her favor. The complainant was a Bond street complexion specialist, who said that she spent $100,000 a year in maintaining her business, and that she had five assistants, each of whom brought her in an income of $2500 a week for smoothing out wrinkles and restoring to faded cheeks the bloom of youth.

Mrs. Winterfeldt, the specialist alleged, took away from her by unfair means one of her assistants—the kind that brought in $2500 a week. She explained that Mrs. Winterfeldt had paid her $500 for treatment while in London and that an assistant had been allowed to accompany her to America, and Mrs. Winterfeldt had persuaded her to stay there as her secretary. The plaintiff went all the way to America to look the assistant up.

The first annual field day of the boy scouts of Alameda county will be held August 12 in the new field of Bushrod Park playground. The meet is being arranged by Professor Ligda and L. N. Brasfield, chief scoutmaster of the boy scouts of the First Presbyterian church.

There is considerable gossip about the boy scouts of Piedmont affiliating with the boy scouts of America, and according to a statement made by Professor Ligda many of the lads of that community have expressed themselves in favor of the movement.

Scout masters will be trained in the University of California next semester by Professor Ligda, who has been appointed a member of the faculty.

Japanese Girl Missing

STOCKTON, July 13.—Constable Davis is in this city investigating the mysterious disappearance of a 14-year-old Japanese girl. The constable believes that the girl was slain.

The girl, according to her parents, was kidnapped July 5 while sleeping with the other members of the family on a long, benchlike bed. She was dressed in her nightclothes only, as her only clothing was hanging on the wall of the farmhouse, the family says. Her disappearance was not reported at Modesto until last Monday.

Constable Davis has been informed that the girl was given a severe beating by her father because of her fondness for a Chinaman. The officer says he would not be surprised to learn that she was thrown into the Stanislaus river, which is but a short distance from the farmhouse.

Pretty Margaret Millican, 7-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Millican of this city, has stage aspirations and every effort is being made on the part of her parents to encourage her dramatic ambitions.

PLAYGROUND EXPERT OF CHICAGO IS VISITOR

Miss Marion O'Neil, instructor in the Army Square playground of Chicago, is visiting her sister, Mrs. F. W. Stemm, of 3758 Howe street, where she will remain for several weeks. During her sojourn here she will visit the playgrounds in this city.

For many years Miss O'Neil has been connected with the playgrounds of Chicago and is an enthusiastic worker. In an interview last evening with Miss O'Neil she stated that an average of 1000 children attend the grounds daily. She is the only director in charge of the girls' divison of the playgrounds and says that she has no trouble in maintaining order.

"There are two separate departments in Armory Park playground," said Miss O'Neil in giving a resume of her work. "The gymnasium, which contains all the athletic apparatus imaginable, is one of the best equipped in the United States. That is open when the playgrounds are closed. The bathhouses are opened day and night. The poor people of the slums of Chicago take advantage of the showers and swimming pools, which are features of the playgrounds.

"Chicago was among the first cities to realize the importance of the playground movement, and there has been a notable change in the social and intellectional conditions of the south park district since the operation of the playgrounds," declared Miss O'Neil. "The playgrounds have proved a blessing to the members of the rising generation."

INSURGENT EDUCATORS WIN FIRST SKIRMISH

PEARSE IS NAMED BY N. E. A.

Nominating Committee Puts Insurgent Up for Presidency and He Is Elected

Today's Session Is One of the Stormiest in History of Big Organization

SAN FRANCISO, July 13. — Carroll Gardner Pearse, superintendent of schools of Milwaukee, Wis., was elected president of the N. E. A. here today. He was the insurgent candidate.

With one of the stormiest sessions in its history pending the executive members of the association assembled at noon for the election of officers. At the session of the nomination committee held in the morning the insurgents succeeded in nominating Pearse, superintendent of schools of Wilwaukee.

The "old guard," however, obtained the renomination of Durand W. Springer of Detroit for the treasuryship. Springer was nominated by one vote over Miss Catherine D. Blake of New York. As his election would place the balance of power of the executive committee in the hands of the "old guard," the insurgents immediately held a meeting at which it was decided to nominate Miss Blake from the floor.

The meeting of the nominating committee was without incident, except that the insurgents lost one vote when Miss Mary G. Moody, of Connecticut, who was elected a member of the committee at her State meeting on Monday, was replaced formally by Miss L. Angie Stanton, who was certified by Dr. Irwin Shephard, secretary of the association.

FAILS TO FILE CERTIFICATE.

It was explained that Miss Moddy had failed to file with the secretary her certificate of electon. President Ella Flagg Young declared Miss Stanton entitled to represent Connecticut. It is not considered likely that the nomination of Pearse will be contested when it comes up at the meeting of active members at noon today.

Following the meeting of the nominating committee a meeting of insurgents was held in the Chicago headquarters to discuss the nomination of Mrs. Katherine D. Blake for treasurer by a minority report.

Other nominations were: Treasurer, Durand W. S. Springer of Detroit, the incumbent. Springer defeated Mrs. Katherine M. Blake of New York by a vote of 24 to 23.

First vice-president, Mrs. Ella Flagg Young.

Arizona—A. J. Mathews, Tempe.
California—Mark Keppel, Los Angeles.
Oregon—L. H. Alderman, Salem.
Washington—G. E. Beach, Olympia.

TWO ON BOARD.

It was explained in the event of the election of Pearse to the presidency and Mrs. Ella Flagg Young to the vice-presidency the insurgents will have two out of five members on the powerful executive committee. A third member will be J. Stanley Brown of Illinois, already elected chairman of the board of trustees. He is considered favorable to the old guard.

A fifth member to be elected by the board of directors is considered favorable to the old guard and the bounds of power, therefore, will lie in the hands of the treasurer. For this reason the nomination of Springer is considered by the insurgents as unfavorable to their cause, and is viewed with apprehension.

After an extended conference the insurgents decided to nominate Mrs. Catherine D. Blake of New York for the trensurership from the floor of the convention. It was decided that the minority report could not be put in.

Homes and Schools Taken as Subjects by N. E. A. Speakers

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., July 13. — "No matter how great the so-called bargain may be, unless it is really needed in the home, the person purchasing it has faleid to receive the equivalent for her money." So asserts Miss Etta P. Flagg, supervisor of home economics, Los Angeles, who today gave the National Education Association some advice on bargain hunting and managing the home. "One of the first needs that confronts us is an inteligent knowledge of the requirements of each individual home," said the speaker. "Each home differs or should differ from its neighbors and while certain general rules remain, innumerable exceptions should be made. After this is under stood, the value of money must be understood, the value of money must be standpoint alone, but also from the practical. Not until this is thoroughly grasped should we pass on to our next need—a knowledge of the genuine value of the purchase made. By genuine, I mean the value of the material from which it is made and the value to the purchaser. No matter how great the so-called bargain may be, unless it is really needed in the home the person purchasing it has failed to receive the equivalent for her money. It is also our duty to know the conditions under which these articles have been manufactured—whether by hygienic or not. The manufactures make what the public demands.

"To the question of division of income, careful thought must be given before anything is done, and a certain sum set aside definitely each month for the buying the necessary supplies. Here again the trained mind is needed so that the 'balanced ration' may be given with the least expenditure of money. If you add to these things already mentioned a carefully trained artistic taste, a true perspective which takes in life, and a generous amount of common sense—that rarest of all good gifts—you will have most of the actual needs for intelligent purchasing.

"As to the accounts, the simplest way is the best. A simple day book for entering all purchases and a regular weekly balancing and arranging will give at the end of the month, a clear, practical account that can be readily understood and easily kept."

IDEAL SCHOOL.

"The ideal school of the future will not only permit the constant working in beautiful colors, but it will provide an atmosphere of refinement, where pupils may unconsciously imbibe ideas of beauty and acquire true standards of color qualities and values," according to Katherine M. Ball, supervisor of drawing, San Francisco, who spoke on "The Development of the Color Sense."

"When this is the case," continued the speaker, "we will no longer see the desecration of our beautiful California poppy—done in normal hues—nor writhe from the contending riot of color vibrations, emanating from drawings of life and still-life, whose harsh and violent qualities uninterruptedly assault the eye.

"Color judgment should be developed by the study of both nature and art. Nature we have in abundance in California, but until our institutions have more art material as equipment, and our educational leaders more art culture, the esthetic progress of the children of this generation will be delayed.

"In the large cities, the lack of school equipment of art examples is in a measure supplied by the supervisors of the subject, who utilize the city museum, the art shops and all private collections of their friends and themselves, to illustrate their work. But the smaller places not so favored, are unable to give their children the kind of training which they have a right to demand of the State, and which is destined to play a very important part in the industrial and commercial affairs of the nation's future."

PLENTY OF BOOKS.

"Plenty of books for all the people—the ambition of the California State Library—has been realized, following the establishment of the county free library plan in California," Harriet G. Eddy, county library organizer, State library, Sacramento, so told the National Educational Association. The California plan was declared to be the most comprehensive ever started. The speaker said in part:

"The library and the school are coming to be regarded more and more as supplemental, and vitally interrelated in purpose. This recognition of their interrelation in theory is coming to make them more and more so in fact. As a consequence, schools are paying more attention to libraries and demanding more of them; and libraries are paying more attention to service to the schools. We are all coming to have the far vision that between school and library, there should be no boundary, since both are working to the same purpose—the general raising of the average intelligence. Each should be so interwoven into the other as to present a solid fabric.

"Firm in the belief that this is the true mission of a library, and ambitious to bring about its realization, the California State Library has for years been working toward books for the people—not a few books for all the people, nor plenty of books for a few people, but plenty of books for all the people.

"It is a wonderful plan, by far the most comprehensive ever started, for getting adequate library service for everybody. And the people are proving it by their enthusiastic appreciation. Small towns are able to have reading room and library service, impossible if supported locally; high schools have access to hundreds of dollars' worth of material for special research work during the year; study clubs have collections of books at their disposal; the special student has access to the book he most needs for his study; the farmer has sent to him the latest book in his particular industry, and the general public receives every service a library can give.

"Thus the end toward which the county free library was created to aid is being realized—plenty of books for every one—pleasure and profit for every one from early age to the end of life," was the manner in which the speaker concluded.

SPELLING "OPPORTUNITY."

"The high school must spell 'Opportunity' for all of its young people. No legitimate activity is foreign to it; but it must regulate its social leadership to the adequacy and precedence of such other organizations as the given community already possesses. The teachers of the coming high school will not be simply the amateurs who are looking forward to some other profession. The human function in teaching will command men and women of ripeness and power."

Such was the assertion of Rufus C. Bentley, professor of secondary education, Leland Stanford Jr. University. Professor Bentley's paper was a comparison of the social status of the public high school with a local community as its constituency, with the isolating college, with no community in the same sense.

"The room for social service in the American community is not yet fully occupied," said the speaker. "The high school is one of its crescent institutions, bound to supplement the increasing lacks of the home. Like 'Bill Smith,' only ornamented at home, known as the statehouse as 'the Hon. William Smith,' the high school still lacks the credential of service to its own community. The university cannot help the high school much in this new period of human service, though it laid the lines for the foundation in the old 'curriculum' cycle of the high school's existence. It can help by training the right sort of workmen for the superstructure. These must be willing to attack the high school's new local task. For the future, the high school must look to its own community for motive as well as environment.

"Young men and women seek self-sacrificing human service, but not yet in the high school. This will come when the teacher's human function has the recognition long since granted to his scholastic function. As other professions outgrow their mystery, contentiousness or devotion to theology, so the teaching profession must look with them for a better day of prevention, counsel and human service. The teacher's work ought to be the best understood of any profession that tries to serve the community, which understands service as it has never understood curriculum."

CHECK MAILED TO THE DOLPHIN CLUB

The Fourth of July Committee Gives Organization Money in Place of Prize.

Secretary Wilber Walker of the Merchants' Exchange mailed a check for $200 yesterday to the Dolphin Swimming and Rowing Club of San Francisco, which had charge of the athletic sports given on Lake Merritt on the Fourth of July. This club assumed jurisdiction of the sports on very short notice and conducted them to the satisfaction of the Fourth of July committee, in addition winning prizes in the contests to the value of $200. So when the committee received a communication from C. M. Farrell, president of the club, asking that the club be given a check in lieu of the prizes so that it could purchase a rowing shell to be called the "Oakland," the committee instructed Secretary Walker to comply with the request.

WOULD GO TO IRELAND FOR BIG FAIR EXHIBIT

Thomas F. Marshall of 318 San Pablo avenue has addressed a communication to the president and directors of the Merchants' Exchange asking that he receive the indorsement of that body as special envoy to Ireland for the purpose of securing exhibits for the 1915 fair. Representatives will be sent to various countries for this purpose and Marshall, as a native of Ireland and also a resident of Oakland for the past twenty-three years, feels himself qualified from both points of view to secure the necessary exhibits and have those which will appeal to the public here. He asks the indorsement of the local body in the form of a letter to the officials in charge of the fair. The Merchants' Exchange has taken no action on the recommendation of any one as yet.

SAYS HE BEAT CHILD.

OFFICER AND THUG FIGHT DUEL

Sandbag Found On Suspect, Who Is Held for Carrying Concealed Weapons.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 13.—As the result of questioning two suspicious characters whom he encountered in a lonely section of Golden Gate park at 3:30 o'clock this morning, Mounted Policeman Pidgeon had a narrow escape from death in a pistol duel after he had arrested one of the men on suspicion. The officer was riding along the main drive when, opposite Twenty-fourth avenue, he saw two men standing at the side of the roadway talking. He watched them for several moments, and noticing several suspicious moves, he approached to ask them to give an account of themselves.

As he came nearer the pair separated and ran in different directions, and Pidgeon, taking up the pursuit, overtook Harry Barras, a butcher, whom he took to the park station. On searching him a sandbag was found on his person and he was charged with carrying concealed weapons. Returning to the vicinity of the encounter, the patrolman saw a person whom he believed to be Barras's companion near Lloyd lake. Stealthily he dismounted and approached the man, who ran into the brush, disregarding a command to halt.

Drawing his revolver, Pidgeon fired a shot, which was returned in double measure by the thug, and was followed by two more bullets from the officer's gun. The firing was kept up until both weapons were empty and several shots narrowly missed striking Pidgeon. Unable to find his man in the shrubbery, the policeman sent in a call for help and Corporal Caples and a posse went to his aid in an automobile, but the pistol wielder had escaped.

Later Policeman Lowenberg arrested two suspects, but neither could be identified by Pidgeon. It is the theory of the police that the pair contemplated holding up some late revelers passing through the park in automobiles.

BASEBALL HITS AND KILLS AN OFFICER

Missile Strikes Policeman On Forehead and He Dies Four Days Later.

Injured Man Returns to Duty, Not Thinking He Was Hurt Seriously,

SAN FRANCISCO, July 13.—Struck on the head by a baseball in Balboa Park, last Sunday, Policeman John C. Crowley of the Ingleside station sustained injuries which, although believed to be unimportant at the time, caused his death at 3 o'clock this morning. Policeman Crowley was patrolling his beat and when passing through the park a ball which had been batted far afield, struck him full in the forehead. He was thrown to the ground, but suffered little inconvenience and returned to his daily duties.

He was at his post until yesterday afternoon, when feeling ill, he want to his home, 3615 Twenty-third street. A physician was called, but he gradually sank until death came this morning. The immediate cause of his passing was the bursting of a blood vessel in the head.

Crowley had been for years attached to the old Ocean View station and was well known in that outlying district. He was 50 years old, received his appointment to the force in 1895, and is survived by a wife, four boys and two girls.

CIVIL WAR RENDS NEW YORK MILITIA

ALBANY, N. Y., July 13.—Led by Adjutant-General Verbock, head of the State National Guard, an attempt is being made here to bring about the repeal of the charter of the Albany Burgesses Corps, which at one time ranked with the Cleveland Grays, the Old Guard of New York, the Ancient and Honorable Artillery of Boston and similar organizations.

Organized in the 30s, the corps for many years had a splendid record, and was well known throughout the country. But of late, acording to those behind the effort to disband it, the organization has been "masquerading under military guise purely for social purposes."

The corps has a long list of honorary members, including the late President Cleveland, Cardinal Gibbons, John D. Rockefeller, J. P. Morgan, Andrew Carnegie, Chauncey M. Depew and others of prominence.

KING WAS MEMBER.

King Edward was made a life member when he visited Albany as Prince of Wales in 1869.

General Verbeck began an investigation of the corps last winter, and at his request a bill was recently introduced in the legislature to repeal the corps' charter. Before the legislative committee he characterized the corps as a "ragamuffin military organization," and cited a ball which the corps gave at the Metropolitan opera house in New York during the Hudson-Fulton celebration, at which foreign guests were made to pay for hat checks, as an instance why the charter should be repealed.

They had given the impression to visiting organizations, he explained, that the ball was a part of the celebration program, which it was not.

CASE AGAINST TEEPLE IS DROPPED

The Mother of Victim Tells of Conversation With the Dying Youth.

Acting on the finding of the Coroner's jury over the killing of Robert Freudenthal, the young electrician shot in a revolver duel with Patrolman Harry S. Teeple while resisting the officer, Judge Mortimer Smith this morning dismissed the case against Teeple as there was no complaint. Teeple was booked for manslaughter the morning following the shooting affair by order of Chief of Police Adelbert Wilson pending the inquest over the death of the young man.

The verdict of the Coroner's jury was a formal exoneration of Patrolman Teeple. After hearing all the witnesses in the case and listening to the reading of the dying statement made by Freudenthal, the jury brought in the following verdict:

"We, the jury, find that Robert Freudenthal, a native of Canada, aged 20 years, came to his death on the 10th day of July, caused by shock from hemorrhage due to bullet wound in the abdomen inflicted by Police Officer H. W. Teeple while defending himself from assault by Freudenthal, who was unlawfully resisting arrest.

"F. SHOO,
"J. E. GREANEY,
"G. T. LOHR,
"T. PERMIEN,
"ARNOLD McDONALD,
"Coroner's Jury."

STATEMENTS CONFLICT.

Conflicting statements as to who fired the first shot were made by the policeman and Freudenthal, the young man insisting in his dying statement that he had not fired until after he had been shot at, and making the same declaration to his mother when she was summoned to his bedside. Patrolman Teeple declared to the jury that he did not fire until after Freudenthal had taken a shot at him. Other witnesses testified that Freudenthal was the first to draw a revolver, but that they were unable to tell who fired the first shot.

Mrs. Belle Jenkins, mother of Freudenthal, testified that she was summoned to the house of Alfred Bonnett, the friend of the dead youth who had taken the ride on the motorcycle with him when the two were stopped by the police. She asked her son what had happened.

"A policeman shot me," he answered.

"Did you shoot first?" she asked.

"No, mother, I did not," he replied. "Now, mother, don't worry, for I shall be all right."

SAW DEATH NEAR.

Mrs. Jenkins stated that she realized that her boy would die when she saw him. The pistol he carried was an automatic, and belonged to his father. It was produced at the inquest yesterday by John Martelock of 143 Locksley avenue, who had found the weapon in his garden the morning following the shooting, the revolver having been thrown there by Freudenthal during his flight from the scene of the shooting to Bonnett's home.

Testimony of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence G. Bell, witnesses of the tragedy, was to the effect that Freudenthal had shot several times, but when Mrs. Jenkins, mother of the youth, removed the magazine and showed that eight undischarged cartridges remained, showing that but one of the full magazine number of nine had been used.

Cecil Harris of 5853 Ocidental street, who owned the motorcycle ridden by Freudenthal and Bonnett on the evening in question, testified that he had been with Freudenthal throughout the day; that they had had four drinks of beer and one of whiskey in the whole day, and that Freudenthal had not been drunk.

MAY FILE CHARGE.

Austin Lewis, attorney for the relatives of Freudenthal, attended the inquest. It is possible that an attempt will be made to file a charge against Patrolman Teeple, although that of manslaughter was dismissed on the findings of the coroner's jury.

Alfred Bonnett, charged with violating the city ordinance providing that motorcycles must carry lights, appeared before Judge George Samuels this morning and explained that he was merely a guest of Freudenthal on the night in question, and that he was merely a passenger on the motorcycle and had nothing to do with the running or lighting of the machine. The case was dismissed.

Tuberculosis in Dairy Cattle Is to Be Thoroughly Canvassed.

BERKELEY, July 13. — The California Association of Medical Milk Commissions will hold its annual session in Berkeley next Tuesday, July 18. The object of the meeting is to bring together in discussion physicians, veterinarians, dairymen and other persons interested in the production of clean milk. At present there is unusual interest in Berkeley in the problems of milk production, owing to the new milk ordinance which provides for dairy inspection and the production of "inspected" milk, a grade between certified milk and milk produced without special precautions.

The afternoon session will be devoted chiefly to the problem of tuberculosis in dairy cattle and will be addressed by Dr. Stanley P. Black of Pasadena and Drs. C. Roadhouse and C. M. Haring of Berkeley. After the speeches there will be a conference of dairymen, veterinarians and physicians concerning dairy problems and an exhibit showing among other things the bacteria found in the various grades of milk.

EVENING SESSION.

In the evening there will be speeches on the history of certified milk and on experience with its use in San Francisco. These will be given by Dr. T. C. McCleave of Berkeley and Dr. E. C. Fleischner of San Francisco. A lecture on "Milk in Relation to Public Health" will be presented by Dr. G. S. Baker of the United States bureau of animal industry. The lecture will be illustrated with lantern views. Dr. Baker has charge of the government meat inspection in San Francisco and therefore has extensive knowledge of the prevalence and distribution of tuberculosis among the cattle of California.

During the meeting the sanitation car of the California state board of health will be at Berkeley station for the inspection of those attending the conference and other interested citizens of Berkeley. The public and the members of the summer session are urged to attend both the meetings of the conference at the University of California and to visit the demonstration car.

RESCUES ALAMEDA MAN FROM WATER

Clarence Sanborn Pulls Ralph Jenkins From Russian River.

ALAMEDA, July 13.—Ralph Jenkins, the son of F. E. Jenkins of 2107 Santa Clara avenue, narrowly escaped drowning in the Russian river on the Fourth of July when a canoe which the young Alamedan was in overturned. Jenkins, who was the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Brooks at their summer cottage at Monte Rio, went out in a canoe on the river where the water was thirty feet deep.

The frail craft was overturned and the young man thrown into the river. He attempted to swim and had just struck out from the overturned canoe when he was seized with a cramp and went down. Jenkins had gone down for the third time when Clarence Sanborn, who had witnessed the accident from the Brooks cottage, set out in a boat and rescued the half unconscious swimmer. Jenkins was taken to the Brooks home, where restoratives were applied and in a short time he was able to join the other members of this household in celebration of the day.

Both Sanborn and Jenkins are members of the Phi Sigma fraternity of the Alameda high school, and both young men graduated from that institution a few years ago.

Clarence Sanborn resides in Fruitvale, but has always taken a prominent part in the social doings of the younger set of this city, and with the young man he rescued has been prominently identified with the social activities of Alameda.

SERVES PRINCIPLE AND 100 DAYS

S. Carr Refuses to Remove the Fence or Pay Fine Imposed.

ALAMEDA, July 13. — Rather than prove false to his idea of principle and remove what he considered himself justified in allowing to stand, S. Carr submitted to arrest this morning at the hands of Police Clerk Jacoby in the Alameda police court and accompanied by a detective went over to the county jail to serve his sentence of 100 days, imposed upon him by Police Judge Tappan.

Carr is charged by Mrs. Hattie Kearney with trespassing on her property in Fernside boulevard, in removing timber from her ground to erect a fence between his property and the Kearney property. Carr states that he has just as much right to the ground as the Kearneys have as Kearney's property is United States government property.

Kearney in court showed a title to his ground. The case was decided against Carr and Monday morning Police Judge Tappan sentenced Carr to a fine of $100, or 100 days in the county jail.

He was also told that if the fence was removed by this morning, the fine and sentence would be set aside. When Carr appeared before Police Clerk Jacoby today he stated that the fence had not been taken down and also refused to pay the fine of $100.

ONCE PENNILESS TRAMP IS NOW A MILLIONAIRE

William W. Lamberton Jr., aged 21, who two years ago was a penniless tramp, and who was arrested and imprisoned for disturbing the peace when he called at a fashionable hotel here to visit his mother, Mrs. Gertrude Lamberton, the divorced wife of the lumber king of Racine, Wis., is again in Oakland, and in his own right one of the youngest millionaires in the country.

He has come to Oakland to transact some private business, after which he will return to Los Angeles, where he owns a handsome home, part of his inheritance.

At the itme of his arrest two years ago, when he was imprisoned because of his inability to furnish bail, he had gone to see his mother and was met at the door of the fashionable hostelry by De Putron Gliddon, a rich Englishman, who was traveling with Mrs. Lamberton. Gliddon angered the youth, who struck him, and, on the Englishman's complaint, he was thrown into jail.

The young heir sought release on bail, but the family in which he was born neglected him. He was not aided by his mother, although after her divorce she had been made the youth's legal guardian. He telegraphed to Racine for $25, and his multimillionaire father failed to respond. Friends the boy had made in his adversity obtained his freedom, after his mother had refused to prosecute.

When he reached 21 he inherited more than a million, which had been beyond his reach, and, it is said, had been half the cause of the family squabbles.

CORNING WILL IS FILED HERE FOR PROBATE

DEATH OF HEIRS, ONLY COULD BREAK TRUST

Survivors Will Contest Instrument to Secure Portion of Estate.

A will made by the late Lovina T. Corning of Alameda, which has been missing for many years and which the woman was supposed to have destroyed before she went insane and was adjuged an incompetent, came to light in San Francisco a few days ago and was filed this forenoon in the superior court for probate. There are surviving fourteen collateral heirs, scattered all over the United States, among whom is James H. Davis of Alameda. Davis filed the will and asked for letters of administration as the lawful guardian of his incompetent aunt.

By the terms of this will Mrs. Corning's estates, valued now at more than $200,000, would be tied up in trust during the lifetime of most of her present heirs, if it were allowed to stand. At the time it was executed Mrs. Corning established a trust for about forty of her relatives, which was to run as long as most of them survived, and on the ground that she stated to them after the instrument was lost that she had made it while in a rage and wanted her estate to be distributed at her death, the surviving heirs have planned to contest the restored document in the hope of having it set aside so that they can come into possession of the property.

MADE IN 1889.

Mrs. Corning made her will July 5, 1889. She afterward declared that she was very angry at all her relatives at the time and for this reason created the trust to prevent any of them from getting hold of any of her property. The instrument was drawn in San Francisco and named Captain N. T. Smith and F. S. Douty as executors and trustees. Smith took possession of the will and it remained in his care until 1897, when he died.

The Union Trust Company of San Francisco was appointed executor of Smith's estate, and among his papers found the Corning will. Not knowing exactly what disposition to make of the instrument the trust company filed the paper away in a vault with other documents of the Smith estate and only accidentally came upon it again shortly after Mrs. Corning was declared to be insane. The company immediately notified James H. Davis, her guardian, of the find, and after due process he secured possession of it.

During the many years that intervened between the date the will was executed and the time that Mrs. Corning became insane in her dotage, the old lady, it is said, frequently expressed her gratification that the instrument had disappeared and the hope that it had been destroyed, saying that she was very angry at the time she made it and wanted to die inestate, so that all of her surviving relatives would come into their proportionate share of her property. There was one time immediately prior to her going insane that the old lady expressed a desire to make a another will, but for some reasons over which she had no control the matter was allowed to pass along until mental incompetency precluded all possibility of such an adjustment of her affairs.

WRIT IS DIRECTED AGAINST LAWLOR

Ordered to Dismiss the Ford Indictments or Show Cause.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 13.—The district court of appeals this afternoon issued a writ of mandate made returnable July 24, directing Superior Judge Lawlor to dismiss the indictments against General Tirey L. Ford or show cause why he should not be compelled to do so.

IN COLLEGE CITY.

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, July 13.—The Red Cross demonstration car reached Berkeley station this morning. It is in charge of Dr. M. J. Shields, of the Medical Reserve Corps, U. S. A., who has for some years been engaged in the first aid work of the American Red Cross, and many notable achievements in the reduction of unnecessary mortality are credited to him.

Perhaps his best work has been done in the anthracite coal mines. One mine reports that where formerly one death occurred for every 80,000 tons of coal mined.

Just a Few Minutes to Shampoo This Way

"Today fewer women than ever before depend on the hair-dresser for shampooing," writes Mrs. Mae Martyn, in the Baltimore Herald. "The reason for this," she continues, "is because of the almost general use of canthrox for cleansing scalp and hair.

"A teaspoonful of canthrox dissolved in a cup of hot water is enough for a good shampoo. This should be poured on the head slowly and the scalp rubbed briskly. The rich lather neutralizes the oil and loosens dust and dandruff. After rinsing, the scalp is sweet and clean, while the hair dries very quickly and is left glossy, fluffy and easy to do up. So little time and labor is required with canthrox that shampooing is a positive delight."

CAPT. WOLVERTON SWATS 2 HOMERS OFF BROWNING

Skipper of Oaks a Bright Star, and This Goes for 8 Fellows That Were With Him

By BERT LOWRY.

"That was surely some ball game!" exclaimed Tom, Dick and Harry and Ethel, Clarice and Edythe as they wended their way out of Recreation Park over the pond yesterday afternoon in the neighborhood of 4:30 p. m. And well they might say this, for that second game of the Oakland-San Francisco series was a hummer, and what made it all the better was the fact that our own Oaks gathered the long end of the 3-to-0 score.

There were lots of heroes inthat game, but the real live wire was a gentleman named Harry S. Wolverton, who manages the Oaks as well as plays third base for them. What made the said Mr. Wolverton a hero was this fact. On two occasions he walloped the ball right out of the lot for the entire circuit of the bases. When you make the entire circuit of the bases you get a run and as runs win a ball game that's why Mr. Wolverton was the real big live wire of the day.

Aiding and assisting Mr. Wolverton were the following gentlemen, and they, too, deserve plaudits for the part they took in the afternoon's sport: Mr. Wares, Mr. Cutshaw, Mr. Teidemann, Mr. Hoffman, Mr. Zacher, Mr. Maggart, Mr. Mitze and Mr. Pernoll.

BUD PERNOLL WAS ALL GOOD.

The pitcher is always the pivot of a ball team, and Mr. Pernoll was the pivot, for he had a plenty on the balls he tossed over the plate and never once was he in real danger. Back of him the gentlemen named played faultless baseball and were of great assistance to Bud in bringing home the long end of the score.

For the Seals it was Mr. Frank Browning that hurled and Mr. Browning lost a game that he need not feel ashamed of, for barring Mr. Wolverton's swatting, Frank was all to the good, also.

This with Mr. Pernoll's pitching and the brilliant stunts pulled off in the field added the zest to the contest.

With Mr. Wolverton and Mr. Pernoll out of the way for the time being it was Mr. Wares and Mr. Cutshaw that supplied the fireworks and pinwheels.

Three times these gentlemen started a double play, in fact they started four, but the last one wasn't finished and those two double plays blasted the hopes of the Ewingites.

Then Izzy Hoffman broke into the calcium light and grabbed an apparent double from McArdle's bat.

Mr. Powell for the Seals and his teammates, Mohler, Vitt, McArdle and Schmidt played excellent ball. Truly, it was 25 cents' worth of baseball for the bleacherites and 50 cents worth for the stands and then some.

WOLVERTON STARTS THE RUNS.

Maggart it was that started for the Oaks and Harl lost a home run because the two captains had agreed if the ball hit a sign in right that the player could only have what he could get, instead of a homer, although the sign is far above the fence.

You see, Maggart hit that sign. Wares got him to second but Cutshaw and Zacher couldn't hit it safely. In their half of the second it was Captain Harry that brightened the hopes of the Oaks' fans by poling the pellet out of the enclosure.

It was a line drive to right that hit the top rail of the fence and skimmed its way into Mrs. Grady's back yard on Fourteenth street.

That's the way the score stood until the seventh inning during which spasm Mr. Harry again poled the pellet out of the lot. Nice work, was it not, Mr. Fan, who yelled for Browning to "put it over, he can't hit it"?

That made it two for we 'uns and in the eighth Hoffman gathered a run, else it truly would have been Wolverton's big day. To delve further into the tale would do little good for you about know now why and how the Oaks won the second game of the series. Here's the tabulated form:

SENATORS WIN ONE.

LOS ANGELES, July 13. — Mr. Byram of Princeton pitched for the Senators yesterday afternoon in the opening game of the series, and that was about all there was to it. The final result was Sacramento 3, Los Angeles 1, and the local ace was a lucky one.

The game was featured by all kinds of fast fielding and both Halla and Byram got into several bad pinches. It was the stellar stuff in the field which stemmed the tide at the crucial moment.

Both aggregations were after goals, as this series means a good deal in the cellar championship race.

HAP. ALMOST HAD IT.

PORTLAND, July 13. — Happicus Hogan used three pitchers in the effort to hook today's game from McCredie's hustling Beavers, and for a time the Vernon bunch had the edge on "Comeback" Bennie Henderson, but the batting of Buddy Ryan and Henderson himself put the Villagers to rout in the seventh and eighth innings and Portland won out, 6 to 3.

Ryan did the hero stunt in the seventh, when, with the score 3 to 2 favoring Vernon and Henderson and Sheehan decorating the sacks, he hoisted one of Brackenridge's fat ones out of the lot for a home run.

Henderson came to bat with two out in the eighth and smashed out another home hun. In fact, the batting of Ryan and Henderson was about the stellar feature of the matinee, as each of them chalked up three hits.

White of Chicago is Cobb's closest rival in the percentage column, having .424 against Cobb's .444. White, however, has played in only 16 games, against Cobb's 71.

Cobb leads with 127 hits, his nearest rival being Jackson of Cleveland, with 106 in an equal number of games. Jackson, also, is Cobb's rival in the number of runs, having 62, against the Detroit player's 74.

FRED GREEN SHOWING FORM IN THE NORTH

VALLEJO, July 13. — From reports received here Fred Green, formerly a member of the Pastime team of this city, is making good with the Washington league Green is pitching for the South Bend aggregation and so far has won seven out of the nine games played.

Manager Wolverton of the Oakland Coast League team still holds a string on Green and may use him later in the season.

No use to blame Doc. for that bobble he made in the eigth inning for it cut no figure in the game. Of course it gave the Oaks a tally but they had those two homers of Wolverton already so the game was lost.

Manager Harry Wolverton and Pitcher Bud Pernoll, Two of the Nine Big Guns That Beat the Seals Yesterday.

DIAMOND GOSSIP

Every time Oakland and San Francisco come together on the diamond the fans see some major league baseball. Tuesday's game was a hummer and that of yesterday was another hummer.

A glance at the error column shows that San Francisco booted two in the first game and one in the second, none of which were really of any consequence.

As for the Oaks, nary a bobble made they in the two games. Both clubs pulled off several brilliant fielding stunts and there were just hits enough to keep the fans jumping up and down watching the ball and wondering what the verdict would be, until the very end.

* * *

It was a Wolverton day. Four times the jovial skipper of the Oaks went to the bat and every time he hit the ball. The first and third times up he lifted the ball out of the lot. The second time up he laced one that landed him at second and the last time up he made Mohler exert himself to get the rival captain at first base.

In the field Harry had two plays that stood out alone, both times getting a rushing runner before he could reach third on a hit by another batter to the pitcher. Yes, Siree, Harry was all the candy yesterday.

* * *

It was a pretty duel between Pernoll and Browning and neither one could crab at the way the boys played behind them. Three fast double plays by Wares, Cutshaw and Teidemann helped Bud a whole lot and brilliant fielding helped Browning. Then these two handled the pill in great shape and none of their batteries' errors hurt anybody.

* * *

It would be but right to say that Finney handled the indicator in clever style. Once it looked as if Moskiman didn't have his foot on the bag on a play to get Wares, and again it looked as if Schmidt beat out a hit to first. On both plays, though, the umpire was right on top of the play and better able to judge them than were the fans in the stands and bleachers.

* * *

San Francisco gathered a hit in every inning but the fifth, while Oakland hit safely in the first, third, fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth. In the third and sixth they got got two hits.

* * *

So far this season, or including the swat that Wolverton put over the fence in the seventh inning, there has been 54 home runs on the ball park over the bay. Fifty-one of these went out of the lot and three went into the leftfield bleachers.

* * *

The pest that gets in behind the wire screen like a baboon where he can't be reached was in evidence yesterday and turned his coarse wit loose at Big Jack Teidemann.

The big fellow is doing the best he knows how all the time and doing that well. Then again, he is hitting that ball good and hard. True, he fanned three times yesterday, but we have seen others fan three times in a game and narq a word said and at that they don't do one-half as well as Big John does.

* * *

Watt Powell had a horseshoe in his glove in the second inning when he tossed Maggart's fly about before he really held it. The ball was a hard drive and bounded out of Watt's mit. Powell reached for it, though, and grabbed the ball before it could fall to earth.

* * *

Pernoll is a sweet fielder. Twice he took bunts in clever style and without hesitation whipped the ball to Wolverton nailing runners who were moving toward third base. At that the Captain was of great assistance for the had to show class and speed to get the runners.

* * *

Wolverton's second homer was a high fly that crossed the fence a few feet fair. Had the wind been blowing it would have carried the ball into foul territory, but at that it was a mighty good swat and was as good as many a home run made on the lot before it.

* * *

Harry Walton who wagered a new lid that three or more balls would be hit into the leftfield bleachers, received the order yesterday and then made another wager that the feats would be accomplished again.

* * *

San Francisco has a ne woutfielder on the way and yesterday a big fellow named Lewis came up from Los Angeles looking for a tryout. Cal. is out for the pennant, it seems.

* * *

The playing of Cutshaw at second was marvelous. Besides having a helping hand in three double plays he took care of ten chances without a bobble and some of those chances were, mighty hard, believe me.

* * *

Happy Hogan got in the lead up north for a few moments yesterday and the noise at the park over the bay could have been heard up at Portland. It wasn't a long spasm of joy though for the Beavers came back later and went to the front Both the leftfielders Powell and Maggart did the the base stealing stunts, each getting one to their credit.

* * *

Weaver with two, Mohler with two and Powell with three and one by Browning were the sum total of the Seals biggies. All Oakland made was eight too but those two over the fence were better than the other fourteen.

* * *

Wares with five assists, Cutshaw with eight and Pernoll with six, showed how the Oaks handled the ball. Then Wolverton had two assists also.

* * *

Browning was the man to issue the pass to first base, it being to Maggart, and he did this because he was afraid Harl would pole another of those long shots of his.

* * *

If Teidman had held Wares' throw in the ninth inning there would have been four double plays by that stonewall infield. The peg to John though was a wee bit bad and pulled him from his bag.

SEALS WILL HAVE A NEW MAN IN THE OUTFIELD

The San Francisco Club has purchased a new outfielder, Arthur Smith, from the Austin Club of the Texas League. Smith played with Lynchburg, in the Virginia League last season, the same organization from which the Seals got Watt Powell and Walter Schmidt. Schmidt and Powell both speak highly of the newcomer's ability. With Lynchburg he batted .281 among the leaders and stole 44 bases for the season. He is fast and a righthanded hitter. His fielding average was .971.

The deal with Austin was closed by telegraph yesterday and Smith will join the Seals at once.

Schmidt, who caught for Roanoke last year, says that Smith game him more trouble on the bases than any runner in the league.

NEW YORK CAN HAVE FLYNN AND MORRIS, WE DON'T CARE

CHICAGO, July 13. — Jim Flynn, the Pueblo fighter, who is a visitor in the city, and Carl Morris, the Oklahoma "white hope," will have it out in the ring just as soon as some club comes to the front with an offer to stage the contest. That much was assured today when Flynn met B. F. Ufer, manager for Morris, and discussed conditions for the bout.

It is not impossible that the mill will take place in California, that is, if unfavorable legislative action is taken on the New York fight measure. However, those interested are looking to Gotham, and hope that some club there will stage the battle.

LONG AND GARDNER ONCE MORE WINNERS

NEW YORK, July 13. — T. R. Pell, the national indoor tennis champion, worked his way to the final round in the singles for the Achelis cup at Sea Bright, N. J., yesterday, defeating Carlton R. Gardner, the crack Californian.

The doubles progressed to the semi-final round, Melville H. Long and Gardner defeating Raymond D. Little and Karl H. Behr. The scores were 6-4 and 6-2.

VALLEJO ARRANGES CARNIVAL OF BOXING

VALLEJO, July 13. — Arrangements were completed yesterday by Manager Charles F. Grennan of the Palm Athletic club to hold a boxing show at his Flosden arena, Saturday afternoon, August 5, with Sammy Trinkle of the cruiser Maryland and Johnny McCarthy of San Francisco in the main event.

The boys will weigh in at 140 pounds and will box 20 rounds for a decision.

DOLPHINS TO HAVE NEW RACING SCULL

The Dolphin swimming and rowing club of San Francisco, which took part in the Fourth of July regatta held this year on Lake Merritt, at a meeting last night of the Merchant's Exchange, consented to waive any claim to the individual money prizes won and asked to be given the money in one sum, the amount to be used in building of a rowing scull or barge, to be named the Oakland. This was agreed to and $200 was given to the organization.

New Track at Stanford

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, July 13. — Attributing the great number of "breakdowns" to the poor condition of the present cinder path, contracts have been let for the construction of a new track. It is now the belief of Trainer "Dad" Moulton that the main cause of the continued eleventh-hour sprains to the Stanford men was due to the poor condition of the track.

The track will be built on top of the old one and will be laid out with alternating layers of clay and cinders. Work on the new baseball diamond, to be constructed on the general plan of that now in use at the University of Illinois baseball diamond, has begun.

CHANCES OF WELLS MEETING M'FARLAND GETTING BRIGHT

By EDDIE SMITH.

Promoter Milton T. Clark, with the aid of a good scout, Tom O'Day, promises us something good for the month of September. Milton last night announced that he would in all probability give us a chance to look over Packey McFarland and Matt Wells in a 20-round contest.

If this match can be arranged, it is as good as a world's championship affair, for it will once and for all settle the argument as to who is the best 136-pound champion of all the boxers.

Both Wells and McFarland are too big to legitimately contest for the lightweight championship of the world in America, for if they were allowed to come in at a weight they would ask, the present holder of the title would be at a disadvantage, owing to the fact that he would be giving away too much poundage to men of great class.

On the other hand, if either of the larger fellows were to make a match at a weight Wolgast would demand they are at the disadvantage, for it would surely be a notch that would weaken either to make it.

Boxing at the British weight of 135 pounds at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, the lightweight limit in the tight little isle, McFarland and Wells are the real champions of the class, but at the American weight, 133 pounds at the ringside, there isn't a chance of even getting them to the weight.

If O'Day and Clark can finally land this match they certainly have a card that will draw out big money, and the fans will be thankful for the opportunity of witnessing a battle between the best England can produce and the best we have.

There has been considerable talk of matching Freddie Welch with Wells for the September date, but there are two things that make this match almost impossible.

WEIGHT A BIG FACTOR.

Fact is the weight is another feature that might keep the men apart, for Welsh would not meet Wells on this side of the big pond at the English weight. The other two things that would keep the men apart is, first, the danger of losing the match with Wolgast should Welsh lose, and, secondly, that even though Welsh might win from Wells in America the English people would still recognize Matt as the champion of England, and he would retain the Lord Lonsdale championship belt.

Wells won the belt from Welsh, and it is one of the ambitions of the Welshman's life to win it back. The National Sporting Club of London is the only place where the Lonsdale belts con be contested for, however, and it is the only place where British championships can be fought out.

These reasons would surely keep the Britishers apart, for even though they might not get quite as much money boxing at the National Club, still there are other things to be considered.

The match between Packey McFarland and Wells will appeal to us as a very good substitute, however, and we will be pleased to have Clark announce definitely that he has secured it.

M'FARLAND HERE BEFORE.

McFarland only appeared in San Francisco once, that was when he so handily defeated Jimmy Britt. At the time Britt had passed his best days in the ring, but Packey did the job up in a masterful manner at that, and there are none so bold as to deny that he is a boxer of great class.

Packey is also one of the best advertised boxers in the business, and one of the highest priced. That Wells is some artist with the gloves is best proven by the fact that he won a twenty-round decision from Freddie Welsh.

Welsh and McFarland have met three times. The first time they met McFarland was given the decision at the end of ten rounds of boxing at Milwaukee, but there was an awful stir raised over the decision, and the referee of the bout has never been allowed to act again in Milwaukee.

The fact that McFarland was unable to gain the decision over Welsh, whereas Wells was, in sufficient proof that the battle between the American and the Britisher would be well worth looking at.

WELSH AND LONG ARRIVE.

Freddie Welsh and his manager, Baron Long, arrived back from Los Angeles yesterday afternoon and both proved brim full of boxing talk. Freddie immediately denied the story Wolgast started to the effectt that he tried to run out on the side bet, and it was him and not McCarey who called the bet off.

"Why should I want to run out on the wager?" said Welsh. "It wasn't costing me one red cent to make the bet; it was all money of very wealthy men at my home, who were very willing to back me against Wolgast, and I should have been very glad to have made it for them.

"I am sure that Wolgast will not be the champion after I meet him, and for that reason there isn't the slightest reason why I should want to back down. Baron Long and Tom McCarey talked over the side bet proposition with good attorneys of the south, and they advised that we let the bet drop; then it was that Promoter McCarey made the propositions for the staging of the contest that we agreed to, and at the same time insisted that the be be called off.

"Tha's all there is to the bet talk, and to tell the etruth, I'm glad it's called off, for there are any number of people who thought, and are thinking so today, that the bet was all talk."

WILL STAY AWHILE.

Welsh and Long will stay in San Francisco for a few days, when they will return to Los Angeles and open training quarters. Welsh is not the least bit backward in saying that when he left England after the Wells contest that he was not by any means at his best, and adds that the Baldwin contest just put him on edge.

"I want to hold the condition I have regained," said the boxer, "and for that reason I am going to keep up light training."

"If McCarey or one of the San Francisco promoters want me to box in the meantime I'll be glad to take on any of the lightweights they may select." Welsh is to have a talk with Promoters Clark and Jimmy Coffroth today regarding matches here.

With the permit for the month of August at his disposal, Jimmy Coffroth has not as yet settled o na match that in his judgment would pay him to stage. Jimmy has put in a lot of time and spent some money cabling to Billy Papke regarding a match with Frank Klaus, but up to late last evening nothing had been heard from Papke that would be taken as encouraging news. If Papke does not accept within the next few days, it is just possible that Jimmy Gardner, Hugo Kelly or Tony Caponi may be given the chance with the Pittsburg Dutchman. Klaus made a great hit here, and no matter who he is matched with the fans will pay liberally to see him in action.

MAY CALL OFF BOUT.

Fritz Holland broke a small bone in hit hand Tuesday afternoon, and for that reason he may not appear in the bout with Battling Robinson at the Dreamland Pavilion tomorrow night. Fritz says that he believes he can beat the negro even with the bad hand, and if his manager will allow him to, he will take the chance.

The fact that he has injured himself has thrown the Oakland Wheelmen out of their proposed match between Holland and Sailor Petrosky which they contemplated staging on the 19th of this month.

Yesterday the matchmaker busied himself arranging another bout, and it now looks as if the main event will be six rounds between Willie Ritchie and Johnnie McCarthy, and the special event between Jimmy Fitton and Jerry Murphy.

If this main event can be arranged there is a great possibility of its developing into a most interesting affair, for there is all kinds of a chance of the winner of the bout being matched with Freddie Welsh either at Los Angeles or in San Francisco.

BEAR VALLEY PASS DANGEROUS, SAYS AUTOIST

WOMEN ARE HYSTERICAL AFTER DANGEROUS RUN

Mountain "Trail" in Terrible Condition and Should Not Be Negotiated.

(By ROBERT E. GEISTLICH, Chief Operator Associated Press.)

For the benefit of motorists contemplating a trip to Santa Cruz by the way of what is known as the "Bear Valley Pass," which runs by way of Saratoga, Congress Springs, The Summit, and thence on to Boulder creek, I have only to say, "Don't do it." This applies particularly to owners of the larger type of cars.

Driving a Regal "30" touring car, and accompanied by my wife, Miss Edna Wexall of Oakland, and George Harting, the veteran fight timekeeper, I negotiated that route last Sunday afternoon, ours being the second car to traverse the tortuous trail this season, and I feel that we are fortunate to be alive to tell the tale.

We were informed at Santa Cruz that the road was open, and that an automobile had safely passed over it on the previous night. This machine, I learned subsequently, was the "Pathfinder." We decided to return to San Francisco by this route, so we were anxious to visit at Brookdale, through which place the Bear valley highway (?) runs.

We experienced no difficulty until the ascent to the summit was well under way, although after leaving Boulder creek the roads are sandy and there are several ascents and dips which call for the most careful driving.

The road to the summit winds spiral-like around the hills and is no wider than the width of a machine. At best it is a dangerous undertaking to journey over it, but in its present condition it is almost suicide for a heavy machine to hazard it. The turns are sharp and almost never-ending, being filled in with loose dirt and tree-stumps. Most of these bends must be taken with the throttle wide open, and the slightest miscalculation would precipitate one over the banks for a sheer drop of a thousand feet or more. In addition there are several 25 per cent acclivities which must be taken on the run, and which are exceedingly narrow and of loose earth. Invariably in encountering these dangerous places I insisted that the other occupants of the machine alight, as I felt that it was far better to risk one broken neck than four.

It was truly fortunate that nothing else in the guise of a vehicle was encountered on the road, as for miles and miles it is not possible for any two vehicles to pass each other. And it was equally fortunate that we had no machine or tire trouble of any kind, else we probably would still be marooned somewhere in the wilds of a country almost entirely devoid of human habitation. When we finally reached the summit at 7 o'clock at night, after being on the road since shortly after 2, the ladies were almost hysterical from the nerve-racking ordeal, and no money could tempt them to again venture on such a jaunt.

The extreme narrowness of the Bear valley trail is best illustrated by an incident which further exasperated our shattered nerves. When within approximately a mile and a half from the summit we encountered two young steers, which fled in our van as we approached and further stayed our progress. These animals ran in front of us until they were ready to drop from exhaustion and it required constant prodding with the bumper to keep them going. Not once during this chase did we observe a space with sufficient room to permit the machine to pass them by.

The road skirts the ridges at a great height, and often the rear wheels passed within an inch of the edge of precipices that seemed bottomless and compelled one to keep his eyes diverted. Much brush and branches of trees flaunts in one's face, and only the friendly service of the windshield prevented constant contact of our faces with these branches.

I take off my hat to the "Pathfinder," as I would far rather make the ascent than the descent of a road upon which death stalks in front and lurks behind.

I am prompted in writing this article purely from a humanitarian point of view, as I feel that for any machine to attempt to essay the Saratoga-Summit road in its present condition would be to court disaster.

LOCATE MISSING FARRIEA JEWELRY

FRUITVALE, July 13.—As the result of two month's detective work on the part of Constable William Allen of this place, jewelry valued at $200 was recovered yesterday in a rooming house at 633 Henry street, Oakland. The valuables were the property of F. Farriea, who died in the Napa asylum a month ago. Farriea was formerly employed in Honolulu and was brought up to San Francisco by J. Frazier, who turned him over to his relatives here. Before his death Farriea told his sister that he had a watch and diamond ring and pin when he left the islands.

Constable Allen was placed on the case and traced Frazier to the county infirmary, and accused him of stealing the dead man's jewelry. Frazier denied the theft, but Allen, unsatisfied, went to Frazier's former rooming house and found the missing articles. Frazier was in the infirmary recovering from a self-inflicted bullet wound. The man has left the county infirmary and Constable Allen will swear out a warrant for his arrest and make an attempt to relocate him.

PLIMPTON PAYS INHERITANCE TAX

Funds of Contra Costa County Enriched by Sum of $25,083.

MARTINEZ, July 13.—The funds in the county treasury were yesterday increased by the sum of $25,083, paid in by George F. Plimpton of New York in the form of an inheritance tax.

Plimpton is a large stockholder in many of California's largest corporations, and the tax was due mostly on property inherited from one of his distant relatives. The property is located on the water front and is considered the most valuable in Martinez. This is the first time in the history of the county that a tax of this kind has been collected.

The goods were stolen Tuesday afternoon by three well-dressed strangers who entered the place to have some repairing done to the coat of one of them. While Rhoads was in the back of the store doing the work two of the men made off with the loot. The remaining man excused the absence of his companions in a plausible way and it was not until after the third man had gone that Rhoads discovered his loss. No trace of the thieves has as yet been found.

CUT ASSESSMENT ON OAKLAND HOTEL

City Council Lops Off $20,000 as the Result of Plea of Edoff.

Reduction of the assessment on the Oakland Hotel, which is now in course of construction, by $20,000 was made by the city council this morning, sitting as a board of equalization.

The reduction was made on the request of the board of directors of the hotel for a reduction of $41,000.

It was pointed out by J. P. Edoff that the Hotel is a civic enterprise, and that it is not at present, and will not be for more than a year, a revenue producing property. Mayor Frank K. Mott pointed out that as the assessed valuation placed upon the land of $91,000 was fair, the board could not reduce this, but that a reduction might be made in the assessment on the building.

The building as it now stands was assessed for $25,000, although it is now only in course of construction. A motion was carried unanimously to reduce the assessment on the structure to $5000, or a reduction of $20,000.

Jackson, a realty expert, was allowed by the new council this morning, when an ordinance appropriating $4250 was passed to print. The claim was presented over a year ago, but was neglected by the old finance committee.

An ordinance appropriating $7500 for sewering the eastern side of Webster street from Second street to Fourteenth street, was passed this morning. The money for this cannot be apportioned to this fund until the tax rate is fixed.

Few Changes Noted in Stocks On the New York Exchange.

NEW YORK, July 13.—Interborough-Metropolitan was the only stock to move more than a small fraction at the opening of the market today, advancing a point. Otherwise the list was firm at about last night'slevel on a light volume of trade.

A firm undertone gave an appearance of strength to the stock market during the morning session, but trading was listless and movements were small except for a few issues. Trading was active in American Beet Sugar and it went up 1½ to 54. Excited dealings in Porcupine Mining stocks on the curb were caused by news of the destructive fires in that district and prices dropped abruptly.

Bonds were steady.

NEW YORK, July 13.—Gibson says: There is still hesitancy over the crop outlook and a general tendency to await more definite developments, but there is no sign of important selling in any quarter and buying is of a good character on the little reactions. Sentiment among traders continues bearish and the short interest is large, but is somewhat nervous and any good news would result in a pretty rapid advance. I think it is about time to begin picking up Louisville and Nashville and Southern Railway common and preferred. The rains in the cotton belt give us great hopes for a bumper cotton crop and this at anything like present prices means that the South will have one of the most prosperous years in history. Of course, we are not sure of the cotton crop yet, but it is advisable to buy now. Do not alter recent recommendations. Would buy good stocks on every little reaction. Wheat should be bought on any further decline. Would sell corn on the hard spots. Cotton a sale on every rally.

PRICES LOWERED BY GOOD CROPS

Extraordinary Shipments of Wheat Into Chicago Startle the Bulls.

CHICAGO, July 13.—High receipts here and in the southwest, with increased arrivals northwest, put the wheat market today on the down grade. Cooler weather in the spring crop belt counted also in favor of the bears. The fact was pointed out that in the last four days the extraordinary total of 1522 carloads of new wheat reached Chicago, as against only 51 cars during the corresponding time a year ago. Opening prices were the same as last night to ⅝c down. September started at 90¼@90⅝c and declined to 90c.

Black rust reports from Minnesota and North Dakota caused a rally, but the effect was not lasting. Harvest news from Russia was bearish. The close, however, was firm, ⅞@1c net lower for September at 89½@89⅝c.

Corn weakened because of ideal weather conditions shown on the government map. Moisture and less trying temperature formed the rule from the Canadian line to the gulf. September opened a shade to ⅝@⅞c lower at 66⅝@67⅛c, and steadied around 66¾c.

Temporary strength developed because of moderate buying of a prominent speculator who yesterday led the bull side. The close, however, was weak, with September ⅝@⅞c net lower at 66⅛c.

Profit taking sales made oats appear heavy, but purchases on the part of a leading long brought about a rally. September started ⅛@¼c off, to 1-10c up at 47@47¼c, dropped to 46¾c, and recovered to 47⅛c.

Provisions rose with hogs. First sales were 2½@7½c higher. September deliveries went at $15.90 for pork, $8.45 for lard, and $8.57½ for ribs.

The closing quotations were as follows:

Wheat—July, 88¼@88¼c; September, 89½@89⅝c; May, 96¼c.

Corn—July, 64⅝c; September, 66⅝c; December, 64½@64⅝c; May, 66⅝c.

Oats—July, 46¼c; September, 46¾@46⅞c; December, 48⅝c; May, 51c.

Pork—July, $15.90; September, $16.

Lard—July, $8.30; September, $8.40; January, $7.42½.

Ribs—September, $8.55; January, $8.17½.

Rye—No. 2, 88¼c.

Barley—Cash, 76c@$1.17.

Timothy—Cash, $6@13.50.

Clover—Cash, $9@15.50.

CHICAGO, July 13.—The Inter Ocean says: Wheat gossip was mostly bearish last night, although prices were higher with grains of ¼c in the face of advances of 1⅜c in corn and ⅝c in oats, which made the market look weak. J. A. Patten and C. E. Lewis returned from the coronation in London yesterday. Both talked bullish of the course grain situation abroad. J. A. Patten said: "The wheat crop of Great Britain has been seriously cut short by seven weeks of drought. There will have to be large purchases made from other countries to make up this deficiency. They have been buying corn of late from us. Denmark dealers there say they did not know how long the supply will last and they may have to come to America." All the big local professionals were on the buying side of corn yesterday, with Patten credited as the leader. Pit traders put him down as having brought 2,000,000 bushels the last two days and other local professionals have bought as much more. There was general talk of 70c for September within a week and some of the bulls predicted that it will go there before Saturday night. One of the largest cash handlers said he had not known a time in years when it was so hard to buy corn in the country. There were a few corn bears out last night who said the small shorts have been run in but the big ones were still out. Most of the crowd were said to be long. The bears regarded prices high enough. The weather sharks are talking drought and hot weather and increasing damage reports within the next three days.

LIVERPOOL, July 13.—Broomhall says: The late firmness in America yesterday caused lighter offerings here and at the opening the undertone was steady and prices ¼d to ⅜d higher. Buenos Ayres closed easy at a decline; reports from Russia were more favorable, with conditions in India regarding the Monsoon hopeful and favorable harvesting weather in the United Kingdom, with La Plata offerings as well as Russia liberal. These influences, however, were offset by the firmness in spot, strength in coarse grains and an improved demand for Manitoba winters, which are firmly held. The continent shows an improved demand with cargoes more firmly held. There was support by prominent interests. At 1:30 p. m. the market was firm, with heavy covering in July, which advanced ½d, and the market was ½d to ¾d higher than yesterday. Corn was steady at the opening and ¼d higher and later advanced ⅜d on the strength in America, private reports of continued hot weather with no rain in the principal States (late last night) and Snow's report of yesterday. At midday the market was very strong and 1½d higher.

TEN PER CENT DISCOUNT!

YOUR OPPORTUNITY!

Here is another "SPECIAL" that bids fair to equal in popularity the others the Realty Syndicate has offered the public within the past three weeks. This is another TEN PER CENT WEEK and it will probably be the last for some time.

We want to feel the pulse of the realty buyer who prefers paying cash to speculating on the "so-much-a-month" plan. Here, then is our offer:

A discount of ten per cent will be made on any lot in the holdings of the Realty Syndicate if bought for cash on Saturday.

To be within the limits of this offer does not require the ENTIRE payment on that day. Choose the lot, pay a deposit and complete the purchase within THIRTY DAYS.

There are no "strings" to this offer. We have tried to be brief and have said just what we mean. Any of our salesmen will be glad to explain the details.

COME TO OUR OFFICE TODAY AND TALK IT OVER, FOR THE OFFER IS LIMITED TO SATURDAY ONLY. Good things don't last long and we expect a busy day. If this isn't a chance in a lifetime we miss our guess.

TRAVELING LIFE SAVING STATION ARRIVES

S. P. RED CROSS CAR IN OAKLAND YARDS

Employes of the Southern Pacific Company in the Oakland yards rendering "first aid" for a broken leg, bruised head and burned chest. Interior view of the American Red Cross "first aid to the injured" demonstration car now going over the lines of the Southern Pacific. Dr. M. J. Shields, Medical Reserve Corps, U. S. A., in charge of the car.

Railroad Men Listen to Lecture of Dr. Shields

"The Traveling Life Saving Station," which arrived in Oakland today, "is the name that has been given to the American Red Cross demonstration car that is now traversing the lines of the Southern Pacific Company, and a more appropriate name could not have been suggested. The car is now on the Pacific Coast and within the next two or three weeks will visit every town of importance on the Southern Pacific lines. Practical "first aid to the injured" work is the object of the trip. Dr. H. J. Shields, Medical Reserve Corps, United States army, is in charge of the car, and after having traveled over the southern lines of the Southern Pacific Company has paid the following compliment to its officials, in a letter to J. M. Davis, general superintendent:

"It gives me great pleasure to commit in writing the statements I made yesterday in regard to the well-kept stations, station yards and clean cars, shop yards and shop buildings, both in regard to cleanliness and sanitation. I have in the past year and a half visited every section in the United States west of New York City and with the Red Cross car have traveled 15,000 miles, and as you see, have had opportunity to visit a great many railroad stations and shop and engine houses and inspect an unlimited number of trains and cars, and I have not seen so general care and cleanliness and sanitary conditions used as obtain on the Southern Pacific lines, both Pacific and Atlantic divisions.

CARES FOR INJURED.

"I also do not think there is a railroad company in the world that has made better provision for its sick and injured. Starting with the General Hospital at San Francisco, which stands unique in its splendidly appointed building, its equipment and personnel, and then its complete emergency hospitals at points along the line for the immediate care of its employes, its corps of efficient surgeons under the strong supervision of its chief surgeon, Dr. F. K. Ainsworth, no false economy appears anywhere; on the other hand, no expense has been spared in preparing the hospital department and its staff to render both immediate and permanent treatment for its sick and injured.

"It also gives me great pleasure to add that the Red Cross car and its occupants, while on the Southern Pacific lines, has met with universal courtesy and kindness from all classes of employes."

The American Red Cross Demonstration Car will visit every town of importance on the Southern Pacific lines during the next two or three weeks. The only object of the trip is to teach the workmen how to render first aid to the injured. The subjects for illustration are selected from among the audience, and one man assumes the part of the injured person, while three others, under the direction of Dr. Shields, demonstrate the first aid work. During the lunch hour today Dr. Shields lectured to an audience of more than 1000 employes of the Southern Pacific Company's Oakland shops. The men took a keen interest in the demonstration, and at the conclusion of their day's work nearly all of them made a personal inspection of the interior of the demonstration car, which was parked near the shops.

After leaving California the car will visit all of the principal towns on the Harriman lines in Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, Utah and Nevada. The following itinerary, arranged by Dr. F. M. Ainsworth, chief surgeon for the Southern Pacific Company, will be observed in California:

Sacramento, July 14; Roseville, July 17; Red Bluff, July 18; Dunsmuir, July 20, and Ashland, Oregon, July 21.

CERTAIN RESULTS

Many an Oakland Citizen Knows How Sure They Are.

Nothing uncertain about the work of Doan's Kidney Pills in Oakland. There is plenty of positive proof of this in the testimony of citizens. Such evidence should convince the most skeptical doubter. Read the following statement:

George R. Scott, 684 Thirty-seventh street, Oakland, Cal., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have given entire satisfaction in my case and for that reason I value them highly. In 1907 I gave a statement for publication, regarding my experience with them. At this time I gladly endorse them again. I doctored for years in an effort to get relief from a pain in my back and other difficulties due to disordered kidneys. No improvement was noticeable, however, and finally I discontinued the use of doctors' medicine. Reading about Doan's Kidney Pills I was impressed and procuring a supply I began their use. Relief soon followed and almost before I realized it my back was free from pain and soreness. Since then when I have been in need of a kidney medicine I have taken Doan's Kidney Pills and they have never failed to help me."

NYE CALLS ON STATE CORPORATIONS TO PAY UP

SACRAMENTO, July 13. — Though they may have gone out of business, disposed of their property, gone through bankruptcy, or have disincorporated or intend disincorporation, all corporations operating in the state will have to pay their state taxes as levied by the state board of equalization, according to a statement issued by State Controller A. B. Nye.

RIVAL BANKERS ON HIKE.

REDWOOD CITY, July 13.—Dr. Joseph Ross, Edward F. Fitzpatrick, rival bank presidents, and Henry Walker, a lawyer, started on a round trip pleasure hike to Santa Cruz, a distance of sixty miles each way, at 5:30 o'clock yesterday morning. A bet of $1000 hinged on a hike to Del Monte, a distance of 100 miles, each way, between the bankers, but at the last moment the wager was declared off.

N. Y. ICE TRUST TO FEEL PROBE

Corporation Held Responsible for Much Misery of Hot Season.

NEW YORK, July 13.—The District Attorney and the city police today began investigations of the Knickerbocker Ice Company, which does by far the largest ice business here. The charge is that the so-called "ice trust" has withheld ice from independent dealers during the recent prolonged hot weather—in other words conducted its business in restraint of trade.

Ice riots in the tenement districts, where, during some of the hottest days, the poor found it almost impossible to buy even the smallest quantity of ice desired for their humble needs, has attracted attention to the situation and spurred the authorities to action.

A committee of the independent dealers had an appointment to meet District Attorney Whitman today. The District Attorney has said that if his investigation develops the necessary evidence he will lay the case before the grand jury and also apply to the Attorney General, who not long ago brought about the dissolution of the American Ice Company, of which the Knickerbocker Ice Company is said to be the successor.

SANTA BARBARA, July 13.—Over 100 pieces of baggage have now been recovered from the wreck of the steamer Santa Rosa. But three members of the crew remained on guard, and these will leave today, as it is reported the wreck has been sold to a Los Angeles man who will place his own men on the beach to watch what is left of the steamer.

TEN-YEAR-OLD BOY ACCUSED OF FORGERY

LONG BEACH, Cal., July 13.—George Webster, 10 years old, barefooted and freckle-faced, was taken into custody by the police yesterday on a charge of forgery.

The small prisoner, believed to be the youngest ever arrested on such a charge, is said by the police to have admitted cashing three forged checks, for a total of $12, during the last month. He was captured yesterday while attempting to cash a fourth.
